Improve the Bible.
To Kill the Incurable.
Condensed Heat, Light.
Do They Want a Hitler?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YOU MAY now buy the "short Bible," edited by Prof. Goodspeed, of the University of Chicago, and the late Prof. J. M. P. Smith.

In this "rearranged" Bible, Amos is the first book. Genesis moves back to seventeenth place.

Prof. Goodspeed says the complete Bible is "so big, bewildering and obscure that it intimidates most readers." Many old Puritans did not find it so.

The best thing to do with any ancient monument is to let it alone. You spoil it when you try to improve it. No wise man would try to restore arms to the Venus of Milo, or repair the Winged Victory.

CHANCELLOR HITLER'S government revives the old suggestion to kill those suffering from incurable illness. The sufferer could request death, or relatives could request it, but only "acting from motives that do not contravene morals."

The Catholic and Lutheran churches both oppose the suggestion. The Catholic newspaper Germania warns:

"The Catholic faith binds the consciences of its followers not to accept this method of shortening the sufferings of incurables who are tormented by pain."

Lutheran churches remind the government that life is something that God alone has the right to take.

KILLING THE incurable, which might mean, in plain English, "getting rid of a nuisance," is no new idea. Our ancestors of long ago, as you may learn from Westermarck, Reclus, or a dozen others, killed as a matter of course the old, no longer useful, and a hindrance to swift migration.

Savage tribes would kill their ruler, or compel him to kill himself, when too old to lead them. And in the Far North now, among primitive Eskimos, you might see a "worthless" old man placed in his little hut of ice with a certain amount of food, the entrance closed up, after him, with blocks of wet ice, meaning death.

TO PERMIT killing the incurable would open the way to murder. Besides the "incurable" disease of today is often the disease that can be cured tomorrow.

Leprosy, smallpox, diphtheria, malaria, typhoid fever, Bright's disease, that once killed tens of millions every year, are practically conquered, wherever men care to take trouble.

IMPORTANT NEWS for those that live on farms and in isolated places:

"German chemists have produced a condensed illuminating gas called 'protan.' One steel cylinder, containing fifty cubic meters of this gas, very inexpensive, would last an ordinary household for from one to three months' lighting and cooking."

The gas is a by-product of synthetic benzine works. Big oil companies in America will want to know, as quickly as possible, how the thing is done.

AND SOON small power units, run by Diesel engines, inexpensive, serving individual farms or groups of farms, will supply power at a cost far below present charges, and make it unnecessary to run power lines to far-away places at great expense.

One big power company in California says, frankly:

"If you can use forty horsepower or more, the Diesel engine can beat our prices, and we admit it."

That will soon be true no matter how little power you use.

COL. H. EDMOND BULLIS, of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, worries about armies of disillusioned graduates from schools, colleges and universities, turned loose on the world, unable to find work.

He fears that many of these young men are "ripe for a Hitler."

If they do decide to change from F. D. Roosevelt to a homegrown Hitler, let us hope they will make a better choice than the people of Germany made, at least as regards recognition of the rights of human beings.

THERE IS a good deal of talk about "an American Hitler," or an American Mussolini, a strong dictator for this country, etc.

Such talk is not wholesome. If the United States, with its great wealth, and powers of production unlimited, cannot develop sufficient intelligence to distribute products wisely and justly, no "man on horseback" will be able to do it for them.

SENATOR W. WARREN BARBOUR, of New Jersey, makes this encouraging statement:

"Approximately 65 per cent of the wage workers of the United States are employed at the present time."

The public works programs should, in his opinion, increase present employment by 15 per cent.

And 80 per cent of workers employed would supply sufficient spending power to put 10 per cent more to work. Ninety per cent gainfully employed would mean real prosperity.

SENATOR BARBOUR urges his state to throw open to public use all bathing beaches owned by the state, an excellent suggestion.

You may still see in New Jersey and elsewhere deep runways made by the Indians in periodi-

Felled by Guard

MRS. GEORGE (M. G.) KELLY

CAROL TO WED PRINCESS

VIENNA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—They said in Rumanian circles here today that Premier Vaida-Voevod is planning the marriage of King Carol, of Rumania, to a princess whose name was not disclosed and that Carol's friend, Mme. Magda Lupescu, will soon leave for a foreign country.

Mme. Lupescu and King Carol have been mentioned many times together since Carol, then a prince, disappeared with her in 1925, renouncing his rights to the Rumanian throne.

These reports—most of which met prompt denials—included that she parted with Carol in 1926, that Carol became reconciled with Princess Helen, that they planned to marry, that she returned to his palace and became the power behind the throne, that she went into exile two years ago after a "final" break with him, that she took poison, that she was addressed as "your majesty" and that she was wounded by an assassin.

Horowitz to Wed Wanda Toscanini

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The engagement in Paris of Wanda Toscanini, daughter of Conductor Arturo Toscanini, and Vladimir Horowitz, young Russian pianist, was announced last night by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Society.

Communications received here by the society said no date had been set for the wedding.

BEAT KELLY WITH GUN IN COURT

Kidnap Suspect's Wife Floored in Battle

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 9.—George (Machine Gun) Kelly was struck on the head with a pistol and floored by a secret service agent at the Federal Building here today when the gangster and his wife, Kathryn, became involved in an altercation with the authorities, on their arrival at the building to go on trial for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire.

The Kellys had just arrived at the building in a patrol wagon from the County Jail when the altercation occurred.

KISS BRINGS CLASH

At the fringe of the crowd in the corridor, Kathryn saw her father, James Emery Brooks, and she moved toward him and started to kiss him.

One of the officers guarding the pair started to keep the Kellys moving. Kathryn resented being pushed. Suddenly, she slapped J. C. White, a federal agent, of El Paso, across the face.

'HELP, GEORGE, HELP!'

The officers started to drag her along. She cried to "Machine Gun" Kelly:

"Don't let them do that to me."

The husky Kelly rushed at Officer White. White was ready. He dropped Kelly with three swift blows on the head. The first blow hit Kelly on the left side of the forehead. The next two landed on the top of his head.

Blood poured down the back of Kelly's dyed hair. Recently while a fugitive he dyed his black hair a corn-colored yellow.

'BROKE HER NOSE?'

Federal men said she was not knocked down.

Kathryn said:

"They struck me when I said 'Hello, Dad,' and started to kiss my father. I think they broke my nose."

Kelly said:

"Gus" Jones, chief of the San Antonio Bureau, Department of Justice, declared that the Kellys started all the trouble.

Kelly and his wife were taken to the courtroom, and a short time later a jury of small-town farmers and businessmen was selected.

MRS. SOLES' BODY TO BE EXHUMED

Case Complicated By Different Caliber Bullets

To a mausoleum in the Versailles Cemetery county detectives turned today to support their charge that Robert S. Soles, prosperous McKeesport businessman, killed his wife, attractive Mrs. LaRoux Soles.

They planned to exhume the body of Mrs. Soles, who, on her death bed, insisted that she had shot herself in a bedroom of their fashionable home. Attorney Oliver K. Eaton has been retained to represent Soles.

BULLET WOUND

District Attorney Andrew T. Park and the sleuths will try to determine by autopsy whether the bullet wound, below the heart, was inflicted with a .38 caliber revolver, such as was found in the Soles home.

A .38 caliber bullet was found in the floor of the bedroom. A .45 caliber bullet was found lodged between the walls. Detective Peter Connors believes this .45 caliber bullet was not fired but was pushed into the wall to confuse the authorities.

Both pistols are in the hands of the authorities, and today ballistic experts reported their belief that the .38 caliber bullet had been fired from the .38 gun found in the home.

Park said today that Soles, 41, ex-Army captain and successful in the insurance business, had signed a six-page confession.

Mrs. Soles was an artist before her marriage. It was recalled today that in her will, written in her own hand in 1929, she left her $30,000 estate to her husband and a brother, John Harry Lynch.

County Detectives say Soles admits shooting his wife, after a quarrel over other women, then placing her in bed, where a telephone directory on her knees, she wrote a suicide note, herself taking the blame for the shooting.

CORONER'S VERDICT

A Coroner's jury later agreed her death was suicide, but the investigation was reopened by request of her father, Harry B. Lynch, 68, retired mill superintendent.

The detectives believe Mrs. Soles was so devoted to her husband that she was willing to shield him to the last.

Soles, against whom a murder charge has been filed, was given some fresh clothes in the jail yesterday by two brothers, who were not allowed to see him because of the Sunday rule against visitors.

Coroner W. J. McGregor said today that he was "surprised" by the turn of events, following the suicide verdict at the inquest, but he added that he would reopen the inquest if the fact warranted. Mrs. Soles was 41.

In her suicide note she indicated that ill health was the reason and, before dying, she repeated to physicians and nurses in McKeesport Hospital that she had shot herself.

MRS. G. A. KELLY III...CONDITION CRITICAL

ROOSEVELT ULTIMATUM SENDS OPERATORS TO PEACE CONFERENCE

Fate of the coal strike was being determined today by three groups:

OPERATORS—Meeting in New York, officials of the steel companies operating captive mines threshed out the President's virtual order to accept the United Mine Workers, checkoff and all.

MINERS—While a majority of Western Pennsylvania mines remained idle Martin Ryan, leader of the miners responsible for the insurgent strike for recognition of their union "hoped" for peace this week.

In addition, the steel labor situation was quiet, with little picketing of mills experiencing labor trouble and apparently normal operations of Ambridge plants, scene of last week's riots.

Ryan Hopes For Peace This Week

Representatives of thousands of striking coal miners from six Western Pennsylvania counties met this afternoon on Thistlewaite hill, near Centerville, Washington County.

Martin Ryan, insurgent leader who has dominated the strike in the Fayette fields, pledging to "hold out until the Frick coal interests recognized the union," commented:

"We are going into this meeting in the hope that the holiday will be ended this week. It's up to President Roosevelt and Gen. Johnson now. We still stand 100 per cent for the United Mine Workers."

More than 300 delegates were in attendance. Among them were the local leaders of Fayette fields, whose dominance extended into adjoining counties.

The meeting was their answer to the plea of President Roosevelt that the miners go back to work while he negotiates with the owners of the captive mines for a settlement of the strike.

SOME RESPONSE

Already, there had been some response to the President's call. But it was relatively slight. In-

Taylor Heads Operators' Meeting

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—A special meeting was begun here today by steel company executives to deal with the problems of the captive mines, called because of President Roosevelt's ultimatum that unless steel executives come to an agreement with their workers at once, the President himself would by virtue of his executive authority under the National Recovery Act, impose certain regulations.

The meeting was being held at the offices of the United States Steel Corporation under the chairmanship of Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of United States Steel.

At the same time, Nathan L. Miller, counsel for the American Steel and Iron Institute, was conferring on the mines problem in his office across the street from the meeting called by Taylor.

GRACE NOT LOCATED

Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said to be the most obdurate steel man in his opposition to any compromise with workers' unions, was not in his office. His secretary would not say whether or not he was attending the meeting at the steel corporation's offices.

Officials of the American Iron and Steel Institute denied today that captive mines were a problem within the scope of their organization. They denied that a special meeting of the institute had been called for tomorrow, explaining that out of the 250 members of the institute, only five are involved in the captive mines situation.

FEAR ROOSEVELT

One of the men close to the heads of the United States Steel Corporation, who asked that his name be withheld, declared that the powers of United States Steel are endeavoring to bring about an immediate and final solution of the problem. He said:

"They realize that President Roosevelt's mandate puts it up to them to do something and do it quickly."

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation and George Laughlin, chairman of the board of Jones and Laughlin, were not in the city. Weir had gone directly to his home office in Detroit and Laughlin to his office in Pittsburgh. Weir and Laughlin evidently left their proxies with the two other corporations involved, the United States Steel and the Bethlehem Steel Company, at the special meeting today.

6 MADMEN FLEE CRIMINAL WARD

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Six men escaped from the ward for the criminal insane at the Oregon State Hospital here late last night by slugging Charles Williams, attendant, after four of them had sawed their way out of their cells.

Williams did not regain consciousness for several minutes.

State police and the sheriff's force hurriedly launched a search.

2 in Auto Escape In Bomb Explosion

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 9.—W. L. Wood and W. Smith, of Avella, Pa., narrowly escaped death early today when an unknown assassin tossed a bomb under their automobile as it passed Hickman's filling station on Follansbee-Eldersville road. The bomb shattered the glass in the automobile and the gasoline pumps at the station. Wood and Smith said they saw an automobile pull out from a secluded spot and head toward Follansbee.

TECH'S VICTORY

Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech football coach, writes his own story of the local team's amazing 25-0 victory over Pop Warner's Temple University eleven in the sports section today.

Car Plunges Down Embankment Near Sulphur Springs

Trapped with his wife beneath his automobile through a cold mountain night, George A. Kelly III, of 6815 Edgerton avenue, died early today of his injuries, according to an Associated Press dispatch from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Mrs. Kelly was taken to a hospital at Ronceverte, W. Va., suffering from shock and exposure and probably a fractured spine. Physicians reported her condition as critical.

The Kelly car was found at the foot of a high embankment at the Pines near White Sulphur Springs by a road commission employe on his way to work. Kelly, who is vice president of the George A. Kelly & Co., Ninth street, was dead when he was taken from the wreckage.

Mrs. Kelly, the former Agnes Stewart and daughter of the late Douglas Stewart, director of Carnegie Museum, said she talked with her husband while they were pinned under the machine. Toward morning she said he failed to answer her.

Kelly was en route to Hot Springs, Va., from Indianapolis where he had been attending the national wholesale druggists convention. He is also secretary-treasurer of the Stockton Service Company.

Carriage Set Afire, Baby Burns to Death

CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Police yesterday sought a small boy who was believed to have ignited the baby carriage in which 3-month-old William McCue was burned to death.

Investigating the tragedy, police learned a small boy was seen loitering about the carriage in the McCue yard and may have ignited it as a prank.

WEIRTON PLANT TO REOPEN

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Representative Ramsay (Dem.), of West Virginia, told newsmen today he would ask the National Labor Board of the NRA to investigate reports that E. T. Weir, head of the National Steel Corporation, had made threats of shooting some of the 11,000 workers on strike at the company's plant at Weirton, W. Va.

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 9.—While 2,000 pickets mingled outside the gates of the mills, the Weirton Steel Company today announced that it would resume operations tomorrow in its Weirton plants.

The announcement was made a few minutes after 50 West Virginia state police arrived and took up posts outside the general office. The police are expected to help maintain order when the workmen return.

NOTICES POSTED

"All plants and departments at Weirton will reopen for operation at 8 a. m. Tuesday. All men on all turns in all departments will report for work at the above time."

The troopers arrived in nine automobiles in charge of Capt. J. R. Brockus, who said their aid

12 Firms Here Fight NRA Blanket Code

Twelve petitions for exceptions to the President's blanket re-employment agreement were heard this afternoon by the Pittsburgh NRA Compliance Board.

The board has authority to recommend that certain concerns be granted exceptions under the agreement if its full application would work an unusual hardship, according to Frank C. Harp, executive secretary of the board. Hearings are secret.

Johnson's Appeal to Housewives Launches U.S. 'Buy Now' Campaign

Every Dollar Spent Aids Recovery, He Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—NRA's "buy now" campaign today was up to the American housewife.

To her, spender of 85 per cent of the family income, Hugh S. Johnson especially addressed his appeal to buy, "not only to save money but also because every dollar spent now is helping to keep the wage earner in her family on a payroll."

For her, too, as she made up Monday's shopping list, store windows were refurnished and advertising intensified in a joint effort with the government to simulate consumer demand into a buying wave that will boost the entire recovery program.

"Industry and trade, cooperating with the government, under codes of fair competition or agreements with the President, have done and are doing their part. Hundreds of thousands of men, long idle, have gone back to work and millions of dollars have been added to payrolls.

"These payrolls cannot be maintained and new jobs for other hundreds of thousands of workers cannot be made unless every consumer in the land does his or her part now.

"For four years the American consumer has been skimping—putting off buying more than bare necessities until 'better times.' Better times are here. Better times always mean higher prices. Now is the time to buy for purely selfish reasons. Prices are going up. Buying now is an investment."

Support of Entire Nation Asked By NRA Chief

As the big drive gathered momentum, other NRA activities progressed along routine channels. Aside from the buying campaign, greatest interest centered on the ultimate form of the retail trades code with its provisions to stabilize prices by prohibiting sales at less than wholesale cost plus 10 per cent.

Johnson was expected to send this master charter to President Roosevelt tomorrow. Today the Farm Administration opens hearings on a grocery store code with a similar price-regulating provision. But while Johnson favors such price regulation, farm administrators have declared their opposition.

NRA PLANS PROGRAM TO ALTER SOCIAL LIFE OF NATION

U. S. WILL SEEK INCREASE IN MARRIAGES

Construction Boom Whole Object of Activities

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Direct government efforts to alter social financial and business activities involving virtually everybody in the nation are being contemplated by the NRA in connection with the master code it is writing for the almost extinct construction industry.

In the belief that the President's whole recovery plan hinges on a capital goods movement that would come with a quick revival of building activity, the following series of novel and even radical proposals, to be put into effect as rapidly as possible, are under serious consideration:

1—Let the home loan owners' bank corporation make more loans, even if some should prove bad.

MARRIAGE PROPAGANDA

2—Promulgate propaganda tending to cause more marriages among young industrial center workers—so they will leave their parents' homes for their own and help in the drive to absorb present apartment vacancies.

3—Advocate the imposition by local governments of "novelty" taxes that will force wholesale demolition of slum dwellings and yet discourage immediate building on the property. (To further absorb present apartment vacancies.)

4—Seek a possible 10 per cent reduction in the present price of all building materials and hold those prices at that level for one year, with the assurance to the producers that the government will back a substantial boost in the prices at the expiration of the year.

REAL ESTATE PROMOTION

6—Persuade all building trades labor unions to take voluntary 10 per cent reductions of the wage scales set up in present agreements with employers for the first year period, with a proviso they get a substantial boost in wages the ext annual period.

(Dr. Leo Wolman, head of the NRA labor advisory board, already has discussed such reduction in wages with building union heads, and finds them agreeable to the plan.)

All of the above proposals are being urged as one complete plan for revival of building activity by the first of next year, at the latest.

Experts of the NRA's research and planning division have "proved" with charts and mathematics that not more than 5 per cent of normal building activity can be expected until 1937, at the earliest, unless something novel and radical is done by the federal government to stimulate a building boom now.

ROOSEVELT EYES MINE CRISIS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt watched today for striking miners and "captive" mine owners to demonstrate by action their response to his appeal that "work be continued and resumed."

The Chief Executive has assurances from spokesmen for steel—owners of the non-commercial soft coal fields—that they would enter negotiations with representatives of their workers.

The striking miners had assurances from Mr. Roosevelt that failing an agreement through collective bargaining, "the President will pass on the questions involved and will, in making decisions, use the principle that captive mines must operate under conditions of work substantially the same as those which obtain in the commercial mines, which represent 90 per cent of coal production."

Coal men looked for the question of union recognition, which has been the cry of the strikers, to come to a head today. They felt that unless some settlement is reached along the lines laid down by Mr. Roosevelt Saturday, the President was prepared to utilize further powers of his office under the industrial act to bring peace in the coal fields.

Following is the text of the White House statement calling on striking miners to return to work while President Roosevelt attempts to settle their dispute with captive mine owners:

The President and the Administrator of National Recovery (Hugh S. Johnson) in a long conference with the captive mine owners made clear certain fundamentals in regard to the operation of captive mines.

1—The captive mines come under the coal code already signed by the commercial mine owners, except as to provisions of said code relating to the sale of coal.

2—The workers in every captive mine can choose their own representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining.

3—Failing in agreement on any point after such collective bargaining, the President will pass on the question involved, and will in making decisions use the principle that captive mines must operate under conditions of work substantially the same in the broadest sense as those which obtain in the commercial mines, which represent 90 per cent of coal production.

4—The President will ask the mine owners and workers to abide by such decisions.

5—The President will put into effect such government assistance as may be necessary to carry out the decisions in fairness to owners and workers.

6—On or before Monday, the President will propose this formally to the captive mine owners.

7—The owners have assured the President that they will enter into negotiations at once in good faith with representatives of their workers.

8—In the meantime and with realization that every effort at speedy ending of these matters is being sought, the President requests that work be continued and resumed and that order be maintained.

STRIKERS JAM CODE HEARING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—A group of about 100 striking silk workers from Paterson, N. J., led by the youthful Ann Burlak, labor organizer, paraded into the Commerce Department auditorium today shortly before the opening of a hearing on proposed revision of the cotton textile code.

The group, members of the National Textile Workers' Union, was followed shortly afterward by a delegation of 150 striking members of the United Textile Workers of America, an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

The strikers filed into the hall without disorder. Police were summoned hurriedly from other government buildings as a precaution against possible disturbance.

NRA HOSTILE, STRIKERS SAY

DETROIT, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Charges that employers of tool and die makers in Detroit, Flint and Pontiac are "consciously and deliberately" violating the provisions of the NRA were made by striking members of the Mechanics' Educational Society in a brief forwarded today to the National Recovery Administration in Washington.

The brief also charged that John M. Carmody, federal mediator sent here by Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, has adopted an attitude "which is not in accord with the letter or the spirit of the NRA," and which offers aid to the employers.

The committee statement declared the strikers believed "the NRA has totally failed of its duty in this controversy," and declared the situation is becoming acute.

Auto Dealers' Head To Discuss Code

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The first public discussion of the automotive code by the national administrator, F. W. A. Vesper, will be made tomorrow at the annual convention of the Pennsylvania Automotive Association. The code became effective last week.

The convention opened today but there was no business session, the delegates spending the day golfing at the Nemacolin Country Club.

Coyne Charge Indicts Editor and Cartoonist

Edward T. Leech, editor of the Pittsburgh Press, and Ralph Heichhold, cartoonist on that paper, today were indicted by the grand jury for criminal libel. Bail was fixed at $1,000 each.

Senator James J. Coyne, the only witness before the grand jury, filed an information charging the two with criminal libel the day before the last primaries, as a result of a cartoon appearing in the paper.

Employment Gains Reported by State

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Statistics announced by the state employment office yesterday show a 24 per cent increase in opportunities for work during September over both the previous month and September of last year.

The office also reported that while 15 per cent of all openings listed in September, 1932, were unclassified labor of a casual sort," the number of such jobs last month was negligible. Wages were "uniformly better."

Will Gives Estate To Four Children

Joseph Fisher, of Burchfield street, in his will left an estate of $13,000 to his four children, specifying that if a daughter, Fanny, remained unmarried, she was to get $2,000 more than the others. His three sons were named executors.

LABOR URGED TO BUY FROM UNION SHOPS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The American Federation of Labor agreed today that its more than 3,000,000 members should patronize only those retail stores that display a union shop card in addition to the Blue Eagle.

Unanimously, its convention adopted a resolution saying that purchases from such stores would "guarantee fair wages and working conditions."

UNION STAND

The resolution contended that "there are millions of retail store employes who are still unorganized and who have no voice in the regulation of their working conditions," but that "the presence of both the NRA insignia and the union card is proof that the employer is complying with all the provisions of the retail code."

Awaiting committee reports on more controversial questions, and a speech this afternoon by Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, the convention also adopted committee reports urging that more states join the 16 which now have minimum wage laws for women.

It was announced that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will receive women convention delegates at the White House Wednesday afternoon.

GREEN'S DEMAND

The organized workers were expected to reaffirm the repeated insistence of President William Green upon a 30-hour, five-day week with higher minimum wages than have been written into most NRA charters. Although the labor representatives have gone along on the program, as they explained, in order not to set any obstacles in its path, the assembly has been asked by the leaders to demand formally a revision of the codes. Apparently, it was of a mind to do so.

Not only do the labor spokesmen want more liberal treatment under the codes themselves, but a direct voice in their administration. Green expected, in fact, the convention will be unanimous in asking for labor representation of the administrative boards.

DEFIES OUSTER BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The Federal Trade Commission today officially recognized President Roosevelt's order removing William E. Humphrey as a member.

After meeting an hour and a half, the membership resolved to "recognize the validity of the executive order removing Mr. Humphrey, and we hereby decline to further recognize Mr. Humphrey as a member of the Federal Trade Commission."

The ousted Humphrey attended, presenting a letter saying:

"I refuse to recognize such order (referring to the President's removal order) as valid, or as being within the President's rightful powers. I am convinced that the order is without warrant of law and is ineffectual.

"I am, therefore, notifying you that I am still a member of the Federal Trade Commission and am ready and willing to exercise the powers and functions of my said office."

Boy, Man Suffer Injuries in Falls

Robert Geiger 8, of 3216 Ward street, was injured last night when he fell from a tree in Frazier street, according to a police report. He was taken to Children's Hospital.

Joseph Connolly, 49, of 2323 Fifth avenue, suffered cuts and other injuries when he fell down a flight of steps in his home.

MINE STRIKERS REMAIN OUT FOR UNION

Few Obey Roosevelt Back-to-Work Appeal

diana and Jefferson County reports indicated 12,000 miners back to work.

Much of the delay in resumption of work was blamed on the roving pickets.

In Allegheny County, a dozen or so mines reopened. The rest remained closed.

Coal company officials were optimistic that difficulties facing some of the operations would be smoothed out during the day. They had hopes that additional pits would function tomorrow.

Local union delegates meeting in Westmoreland County decided to withdraw pickets and permit each local to decide for itself. Half a dozen mines reopened as a result.

Recognition of the United Mine Workers by the H. C. Frick Company—the key to peace and the general resumption of operations—was still snagged.

Thomas Moses, head of the Frick coal unit and spokesman for the captive mine owners, had not as yet replied to Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers.

Five of the Pittsburgh Coal Company's mines were operating. They were Dickson, Moon Run, Montour No. 9, Eureka and Ocean. Castle Shannon No. 3, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, was the only one of that unit to work. Miners explained they were digging coal for hospital use, and that they thought they would rejoin the strikers later.

Clairton was quiet, as pickets virtually disappeared from the Clairton plant of the Carnegie Steel Company.

MINERS BLOCKED

The lamps of thousands of men flickered through the darkness, as miners in some sections of the Western Pennsylvania district made their way over the hills before dawn.

But roving bands of pickets in battalions of 10 to 500, met them at the gates and persuaded them to remain out—until the Frick mines recognize the union.

There were no disorders. The calm was a calm of disappointment, misunderstanding.

More than 300 men, en route to Coverdale mine, were met by 400 pickets from Hendersonville, did not enter the pits.

More than 1,500 men gathered in an open field near Library near Montour No. 10. They took no vote, but several speakers urged them to remain out.

Frank Gilmore, a local leader, said:

"I defy my district officers to tell me to go back to work under the present conditions."

An unidentified man, unknown to the mass of miners, offered the miners auto gas and oil and whatever else they needed if they would picket the Carnegie Steel plant presumably at Clairton.

FEW PITS REOPEN

The mines in Fayette County, seat of the strike, Westmoreland, Washington, and adjoining counties presented little change. Few mines, if any, reopened.

Some dozen or so mines that had been working in Allegheny and Washington counties continued. Two mines in Burgettstown, Atlasburg and Montour No. 4, remained closed.

Throughout Fayette, Allegheny and other counties the miners' leaders and the miners themselves made no mention of the President or his plea that they go back to work and allow him to direct negotiations for a settlement of their differences. When asked what they thought of the presidential plan, a number appeared disappointed and refused to comment. One declared he thought there must be some misunderstanding in Washington.

The picket lines in Fayette County were thin—most of the available miners moving into other counties to keep their ranks solid in their protests against the Frick refusal to recognize the United Mine Workers.

A few pickets remained at the Monongahela Railroad terminal in Brownsville. There was no disorder.

In Greensburg, where strikers have been picketing the Walworth Company's plant, there were no pickets today. The striking steel workers yesterday met, denounced Communistic unions and formed a Walworth Employes' Independent Union. Arrangements are being made to meet the company officials today. Workers entered the plant unmolested.

Some of the smaller mines reopened today, among them the Miller Coal and Coke mine, with 10 men, on the Steubenville pike; the Elwyn, near Overbrook, and the Moon Run Coal Company's mine, employing 70.

In Westmoreland County some of the largest mines resumed, two of the Keystone Coal and Coke Company, two of the Carr Coal Company, and several small mines in the Ligonier district.

WEIRTON PLANT TO REOPEN

had been asked by Sheriff J. A. Pope, of Hancock County.

Capt. Brokus told the strikers:

"Every American citizen has the right to walk through the lines. And that right must not be interfered with."

The pickets' answer to the notices was two mass meetings in the Colonial Hall and Protective Home Circle Hall.

Two thousand sympathizers crowded each hall and heard William Lang, a leader, urge them to keep up their spirits despite the presence of the troopers.

One grocer took the platform and declared the stores of Weirton would be closed all day tomorrow as a protest against the company's plans.

GIRL DISROBED

An escort of motorcycle police was taking Mary Soltis, 19, to and from work in the Pope plant of the Weirton Steel Company today following an attack on her by three girls, apparently strike sympathizers.

Mary, an assorter in the Pope plant, was leaving her home for work when she was set upon by the three. They tore every piece of clothing from her, according to the police.

Two were arrested and released on bond. The third is being sought.

MEETINGS CALLED

Tonight employes of the Pope plant have been called to a meeting in the Courthhouse to vote on whether all should return to work. This meeting has not been called by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, which is trying to organize the plants.

Yesterday, at a meeting called for employes of the Wheeling Steel Corporation's LaBelle plant, which has been working, Edward W. Miller, vice president of the Amalgamated, urged the men to organize but to remain at work.

cal migrations to the sea. When the white man goes to the shore to bathe, one individual charges him for parking his car, another for the right to change his clothes and go into the ocean.

The air and the ocean at least ought to be free.

THE UNIVERSITY of Chicago will supply "a new dimension to history," by adding a history of science to the usual history courses. The world needs a history of ideas, including science. That would be the only important history. Elimination of ninety per cent of the foolish history of battles would be wise.

If you wrote a history of wolves you would not put each individual wolf fight in your book. Such fights are all alike. In a history of men it is foolish to devote so many chapters to their murdering of each other.

The invention of the wheelbarrow was ten times more important than the battle of Waterloo. And the application of steam power meant more to human progress than all the battles ever fought.

BANKS ADVISED TO CLOSE NEW ACCOUNTS

Ruling Says Assets Should Be Sold, Depositors Paid

HARRISBURG, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The Justice Department, in an opinion written by Shippen Lewis, Deputy Attorney General, today charted the course Banking Secretary William D. Gordon must follow in liquidating 15 formerly restricted banks which the Banking Department has closed.

The ruling instructed Dr. Gordon to sell immediately the government bonds and other liquid assets in which were invested the "new deposits"—made since the banks went on a restricted basis. The proceeds will be pro-rated among the new depositors who will receive all their "new deposits" in full, with interest, if the investment and interest make this possible.

The opinion advised Dr. Gordon:

"You cannot pay the new depositors more than the total of these various funds, for the (Sordini emergency banking) act does not give the new depositors any special claim on the other assets of the restricted bank. If the funds accruing from new deposits are not sufficient to pay new deposit claims in full, each new depositor will have the status of an ordinary depositor as to his share of the deficiency."

Three of the banks to which the ruling applies, the Fifth Avenue Bank, the Coraopolis State Bank and the State Bank of Beaver Falls, are in the Pittsburgh district.

At the Fifth Avenue Bank, checks are being mailed today for 100 per cent of the new deposits, according to S. Clark Reed, receiver.

The Attorney General ruled that when those having "new deposits" owe the bank for loans, both old and new deposits may be credited against the loan before any payments may be made.

Payments to those who have "new deposits" was recommended as soon as possible instead of waiting until other affairs of the bank are liquidated.

Creation of the "new deposits," which had to be carried in a separate fund segregated from others, occurred after the national banking holiday when the department permitted some banks to open on a restricted basis.

Discuss Plan to Free 'Frozen' Deposits

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Plans to establish a liquidating corporation to release "frozen" deposits of closed banks were being worked out at the Treasury today.

Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York, conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, Eugene R. Black, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Treasury experts.

Bruere said the administration was working on the plan. He was unable to go into details or to mention the amount of deposits probably to be released. The corporation will be financed by the R. F. C.

After the plan has been drafted it will be submitted to President Roosevelt for approval.

BORICH APPEAL RULING PENDING

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today still had under advisement the appeal of Frank Borich, national secretary of the National Miners' Union, from a decision of Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, of Pittsburgh, denying him a habeas corpus writ following an order for his deportation on the grounds that he is a radical alien.

Court attaches said it will be several weeks before a decision is rendered.

The above news dispatch is a further confirmation of previous Sun-Telegraph reports on the status of the Borich case. An erroneous report not published in the Sun-Telegraph stated Borich had won his case in Circuit Court.

Cash to Woo, Wed Asked In Bachelors' Code

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Bachelors need a good deal of recovery as well as everyone else, says E. A. Hungerford, so why shouldn't they have a code, too?

Hungerford, an executive of the New York Y. M. C. A., says a 10-point code will be submitted to many groups of bachelors throughout the country for their consideration National Y. M. C. A. Day, October 11.

"The new deal should remove the present economic order's interference with our ability to court desirable girls, marry, establish homes, and have children when we feel like it."

In other sections they ask for "relief from the physical strain of life," raising of the present level of culture, adequate vocational training, and old age insurance, among other things.

Vandergrift Vets Band To Repulse Agitators

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Oct. 9.—The announced intention of the American Legion of Vandergrift to prevent the invasion of Vandergrift by outside agitators is underway.

At a meeting last night, presided over by Ross Belding, leonnaire and chief chemist of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, 116 men, most of them veterans, signed pledges to act as deputies.

Three hundred will have been signed up in the next few days, according to William A. Hume, Sheriff of Westmoreland County.

Addressing the meeting, Belding stated that the entrance of outside pickets would be certain to work harm to Vandergrift. He said:

"We are fighting agitators, not organized labor unions."

30 BEATEN IN VIOLENCE AT AMBRIDGE RIOT VICTIM'S BURIAL

POLICE WHACK HEADS AS MOB ASSEMBLES

7 Arrested, 1000 Turned Away by Helmeted, Clubbing Officers

Adam Pietraszeski, confectioner killed in Thursday's riots outside the the Spang-Chalfart & Co., Inc., mill in Ambridge, is buried today.

A grave covered with fresh earth and faded flowers in Economy Cemetery, above Ambridge, marks the last resting place of the innocent spectator at Thursday's riots that followed Communist John Meldon's attempt to organize workers in the Spang plant.

Violence marked his passing in the second battle of Ambridge, and violence marked his burial yesterday to the tune of rumbling thunder.

Seven persons were arrested and 30 men clubbed and beaten as police turned back nearly 1,000 men and women and children bound to pay tribute to Pietraszeski.

They started coming shortly after noon—from West Virginia, Wilmerding, Beaver, East Pittsburgh, and some from more distant points.

HE LEARNED BETTER

But police and specially deputized police turned them back as they came.

Right up there, in the vanguard of the police, was Frank Verona —he who had opposed deputies until Thursday. He scuffled with the first truckload and received slight injuries and bruises on his shins. Of his change of side, Verona said:

"I learned better. One changes one's mind about those things."

The first truckload, from Wilkins Township, balked, and tried to unload in Fair Oaks, Allegheny County, within sight of the Beaver County line. They wanted to enter on foot.

Other contingents of the parade to Ambridge were less trouble. Most turned back at sight of police.

But from the west and from Aliquippa, before Aliquippa police, armed and wearing riot helmets, arrived on the scene, a scattering of the pilgrims broke through the lines.

They gathered around the Pietraszeski home, where an endless line of mourners went up the rickety steps to the second floor to view the victim lying in his white casket surrounded by flowers.

As the casket was carried down the stairs and out to the hearse, the peace of the crowd—nearly 1,000 strong — was broken when Mrs. May Ecker, 25, of 726 Church street extension, Ambridge, and Edith Briscoe, of Pittsburgh, tried to make speeches.

SCUFFLE AT FUNERAL

Police quickly interferred and carried them and Cy Ecker, 26, Mrs. Ecker's husband, to the lockup after a scuffle in the crowd. Boos and jeers and hisses broke out on all sides.

But the cortege of 14 cars moved on up the hill, headed by the pallbearers and an automobile filled with flowers

No marchers were allowed and the automobiles were limited.

At the cemetery a little group of 200 met to pay their last respects to the dead.

In English and Polish they sang response to prayers for the dead.

As the casket was lowered to its board-lined grave, two Polish choirs sang the dirge, and mourners threw flowers on the descending box.

But leaders in the labor strife gripping Ambridge were not to be cheated of their last word as "Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor, 71, and Pat Cush, of Pittsburgh, reminded the mourners of Thursday's shooting.

'WE WILL BE AVENGED!'

Said "Mother" Bloor:

"I ask you all, especially the little children here, to remember that this man's death must not be in vain. The International Communist party, of England, France, America and the World will avenge it."

Cush said:

"Stop these brutal murders. We are not forgetting, we will remember. We pledge the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union to carry on the battle for freedom."

Police Chief John Flocker and his aides stood by and let them speak. When it was all over he escorted the caravan back to Ambridge.

GRIM REMINDER

After a short while there remained only the pacing deputies, carrying their newly-turned riot clubs, their sub-machine, shot and riot guns and their tear gas, as grim reminders of the first and second battles of Ambridge.

And a rainbow came up in the north, arching over the heights and the cemetery and the grave of Adam Pietraszeski.

Ambridge police later arrested Arthur Winber, secretary of the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union's Spang-Chalfant local, as another step in their roundup of everyone suspected with inciting the riots last week.

The 'Mill Gate Angel'

MRS. DELLA TRAINOR . . . SHE CRASHES THE PICKET LINES

Mrs. Trainor, 25, widowed mother of two, the "Angel of the Mill Gate" so far as 3,000 workers barricaded safely from pickets at the Carnegie Steel mills in Clairton are concerned. Since the pickets first came she has made many trips through the lines to carry food, clothing, luxuries into the "fortress." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

COX SEEKS U. S. ACTION IN RIOT

Denouncing Beaver County authorities for breaking the picket line at the Spang-Chalfant plant in Ambridge by an armed force, the Rev. Father James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church, today planned to ask President Roosevelt for federal prosecution for those responsible for "the outrage."

Father Cox said he felt it his "conscientious duty" as a member of the NRA State Recovery Board to forward a complete report of the riot, together with stories of some of the victims, to President Roosevelt and Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator.

The priest announced his plans in a radio address last night from Station WJAS. Obviously referring to Beaver County's recent deportation of Negroes to West Virginia and District Attorney A. DeCastrique's refusal to act, Father Cox said:

Boy, 8, Killed on Way From Sunday School

Warren Duane Meanor, 8, of near Carnot, was killed early yesterday when he ran in front of an automobile while playing near his home, according to a Coroner's report. Police said the boy was en route home from Sunday School.

PUPILS MAKE RIOT STICKS

The mystery of the source of riot sticks carried by Ambridge police and Beaver County deputy sheriffs in the strike zone was cleared up today as Police Chief John Flocker admitted they were turned out on lathes of the Ambridge High School by the pupils.

Flocker later contradicted himself and stated they were turned on a lathe in the Ambridge police station—which, so far as is known, boasts no lathe.

Flocker made his assertion that they were manufactured in the high school when he was asked the truth of deputies' statements that they originated in the pattern shops of the Jones & Laughlin mill at Aliquippa.

Ex-Screen Actor Found Strangled

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Strangled with his own neck scarf, Townsend D. Paull, 35, former screen and stage actor, was found dead in his bedroom yesterday, the victim, police said, of somone who had robbed him of $20, a ring and a topcoat and escaped in his motor car. The car was later found abandoned in a road leading to San Pedro.

BROKER'S WIFE DETAILS LOVE SPY WORK

Says She Found Rival, Husband in Barn; Asks $4,000,000

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Helen Vogel Stern detailed in her own words today how she "came upon" her husband and Ruth Erlanger Nathan in a barn at Elberon, N. J., where she believes Mrs. Nathan first alienated her husband's affections, valued, according to the suit, at $4,000,000.

Bristling with indignation, the estranged wife of Allison Stern, wealthy stock broker, described her discovery of the love affair which is the basis of one of the largest alienation suits ever filed. Mrs. Stern said:

"They started up as I arrived at the barn. I don't know whether they heard me come through the grass or I made an involuntary exclamation. I did not see their features but I just knew them to be Mrs. Nathan and my husband.

"I recognized the colors of her dress which were red and green—and my husband's white shirt."

NOT SUSPICIOUS

Until that night, Mrs. Stern said, she had never suspected Mrs. Nathan—indeed, Stern "disapproved" of Ruth Nathan and protested against his wife's friendship with the former Miss Erlanger, although the Erlangers were family friends of the Sterns, said Mrs. Stern.

Venom in her voice and glance, she has more than once betrayed her animosity for the "other woman" in her life, and hopes her suit will serve to punish Mrs. Nathan as well as make up to herself for the "destruction of our beautiful life," Mrs. Stern cried:

"How could I be jealous of anyone, no less Mrs. Nathan?"

She "felt" that the doctor who attended her when she broke down after this episode, a Dr. Holman, of Baltimore, was in a conspiracy to have her declared insane, she said, and went on to declare another doctor in Baltimore had had an affair with a friend of Mrs. Nathan.

SETTLEMENT RUMOR

Rumors of a settlement of the case persisted until court convened today. When the trial was resumed without explanation of the week's postponement, Mrs. Nathan, in a gray and black tailored suit, looked defiantly at Mrs. Stern as the wife remounted the witness stand to be cross-examined by Mrs. Nathan's attorney. Allison Stern, sitting in a corner, covered his eyes with his hands as the Stern separation agreement of 1927 was read into the record.

"Free from all marital control and all espionage from each other."

So said that agreement which provided $18,000 a year for Mrs. Stern's support and the maintenance of their two children.

LUPE, JOHNNY GET LICENSE

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Despite a hurried Sunday trip to Las Vegas, Nev., where they obtained a license to wed, both Lupe Velez, vivacious little Mexican actress, and Johnny Weissmuller, former world's swimming champion and now a film player, were emphatic in their statements today that no ceremony had been performed. Miss Velez said:

"We might get married today —and again it might be three years from now. It is true that Johnny and I got the marriage license, but we are not married."

The couple routed Mrs. Dorothy Keeler, the deputy county clerk at Las Vegas, out of bed at 4:45 a. m. A check of all persons eligible to perform a marriage ceremony in Southern Nevada disclosed that none of them had married the couple.

Heart Ills Fatal To Fewer Children

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Fewer young women and children are dying of heart disease now, but the mortality rate for men between 25 and 45 years old has increased slightly, it was reported today to the sixty-second annual convention of the American Public Health Association.

Dr. Louis I. Dublin, of New York City, third vice president and statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, made the statement.

Gambling King Doomed To Death by Gang Court

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Moving rapidly and with traditional secrecy, federal operatives today were tightening their net about a nation-wide ring dealing in stolen securities, brought to light by the many-sided investigation of the $250,000 mail robbery here last December 6.

Forty persons in all parts of the country, reported named in a secret true bill in Federal Court, were being rounded up in connection with the daring quarter million dollar robbery. Twenty-six persons are already under arrest here and in other cities.

Investigation of the fatal shooting of Edgar B. Lebensberger, wealthy gambling king and purported distributor of the stolen securities, took a dramatic turn when government agents opened one of his strong boxes in search of evidence.

TRIAL BY GANGDOM

Federal operatives were searching for four other safety deposit boxes which Lebensberger is supposed to have used.

Lebensberger, owner of three gambling establishments and gay night clubs where he associated with gangsters and members of elite society alike, supposedly committed suicide Friday, six hours before his indictment in connection with the mail robbery, was announced.

It was freely whispered about that Lebensberger had been put on trial by an underworld "court" held within half a mile of his own 225 Club. The story is that when he walked into the "trial" room, he faced four men who sat grimly behind a table. He knew these men.

VERDICT IS DEATH

And while he stood nervously answering the cold-blooded questions that came in rapid succession four other men—men he had never seen before — stood carelessly by, ready to execute the verdict of the "court." Then, according to the story, the verdict was death. But Lebensberger was given a stay of execution. He was permitted to be his own executioner. Later he was.

At the underworld "court," according to the rumor, he was questioned about a $250,000 mail robbery. Later, he knew, a Grand Jury would question him about the same thing. To a close friend, the story goes, Lebensberger had confided that he was going to make a clean breast of it all to the government. Then, evidently in fear that any revelation of a nation-wide mail robbery gang by him would sign his death warrant at the hands of gangsters, Lebensberger left his friend's office, went to his home and committed suicide.

HEALTHIER LIFE SEEN FOR MAN IN 100 YEARS

Medicine Will Conquer Devastating Ills, Dr. Crile Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Mr. 2033 won't have so many ailments to worry about if the prediction of Dr. George W. Crile, of Cleveland, comes true.

Dr. Crile, head of a surgical and medical clinic in the Ohio city, took a peek at the man of the next century yesterday and reported that he would have some causes for rejoicing.

Not only would the man of 2033 enjoy longer life, he said, but he would be rid of such devastating diseases as tuberculosis and diabetes. By that time, he predicted, medical science will have conquered these two ailments.

By the time 2033 arrives the layman will have been educated to what physicians know now concerning the importance of local infections in the teeth and elsewhere as causes of diseases of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys, and such ailments will be greatly reduced, Dr. Crile said. So will all other infectious diseases.

THE OTHER SIDE

But on the other side of the picture the doctor foresaw a possible increase in the heart, kidney, and other organic ailments that are caused by nervous and mental strain. And cancer he predicted, will still claim many victims, even though the nature of the disease may be eventually disclosed.

Dr. Crile was one of several speakers who addressed laymen in their language at meetings arranged at a Century of Progress by the American College of Surgeons which opens its annual clinical congress today. Dieticians, hospital recording librarians and anaesthetists, are meeting in conjunction with the surgeons.

INCREASE LIFE'S SPAN

Dr. Crile said he believed that medical science would do more than guard the health and increase the span of life for the man of the future. A profound effect upon his education and preparation was foreseen by him. He said:

"The well child, under the guidance of a physician, probably will be trained in a very different way than our present haphazard methods. As time goes on it will be discovered what measures build up and what deteriorate the child's nervous system and mentality.

"When the mechanism that operates the brain is understood, then there will be accurate knowledge as to what patterns of action should be replaced in the brain. It will be understood that the brain itself and the character and mentality and the emotional life of the child and of man, are constructed by the environment—by parents, by teachers and by society."

COURT FREES ARSON SUSPECT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The Superior Court today ordered the discharge of Jacob Greenfield, convicted in Allegheny County of arson in McKeesport.

Greenfield was a renting agent and was jointly convicted with John Pane, a tenant of a McKeesport building, in which a fire occurred April 11, 1932.

The Superior Court, in reversing the conviction, held:

"Although the testimony establishes strong suspicious circumstances, they fall short of that certainty required by law.

"No matter how strong the suspicions, there must be substantial evidence of guilt beyond reasonable doubt. The facts and circumstances are not inconsistent with innocence."

Police Arresting Two as Ambridge Buried the Victim of Its Steel Plant Riot

TAMMANY MAY DROP O'BRIEN OFF SLATE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Possibility of a reshifting of Tammany's battle lines, with someone to substitute for Mayor John P. O'Brien at the head of the ticket, was speculated upon widely today as the first heated phase of New York's mayoralty race came to a close.

The speculation upon the possibility of changes in the O'Brien lineup resulted from forecasts that the Tammany candidate or Mayor might run third in a three-cornered election race.

SMITH MENTIONED

The name of Alfred E. Smith was borne up again on the tide of rumor as a possible successor to O'Brien. In most quarters, this was minimized, although it was generally acknowledged Smith would be the one man to pull Tammany out of a bad hole and virtually insure a Tammany victory November 7.

Tammany's allies are said to be strongly inclined toward a reshifting of the ticket, particularly since Maj. Fiorello La Guardia, fusion candidate, and Joseph V. McKee, independent Democratic candidate, have adopted the view that the battle is to be strictly between themselves.

TAMMANY SWINGS AX

Meanwhile, the Tammany ax swung in retaliation against deserters. Charles E. Keegan, a manager for McKee, was summarily dismissed as chief examiner of the office of the president of the board of aldermen. Another to go today was James F. Geraghty, commissioner of licenses and one of the revolting Bronx leaders participating in the "Bronx coup" for McKee.

A crack appeared in the Kings County-Brooklyn organization, when Frank J. Quayle, a district leader, announced his withdrawal as candidate for Sheriff of Kings County to support McKee. Quayle was on the regular ticket put up by John H. McCooey, Tammany's ally and Brooklyn leader.

PECORA MAY QUIT PROBE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—The possible retirement of Ferdinand Pecora as special counsel in the Senate Wall street inquiry—if he should be elected District Attorney of New York County next month—served today to redouble the determination of Senate Progressives to complete a thorough investigation of all market practices.

Pecora, if he is elected, will retire from the inquiry before January 1. Meantime he will file a program of legislative enactments designed to increase the federal protection of the public. He said this program would include a series of reforms on the stock exchanges which would tend to block manipulation of prices and other practices which have cost the public hundreds of millions of dollars.

The probe will be resumed tomorrow with a further inquiry into the management of two investment trusts, created by the banking firm of Dillon, Read & Co.

DRUGGISTS WIN U. S. PRAISE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—President Roosevelt today expressed his best wishes to the pharmacists of America, who are celebrating National Pharmacy Week. The message from the President to Herbert R. Mayes, editor of the American Druggist, follows:

"The fundamental responsibility in curative medicine rests largely with the physician and the pharmacist. Springing originally from magic and superstition and surviving the influence of alchemy, modern pharmacy has come to be a specialized calling that has reached the dignity of a true profession.

"The improved standards of pharmacy in recent years, in both producers and professional integrity, merit high commendation. National Pharmacy Week, to be observed this year from October 9 to October 14, is a fitting time to extend the appreciation and good wishes of the nation to the druggists of our country, who play so important a part in the healing art."

Fight Move to Lift Prison Goods Ban

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Attorney General William A. Schnader, of Pennsylvania, urged the Supreme Court today to refuse to entertain proceedings which Alabama seeks to bring to challenge validity of laws of the United States and 19 states restricting or prohibiting the sale of prison-made goods.

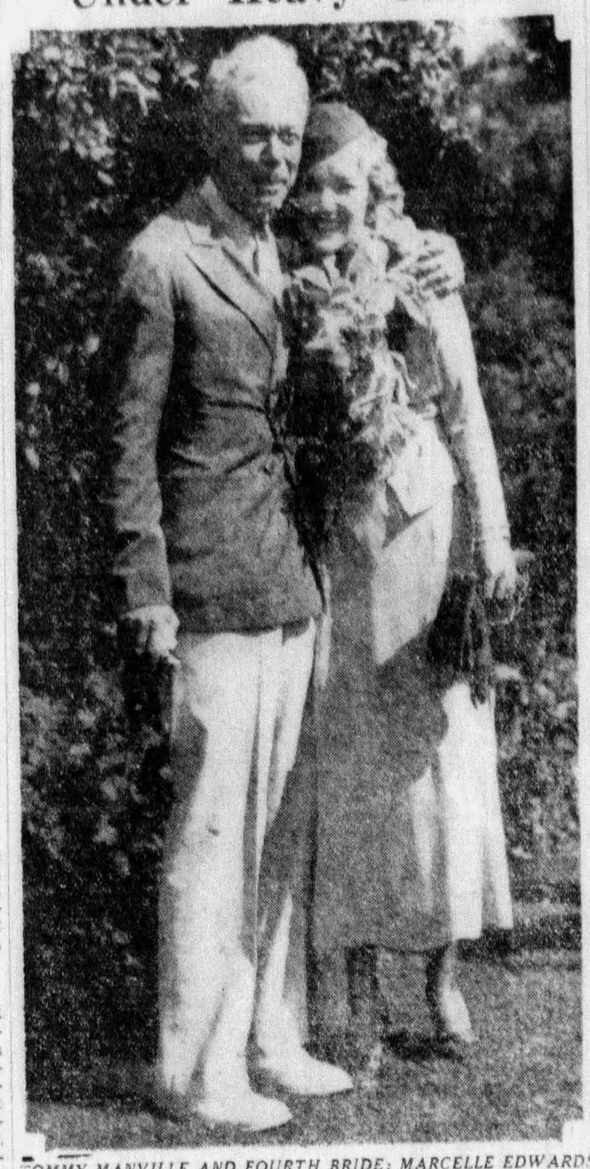
Alabama contended the laws would materially reduce its revenue from the manufacture of such goods but Pennsylvania insisted the question which Alabama sought to raise were not within the jurisdiction of the court.

Parochial Schools To Close Thursday

Children attending the parochial schools of the Pittsburgh diocese will have a holiday Thursday, Columbus Day, the Rev. Paul F. Campbell, superintendent, announced today.

Exercises observing the anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America will be held in the 230 parish schools Wednesday. The holiday applies to all students in parochial schools in the 10 Pennsylvania counties.

Under Heavy Guard



TOMMY MANVILLE AND FOURTH BRIDE: MARCELLE EDWARDS

The newlywed Manvilles, today under heavy guard at New Rochelle, N. Y., as they await the return of Mrs. Clara Manville from Europe to meet her new daughter-in-law. Folks were surprised at the wedding because thrice-divorced Tommy has been seen 'round with Claire Windsor, Neva Lynn and Nina Pierson at different times. ASBESTOS HEIR WEDS SHOWGIRL

AUTHOR TELLS STRIKE REMEDY

International News Service.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Under heavy guard, Tommy Manville, Jr., heir to the asbestos millions and veteran matrimonal adventurer, was honeymooning today with his bride, the former Marcelle Edwards.

Broadway's perennial playboy and the blonde showgirl were married in a surprise ceremony yesterday at Greenwich, Conn., and immediately hurried to the Manville estate here to await return of Manville's mother, Mrs. Clara Manville, from Europe this week.

After "mother meets her new daughter-in-law," Manville explained, the couple will probably make a wedding cruise on the palatial Manville yacht.

Marriage of the pair left three presumably broken hearts in New York's white light sector.

At various times during the summer, Claire Windsor, screen actress; Nina Pierson, former Follies girl, and Neva Lyon, also of the stage, had announced their impending weddings to Manville, who didn't say yes and didn't say no.

Strikes cannot be legislated from existence regardless of the NRA program but only eliminated by mutual understanding and confidence between employers and workers, according to Whiting Williams, author and lecturer on human relations.

Questioned as to the inroad Communists might be making through local strikes, the author, who has donned overalls and worked side by side with laborers, replied:

"They are not dangerous. Communists are opportunists. They step in where there is trouble but the American workman is too solid a citizen to become revolutionary in thought. Proper leadership in labor unions is the vital need."

Williams spoke on "Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini or Roosevelt—Which Has the Answer?" before the luncheon club.

Divides His Estate Between Daughters

The will of William Reed, of McKeesport, filed today, provided that the estate, estimated at $40,000, be distributed to his two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Perkins and Mrs. Blanche G. Beatty, with P. C. Baird executor.

HOPE FOR ARMS CUT RENEWED AT PARLEY

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—The Geneva Disarmament Conference will continue its efforts to achieve limitation of armaments despite German demands for equality which threatened to cause abrupt adjournment.

This decision was announced today after Dr. Rudolf Nadolny, German delegate in a conciliatory speech, informed the steering committee his government was eager to see the conference proceed upon the basis of the MacDonald plan for progressive reduction in military forces.

The steering committee then adjourned until Saturday when arrangements will be made for resumption of arms discussions by the general commission of the conference.

Meanwhile, private conversations will proceed among delegates of the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy to keep the conference alive.

IL DUCE GUARDS AGAINST NAZIS

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—As a warning to the "Drang Nach Sueden" (southward urge) of Hitlerism and as evidence that he does not envisage having Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, for a neighbor, Premier Mussolini, of Italy, today has unobtrusively tripled the Italian military forces in the Brenner Pass of the Alps and in the former Austrian Tyrol.

Just as unobtrusively, Il Duce has now moved up military headquarters for that region from Verona to Bolzano, close to the Austrian border.

Thus, from behind the curtained stage of secret diplomacy and European intrigues, there is emerging more and more evidence of increasing rivalry, mutual suspicion and what some Germans even term jealousy, between Hitler and Mussolini.

Hitler the other day assured Mussolini he has no intention of infringing on the independence of other countries. Mussolini's own newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, retorted that those countries would have preferred that such a declaration come publicly from a minister responsible for German foreign policy.

MILITANT REICH ROUSES FRENCH

International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Distrust of German policy stood out today as the chief French reaction to demands of the Hitler government for armament equality.

With the Disarmament Conference Steering Committee resuming its efforts in Geneva, and the British cabinet meeting in London for the reported purpose of rejecting the German demands, Premier Daladier stressed in a speech at Vichy that France will not disarm unless she receives international guarantees of security.

NAZI TROOPERS PLEDGE TO DIE

International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—A roaring shout of "yes" still echoed through the Reich today, expressing the willingness of 84,000 Silesian storm troopers to die for Nazi Germany.

The answer was made by the storm troopers at a giant demonstration at Breslau, where they were asked by Col. Ernst Roehm, chief of the stormers:

"Comrades, are you prepared to give your lives for the German people?"

The city was the scene of a monster military spectacle as the troopers paraded before Roehm, former Prince August Wilhelm and Reichswehr and police officers.

LIBERIA INSISTS LOAN FORCED

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, the American representative, today described as inaccurate, misleading and without foundation Liberian claims before a committee of the League of Nations that an American finance corporation loan had been forced on the country and that the funds were misspent by a financial adviser.

(Liberia has defaulted on loans made to that country by the Finance Corporation of America, a Firestone affiliate.)

The Liberian representative, however, re-asserted there had been a maladministration of the funds by the American adviser and said that an experts' report had confirmed this.

Previously telegrams were read saying 30 natives had been killed in a recent resumption of fighting between Liberian tribes as the committee began study of a league plan for assisting the Liberian government in internal rehabilitation.

SUB EXPLOSION KILLS 2, HURTS 4

CAMPBELTOWN HARBOR, Scotland, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—An investigation proceeded today into an explosion and fire in the submarine L-26 which caused two deaths and serious injuries to 14.

This was the worst British naval accident since January, 1932, when the submarine M-2 sank off Portland with seven officers and 53 men. The cause of that disaster continues a mystery and costly efforts to raise the hull have been baffled by the currents and depth.

The L-26, a sister ship of the L-24, which was rammed off Portland in 1924 by a warship with the loss of 43 lives, was about to go to the autumn maneuvers after being grounded five hours on the rocks at Kintyre Peninsula.

Under its own power and apparently in good shape, the L-26 was refloated from the rocks and proceeded here. The blast occurred yesterday and was due, officers believed, to water reaching the batteries, which were being recharged, through a hole in the hull.

Austrian Guards, Nazis Clash, 1 Dies

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Flaming swastikas on mountainsides near Mayerhofen had a fatal aftermath early today when the Nazis who lighted them clashed on the top of a cliff with home guardsmen who were assisting armed policemen in rounding up the Nazis.

Nazi 'Mercy Killing' Proposal Denounced

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Prominent members of the clergy, the bar, the medical profession, and an outstanding penologist had expressed disapproval today of the Nazi government's plan to end the suffering of incurable patients by putting them to death.

As announced in Berlin Saturday, the ministry of justice proposed:

"It shall be made possible for physicians to end the tortures of incurable patients, upon request, in the interests of true humanity."

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church and president of the Federation of Churches, said last night the design of the proposal "may seem humane, but the application of it would be fraught with numerous dangers, which would have to be very carefully safeguarded." He added:

"There is a great question in my mind as to whether the Christian code of conduct permits the taking of life in any circumstances."

Dr. William A. White, superintendent of St. Elizabeth Hospital in Washington and a nationally known psychiatrist, said:

"I think the medical profession in this country is united against that sort of thing."

Samuel S. Leibowitz, noted crime lawyer, said the measure would "violate every rule of religious conduct."

BRITISH OPPOSE REICH ARMS BID

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The British cabinet, meeting today prior to Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon's return to disarmament meetings at Geneva, will reject Germany's new bid for equality of armaments, it is stated in high authoritative quarters.

The German bid, expressed in a verbal communication last week, was for the right to possess immediately samples of every type of war weapon permitted to other powers at the end of the two four-year phases of the disarmament convention now under discussion at Geneva.

Britain and France fear that to permit Germany to have sample arms immediately would enable the Reich to build up factories and machinery for large scale production of arms, and that even with international supervision, Germany would be encouraged to secret rearming and that the Allies would be too late to put an effective end to such secret rearming before Germany reached a point where she could successfully defy the western powers.

Writer Says Germany Makes Poison Gas

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(Universal.)—Preparations for poison-gas warfare on an unparalleled scale is being rapidly pushed in Germany, Arthur J. Gillian, general secretary of the Chemical Workers' Union, declared today.

Writing in the Sunday Referee, Gillian states that a secret chain of arsenals in Germany is working on experiments with arsenical gases which burn the body, and which no gas mask known can withstand.

Dollfuss to Ignore Assassin's Attack

VIENNA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, in a talk to villagers at Kirnberg an der Mank, where he formerly lived, said yesterday there will be no campaign of revenge for the attempt to assassinate him last week in Vienna.

The Chancellor, who is spending the week-end in the country, emphasized that while he intends ruthlessly to preserve peace and order in Austria, "there will be no feeling of revenge involved."

JEWISH RELIEF PLAN ACCEPTED

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—German delegates agreed today that the League of Nations Council be authorized to appoint a high commissioner to deal with Jewish refugees as a social problem.

The condition was made, however, that the commissioner must not function under the aegis of the league. A new committee was formed to work out a formula which Germany could accept.

One proposal is that the Council name a governing body to supervise funds which private organizations, and perhaps governments, may contribute to the relief movement.

114 Houses Burn, 100 Peasants Held

NAGYBATOR, Hungary, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—For burning 114 of this village's 150 houses in order to milk fire insurance companies, more than 100 peasants of the township of 731 inhabitants are under arrest. Their defense was:

"Hard times! We can't sell our wheat."

WISE ATTACKS HITLER REGIME

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, in the first of a series of sermons on Hitlerism before the free synagogue in Carnegie Hall yesterday, called the so-called Hitler "regime" a "menace already risen" against the peace of the world. He said:

"Another reign of terror is upon the world today. It has embodied itself in an attack not merely upon Jewry in Germany but upon world Jewry.

"It would be the greatest of mistakes, however, to think that Hitlerism is simply a form of anti-Semitism. No. Hitlerism is a movement of black reaction, against liberalism, internationalism and peace. The persecution of the Jews is the only promise the Hitler regime could fulfill to the German people."

Referring to what he said was the charge that the Communists in Germany were all Jews, Dr. Wise said:

"At the last election the Communists got 6,000,000 votes. There are only 600,000 Jews in Germany."

The convention will open with a devotional service led by the Rev. John E. Slater tomorrow at 2 p. m., following a meeting of the executive committee.

Speakers at the afternoon sessions will be the Rev. A. W. Steinfurth, pastor of Calvary; the Rev. J. J. Myers, missionary superintendent of the Pittsburgh Synod; the Rev. C. E. Krumbholz, of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society of Pittsburgh; the Rev. Dan B. Bravin, of the Jewish Mission; Miss Ruth Christensen, Jewish parish worker, and Miss Thelma Greenert, Spring Garden parish worker. Miss Mary Heltibridle, missionary from Japan, will speak tomorrow night.

Officers will be elected Wednesday morning. A banquet will precede the evening session at which Miss Flora Prince, president of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Lutheran Church of America, will be the principal speaker.

Installation of officers will mark the closing session Thursday morning. Mrs. H. C. Reller, president, will be chairman of the convention.

SPIRITUALISTS OPEN SESSIONS

Public sessions will be a feature of the annual convention of the National Spiritualist Association which begins next Monday night at Hotel William Penn and will continue through the week.

Rev. Whitwell.

Nationally known speakers and mediums will attend the convention. The public sessions will be held nightly beginning Tuesday. Among speakers will be the national president, the Rev. Joseph P. Whitwell, of St. Paul, Minn.; vice-president, the Rev. Thomas Grimshaw, Columbus, and Mrs. Elizabeth Harlowe Goetz, the latter two internationally known.

Message bearers at the public sessions will include the Rev. Maggie Waite, of Chicago, and T. John Kelly, Buffalo.

The convention formally opens Monday night, when the annual banquet will be held. The Rev. C. V. Morrow, of Pittsburgh and president of the Pennsylvania State Spiritualistic Association, will respond to an address of welcome from a city official. Symposiums on spiritual healing, memorial and lyceum are included in the business sessions.

IRON AND STEEL GROUP TO MEET

National experts will address the annual convention of the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers which opens a three-day session October 17, in the Hotel William Penn.

Twenty-two technical meetings will be held, it was announced by Managing Director John F. Kelly. The association's national offices are in Pittsburgh. The meetings will be held simultaneously by the mechanical, electrical, lubrication and construction divisions.

Awarding of prizes in the national contest conducted by the association to find new uses for steel will be made at a formal reception closing the convention.

An inspection trip to two plants will be made by bus on the second day. Visits will be made to the Allegheny Steel Company plant, Brackenridge, and the American Sheet and Tin Plate plant, Vandergrift. Throughout the convention an iron and steel exposition will feature latest developments in the industry.

Stamp on Biscuit Starts Cafe Riot

PARIS, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Uproar ensued at the Valenciennes Railway Station when a customer in the buffet asserted the biscuits he was eating were stamped "Hindenberg."

The crowd pulled down the trays and trampled them on the ground until the police rushed in. The manager sued the customer for the lost case of biscuits. In court, the judge reserved his finding after the manager produced samples of the biscuits. All were stamped:

"Made in Edinburgh."

Beaver Widow Sues Township Officials

BEAVER, Pa., Oct. 9.—Mrs. Anna Fiejdasz, Raccoon Township, has filed suit against Raccoon Township for $50,000 damages in the death of her husband, Wojcie. It is claimed the supervisors failed to place guard rails along a road through which a truck, driven by her husband, plunged. He was killed.

Unemployed Meet Slated Wednesday

A meeting of the Unemployed Citizens League, Local 15, will be held at the McCleary School, McCandless and Holmes streets, Wednesday at 7:45 p. m.

The Opulence of the New Fashions Requires Fabrics with the Elegance of Velvet

The versatility of velvet will be demonstrated by the dresses of all types displayed in our department by living models.

Always a fall favorite . . . but this season, with the sumptuous, the luxurious, the glamorous ruling the world of fashion, there's no fabric to reach the heights so rapidly as velvet. We anticipated this tremendous vogue for velvet . . . and bought velvets in every new guise . . . for every type of costume. And best of all, home dressmakers (and their ranks are increasing daily!) can make these high style dresses and suits so inexpensively. Here are the varieties . . . see them, and plan to have the most luxurious wardrobe of your life this season . . . at small expense.

Cote Diva—A high lustre velvet with a ribbed weave suggestive of bengaline. $4.50 Yard.

Brocaded Velvets—Varied patterns in various colors—for blouses and evening frocks. $4.50 Yard.

Frosted Velvet—A long pile velvet with a delightful frosty high-light. For afternoon or evening. $5.25 Yard.

Velours non Coupe—The season's new uncut velvet, with a different texture. $6.50 Yard.

Dull Velvet—The same softness but with a dulled surface that's so flattering in afternoon and evening gowns. $6.50 Yard.

A Feature—The Most Popular

Transparent Velvet

$2.95 yard

The ideal weight for afternoon and evening dresses . . . soft, clinging and deep piled. New Sheer Wools Sing a Song of Color!

These colors, softened by the haze of fuzzy rabbit-hair and silvered woolens, give a lot of charm to a new group of women's Tailor-Type dresses . . . And the two frocks sketched are shining examples of their interesting styles—the one a "young" version of the popular coat dress, with huge scarf of necktie silk; and the other a bridge type, with sleeves, back yoke and "flowers" of two-tone wool lace.

The fabrics strike a new note of softness, so they can be worn comfortably by women who have always been wool-shy.

KEEP RUM, BEER APART, URGES ROCKEFELLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—A recommendation that beer and wine be made more easily attainable than distilled liquors and be sold in different places was made yesterday in a new section of the Rockefeller report on liquor control.

If this is done, the report said, "there is reasonable ground to expect that the taste of those who wish to drink will be diverted to the lighter and less harmful beverages."

"The testimony is almost unanimous that there has been no increase in drunkenness, no disorder, no increased resort to illicit hard liquor.

"The evidence, as we have found it, is all the other way. Bootleggers have lost part of their patronage; in some places arrests for drunkenness have positively declined.

"The continued, unrestricted sale of beer having an alcoholic content of not more than 3.2 per cent is clearly the part of wisdom. Wines—naturally fermented—not in excess of, say, 10 to 12 per cent, should be sold by the bottle for off-premises consumption as freely as 3.2 per cent beer.

"But as compared with 3.2 per cent beer, a greater measure of restriction should govern the sale of wine for on-premises consumption."

Three classes of permits for the sale of beer and wine were recommended:

"A—Permits to sell 3.2 per cent beer and naturally fermented wines not in excess of 10 to 12 per cent by the bottle for off-premises consumption.

"B—Permits to sell 3.2 per cent beer for on-premises consumption with or without meals.

"C—Permits for sale of 3.2 per cent beer and natural wines at hotels, restaurants or clubs for consumption on the premises with meals."

"To many people this liberal policy in relation to the control of beers and wines may seem a betrayal of the cause of temperance. With them no compromise with liquor in any form is possible, and the world they desire is a world in which alcoholic beverages are not consumed at all.

"Today we are confronted with practical realities. It is not a question of the kind of world we might prefer; it is a question of what we can achieve in the kind of world we have.

"In our opinion, there is but one major proposition to be faced in relation to alcohol: Granting that millions of our people will not drink at all, how can the cause of temperance best be served among those who choose to drink?"

The study, sponsored by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and conducted by Raymond B. Fosdick and Albert L. Scott, added:

"It is true that even the heaviest spirits may be consumed in such moderation as to avoid injurious consequences, and that it is possible to overindulge in wine or beer. But the experience and common sense of mankind have always recognized the difference between the two—if legislators have not."

Abstinence Held True Answer to 'Drink Evil'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Abstinence instead of temperance was proposed yesterday as the answer to "the drink evil" in a letter to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., made public by Mrs. William Tilton, chairman of the Women's National Committee for Education Against Alcohol.

Commenting on a statement by Rockefeller, in which he was quoted as urging temperance, Mrs. Tilton said a campaign for moderation made "no headway" after the Revolutionary War and that the campaign for total abstinence was pushed. She said:

"Let us believe in our nation and call, not for the second best, temperance, but for the safer, higher goal, abstinence. High failure really gets a nation farther in the end than cheap success.

"This country is momentarily in a character break-down, caused mainly by war, depression and perhaps by too much big-city-mindedness let loose daily over the country by the city press and radio. But the great country as a whole, outside the few big centers, will rediscover its virility and overcome present character collapse."

Brewers to Reward Racket Witnesses

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The Brewers' Board of Trade, which recently invited the public to co-operate in the quelling of beer racketeering, today was offering a $5,000 reward for the first conviction.

In a newspaper advertisement, the brewers said they had decided to offer the reward "because witnesses have failed to identify persons gathered in by the police" with the result that no convictions have been obtained.

Drys Flay Repeal As Recovery Aid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The National Prohibtion Emergency Committee, in a statement yesterday, criticized "the inclusion of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment as part of the national recovery program" as an attempt "to bring our government into partnership with an immoral traffic."

MARTIN WARNS G. O. P. VOTERS

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 9.—A warning that Republicans who vote the Democratic or Independent tickets in November run the risk of being challenged at the spring primary election came from Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, today with an appeal for a straight Republican ticket vote this fall.

In a letter to chairmen of Republican county and city committees, Martin wrote:

"I wish you would make plain that only those who vote for a majority of candidates on the Republican ticket can vote as Republicans at the 1934 primary, when we will nominate candidates for United States Senator, state offices, Congress, and the General Assembly.

"Tell them the way to make sure is to vote the straight Republican ticket on November 7."

REPEAL APPALLS MRS. BOOLE

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, world's and national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, told the state W. C. T. U. convention here last night that repeal of the prohibition law would bring an "appalling situation," because under new conditions both men and women would drink, whereas before prohibition "men were mostly the victims."

She said:

"The effects of alcohol cannot be repealed, and the children will be the sufferers. The liquor traffic cannot exist without customers, and the customers of the next generation must be drawn from the youth of today."

Attacking the honesty of the repeal vote in this state, she referred to the large number of blank and void ballots reported from some counties, while in 23 counties, she said, there were neither blank nor void ballots.

WOMEN DEPART ON REPEAL TREK

The motor caravan carried 20 outstanding local women leaders in the movement under the chairmanship of Mrs. Joseph Dilworth.

Other groups started today from Scranton and Philadelphia. Riding with the Pittsburgh delegation was Mrs. Marion Booth Kelley, of New York, who will address the convention.

DAVIS LIKELY TO TAKE STAND IN TRIAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The fourth and probably final week of the lottery trial by a Federal jury of United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, opened today with the possibility that the former cabinet officer might take the witness stand.

A Long Island undertaker testified today that "whatever Jim Davis took out of the Moose, he put twice as much back." The testimony was given by William Nast, a supreme councillor of the Loyal Order of Moose, after he had been cross-examined at length about Davis' interest in the Moose Organization Department.

The government contends that Davis owned this branch of the Moose and therefore participated in profits from alleged lotteries in 1930 and 1931. Nast also was questioned about a gift of $125,000 in 1931 to the department from the Supreme Lodge.

He said the Supreme Council was told that "Davis didn't want a penny of the money." It was to go to the Organization Department, he said, to reimburse it for money spent over a number of years.

Louis Mead Treadwell, Assistant United States Attorney, asked Nast if he knew how much money Davis took from the Moose for organization work every year.

Nast said that he didn't, but he shook a finger at Treadwell and shouted:

"Whatever he took out, he put twice as much back. Take Brooklyn lodge alone, he gave it $20,000. He saved many another, too."

The defense contends that Davis' organization contract was assigned to Joseph Jenkins and Fred W. Jones in August, 1930. Nast testified that the matter of the assignment was discussed at a meeting of the Supreme Council at Sharon, Pa. He said:

"It was like a funeral when we heard he'd given up the work."

Supreme Court Denies Appeals of Three

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Conrad H. Mann, Bernard C. McGuire and Frank E. Hering, convicted in Federal Court in New York for participation in the alleged Moose lottery which involved Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, today lost appeals to the Supreme Court for review.

Mann was sentenced to 15 months in prison and fined $10,000. McGuire was sentenced to a year and a day and fined $10,000, and Hering to four months and a fine of $3,000. Conviction was reversed on one count of the indictment in the Circuit Court.

Postoffice Looted At Marienville

MARIENVILLE, Pa., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The postoffice was robbed of registered mail and stamps over the week-end. The amount of the loot has not been determined, but it included $1,000 in funds of the Gold Standard National Bank.

STATE WORKS DELAY LEADS TO SQUALL

HARRISBURG, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—A renewal of the 1931-33 legislative conflict over Gov. Pinchot's highway policies is set for the coming special session of the General Assembly, with Republican organization leaders charging the administration is holding up federal aid construction work for political purposes.

Foes of the Governor assert he is delaying the use of Pennsylvania's $18,891,000 share of federal funds in order to concentrate highway work relief next spring when he runs for a seat in the United States Senate.

The charges, denied by State Highway Department officials, have re-echoed in Washington where Harold L. Ickes, United States Secretary of Interior and close friend of Pinchot, is urging more speed in Pennsylvania road work.

ICKES ASKS SPEED

Pointing out that the state has received approval for use of only $2,196,000 of its $81,891,000 grant, Secretary Ickes has asked Pinchot to advise him what the Governor can do "to expedite this important work so that more men can be put to work as soon as possible."

Meanwhile, Republican organization leaders continue to urge a legislative investigation of the new developments in the Highway Department. Representative Morton L. Witkin, Philadelphia, a dominant figure in the 1931 inquiry, is pressing for a resumption of the investigation.

DENIAL BY GOVERNOR

Both the Governor and State Highway Department officials deny the administration is holding up the federal aid program. The Governor asserts that plans for all roads on the federal aid system and in cities and boroughs have been sent to Washington for approval.

He reports he is waiting for Secretary Ickes' final word on whether the state can build secondary and feeder roads without advance surveys. Pinchot wants to build these roads without detailed surveys, following the policy used in rural road work.

Highway Department officials take the same stand, asserting Pennsylvania, in recent years, has been among the first states to finish federal aid programs and will maintain that record in using the current $18,891,000.

World 'Sin-Ridden,' Boy Preacher Says

Sin was blamed for the troubles of the world by Junior Lehman, 19-year-old evangelist, last night, speaking to a capacity congregation in Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street. He said:

"You can give all the economic, social, financial, national, international and scientific explanations you want, but there is only one reason, and that is sin. This world is sinridden. What this nation, what this world needs today is to get out of its sin and get right with God."

Intrepid Sleuth Gets Man, But Mud Gets Both

HADDONFIELD, N. J., Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Patrolman Earl Fowler got his man. But it took the rest of the police force to get Patrolman Fowler.

The prisoner, Clarence Lake, charged with threatening a neighbor with a pistol, fled into a swamp at the edge of the town. Fowler plunged in and seized him.

Captor and prisoner were stuck in the mud to their waists. They were still going down an hour later when blasts of Fowler's whistle brought the rest of the force to the rescue.

M'CLURE JURY TOLD OF RING

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The trial of State Senator John J. McClure and 78 others charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law entered its sixth day today with the government's first witness adding to the list of 34 defendants whom he had previously involved.

William J. Falls, former Chichester Township constable, on the stand for the third day, listed places in Delaware County where he said the prohibition law was violated, and named alleged proprietors.

Falls previously had testified he was paid a weekly fee by John J. Ryan, a political figure, for 'staying on the right side of the fence;" that police furnished protection for oil tankers while unloading whisky smuggled in from "run row" and of a "bootleggers' union" organized to restrict the liquor supply in the county.

Five Hurt as Autos Crash in Homewood

Fred R. Smith, 37, of 507 Warsaw street, an inspector for the Duquesne Light Company, and four other persons were injured early today in a collision of automobiles at Penn and Dallas avenues. The others injured were Allen Rice, 23, and his wife, Lois, 21, of 822 Lasalle street; Jeff T. May, 25, of 95 Hill street, Carnegie, and Marjorie Schoff, 25, of 1425 Dixon street.

'DATE' TRAPS 3 FUGITIVES

ARNOLD, Pa., Oct. 9.—If three youths had been a bit more careful about their trysting place last night, their outlook today might have been a trifle brighter.

The trio, described by police as fugitives from the National Training School at Washington, walked into the borough hall last night and asked permission to wait for their girl friends.

Sergt. Charles Higgins recognized them from a description broadcast last week by the reformatory. They gave their names as Howard Plummer, 17; Joseph Mulbey, 17, and Paul Mills, 19, all of Washington.

PURE AIR DRIVE SUCCESS SEEN

Complete success of the movement for pure air in American cities was predicted today by H. B. Meller and L. B. Sisson, of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

Declaring that installation of newer types of combustion equipment will aid materially in lifting industrial activity to capacity, Meller and Sisson, who are investigating current scientific and industrial activities toward smoke abatement, in a joint statement said:

"Scientific progress toward the smokeless and dustless operation of industrial and commercial power and heating plants is going forward at the fastest rate in history."

Manufacturers of dust collection equipment, if given the opportunity, will be able to assure at least 90 per cent separation shortly, they pointed out. The cost of the equipment will range from one to five per cent of the cost of the plant.

Democrats to Hold Meetings Tonight

Democratic meetings will be held tonight at the Baxter High School, Brushton avenue; the Lockhart School, 851 Lockhart street, and at Homewood avenue and Fleury way, Homewood. Speakers will be Thomas J. Gallagher, candidate for Council; Dr. Vincent L. Marino, candidate for Coroner; James L. O'Toole, Jr., candidate for judge of County Court; William A. Stewart, William Farnsworth, Louis Laffa and F. DiCaralomo.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

With so many Junior Patrols being formed, we've been wondering just what kind of programs you fellows have at your meetings. You know if there's lots of fun, you'll be sure to be having everyone in the block asking to join your chapter.

There are so many things you can do on meeting nights. Put on stunts, have shows, make all sorts of things. It isn't too early to start planning a Halloween party, either. Why not make your own costumes this year and have the whole club join in the community parade?

You could even have a Junior Patrol party. Dress like someone in the comics—just imagine being Snuggins or Junior!

How about it, members? Send in your ideas, so we can know what everyone's doing.

"I do want to be a member of your Junior Patrol and I will promise that I will do everything that is on the pledge card. Some little boy is living in my house and I am going to get him to join. I know he will keep the pledge, too."

That's the spirit, Dorothy. We're sure you're going to live up to the pledge—and the little boy as well. Now, why not get the little boys and girls next door and across the street to join, too? Then write in and tell us all about it.

When you send in your pledges, fellows, remember what you learned in school and write neatly. You don't want your name misspelled in the Junior Patrol Membership list, do you? That would never do.

And don't forget we'll be expecting to hear from you all about what you're doing.

Girl Wants to Wed and Help Husband Gain Success

Or should she have the right to work by his side, as his wife, through the hard, lean years?

And is a man stupid and selfish if he won't marry a girl until he can do it with a flourish?

Or is he considerate and chivalrous?

Jim knew all the answers—or thought he did. He was 100 per cent for being a bachelor until he could tackle matrimony in A Big Way. And he plainly felt that the ladies should appreciate him for his consideration.

But now comes Mickey, and says she—

Dear Elsie:

I'm going to tell Jim and all his tribe just what I think of them, and I certainly hope you print it.

He is making up a grand alibi for himself, isn't he? But if he expects any smart girl to fall for it, he's foolish.

Any real woman would much rather marry the man she loves and work with him than to sit around until she's old, waiting for him to make enough so she can wear diamonds.

And it isn't love that makes a man keep a girl waiting for marriage. It's his own selfishness and conceit. He does not want to face the hardships and sacrifices which marriage without money means.

Even if he has only a small salary, a single man can have a lot of fun on it; but he would have to pinch a lot if he had a wife. So he takes the easiest way, and tries to pretend that he is doing so because he is so big-hearted, whereas actually he is just selfish and cowardly.

And all this Big Talk about "protecting his wife" is just conceit. It is his vanity that is talking; not his generosity. He wants to shine as a big butter and egg man, to impress the lady.

WILL SHARE HARDSHIPS

It's a dangerous game, Jim. The women you'll impress by your show-off record will make mighty poor wives. It's the girl who is willing to be poor with you, not the girl who wants to be rich with you, who is worth marrying. The real woman will want you for yourself, not for your bank roll.

And what will you have to offer a girl besides your stupid money, if you spend your best years piling up a bank roll? Nothing. All the fun and tenderness will have gone out of you. You won't be worth having!

I am engaged now, and both my sweetheart and I believe strongly in what Jim so scornfully refers to as "love in a cottage." My man has just finished a post-graduate course in a leading university, and we are not waiting while he goes on, alone, to climb those heights that Jim dreams of. We will climb together, each helping the other, bearing together any reverses that may come.

EXPECT TROUBLES

We will have each other through all those young and eager years. We don't expect any bed of roses. We know all about reality and hardships. We've both worked hard. But we're ready to face all the hazards—so long as we have each other.

And we will have something that Jim and that unfortunate young woman Jim will finally add to his other self-acquired and self-valued luxuries, will never have—the memory of things met together, and a love that will make life worth living, because it has been knitted together and made richer by sharing struggles. MICKEY.

A grand letter from a grand little girl! Or so it seems to me. But what's your vote?

Do you believe in "love in a cottage?"

Do you think it's best to start poor, and share all the trail together?

'Folly Bank' Good Thing for Everyone, Fay King Believes

THERE IS A THRILL IN THE THOUGHT THAT TOMORROW YOU WILL SHOP FOR YOUR HOBBY
IT IS GOOD FOR THE MIND AND SOUL TO BE A BIT IMPRACTICAL NOW AND THEN FAY KING
"I INTEND TO SPEND EVERY DIME OF THIS FOOLISHLY!"
FOLLY BANK
SAVE FOR SOMETHING YOU DON'T NEED BUT DO WANT

By FAY KING

Everyone should have a folly bank.

A little money saved to spend "foolishly."

Buying necessities is a dull duty. We never lie awake thrilled at the thought that in the morning we must run out to buy a new coffee pot and six bars of laundry soap.

But we do lie awake and are thrilled when we have saved enough to squander on some little luxury we have seen and craved.

This is good for the mind and soul. Man needs more than the bare necessities of life to really live.

He who "never buys what he does not need" may be even duller than Johnny with "all work and no play."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Determine the Cause of Chronic Headache

At some time or other, each of us has suffered from a headache. Yet no one can appreciate the discomfort and distress it is capable of producing unless he is a chronic sufferer from this ailment. It is really amazing how many suffer the miseries of chronic headache. Their number is legion.

Dr. Copeland

Surprisingly few of these victims take the necessary steps to get relief. Indeed, few persons realize that the cause of headache may be found in some part of the body other than the head.

As a rule, the first thing the patient does is to take a patent medicine. Of course, many headache powders relieve the pain, but temporary relief is not a cure. The cause of the headache must be determined and removed if permanent cure is to be expected.

A headache must always be interpreted as a sign of some disorder inside the body. Whenever the human mechanism is disturbed, no matter what its cause, headache is likely to be present as a symptom. It is always found in fevers, infectious diseases, intestinal upsets, and blood and heart disturbances.

Headache in repeated attacks is a danger signal and should never be ignored. It is true that the symptoin may be the passing result of a temporary disturbance. But when the attacks occur periodically, careful investigation is essential to a complete cure.

There is one form of headache which is particularly difficult to cure. It is difficult because it is usually impossible to determine what is really the underlying disorder. I refer to that type of headache called "migraine." This is a distinct variety of headache, and seems to run in families. Though never scientifically proved to be so, it is regarded as an hereditary disability.

The sufferer may be entirely free from pain for some time and then suddenly be stricken with an extremely severe and peristent headache. As a rule, the victim can accurately foretell the time of an attack. Often, too, such an attack may follow some severe emotional or physical strain.

This painful ailment may occur in children as well as adults. Young victims of this disorder are restless, irritable, sensitive and nervous. But they may be given more hope for a complete cure, provided proper and prompt measures of treatment are taken.

A child who suffers from migraine should be given every opportunity to play outdoors in the fresh air and sunlight. He should be encouraged to relax and rest as much as possible. The diet should be simple, wholesome and digestible. Omit from the diet peppers, spices and an excess of salt.

Adults who suffer from this affliction are advised to resort to a meat-free diet. All fried and greasy foods should be avoided. Drink plenty of water and obtain at least eight hours of sleep. A periodic visit to the doctor for a complete physical examination is advisable. The possibility of eye strain must not be forgotten.

Household Hints

A little garlic rubbed over the broiler before the steak is cooked adds a delicious flavor.

Blankets will retain their softness if glycerin is added to the water in which they are washed.

The medicine cabinet in a house where there are little children should be placed so high that they cannot reach it even by standing on a chair. It should have a firm catch which they cannot readily learn to manage.

Madge Receives Expected Call From Philip Veritzen

Hugh Grantland's suggestion was so astonishing to me, albeit so sane, that for a second I could only stare at him. Then as the full flavor of the plan came to me, I clapped my hands in approval.

"How very clever you are!" I exclaimed in genuine approval. "I have a very vivid mental picture of my mother-in-law's face should she find out—as she would—that Mr. Veritzen was calling me concerning a plan of Avis Arlen's to stage a reconciliation scene with Mary. Avis is one of her pet detestations. She almost foams at the mouth whenever the girl is mentioned. And I am not sure just what might be the effect upon her if she discovered that the girl had stolen the letter inviting Noel's father to his marriage."

I put my hand upon the telephone and drew it toward me, but even before I took off the receiver it rang shrilly, and Hugh took the instrument from me in order to answer the call.

"Yes," he said, and then, after a second, "she is right here."

He handed the telephone to me with a whispered comment:

"Your friend at the exchange has even more sense than the amount with which we credited her," he said, and I took over the instrument with a lively curiosity.

"Mrs. Graham?" the pleasant voice of the operator asked, and when I had acknowledged my identity she went on rapidly.

"I have a long distance call for you from New York, a particular persons call, so no one but you will do. I knew that you had just called New York from The Larches, and I thought perhaps you had not yet gone home. 'It won't do any harm to try The Larches,' I said to myself. I hope you don't mind."

"Mind!" I told her warmly. "Instead, I am very grateful. Do you know the name of the person calling?"

"Mr. Veritzen," she said. "Mr. Philip Veritzen. Shall I put him on the wire?"

"Please!" And the next instant the well-known, resonant tones of Noel's father sounded in my ears. But I detected a note in those usually mellow tones which I knew spelled trouble for somebody.

"Mrs. Graham! Is this you?"

"Yes, Mr. Veritzen?"

"Yes, yes," impatiently. "Please do not be annoyed if I question you rather strenuously, but I have a nasty mess upon my hands which must be cleared up at once. First, may I ask you, have you seen Miss Avis Arlen today?"

"Why, yes," I told him. "I left her only a couple of hours ago."

"Where did you see her?"

"At the railroad station at Patchogue." If he were going to cross-examine me as if I were a witness in a criminal trial, I told myself hotly, I would give him as much trouble as possible.

"Whose suggestion was it that you meet there?"

"Mine."

"May I ask why?" The voice icy now.

"Because I did not wish her to come to the farm, as she proposed doing." My own voice also held the suggestion of icicles in the offing.

"Did she give any explanation of why she wanted to come to the farm?"

"Not when she telephoned to make the appointment," I told him truthfully. "She just said that it was most necessary that she see me, and that she would like to come to the farm, returning tonight, as she had to be at work in the morning."

"Did she sound as if she were frightened?"

"Oh, no, indeed!" I fibbed promptly. "She sounded a little upset, but that was explained by what she told me when I met her at Patchogue."

"Why did you not permit her to come to the farm?"

"Because I did not wish to have Mary upset upon the eve of her wedding," I returned coolly. "She and Miss Arlen loathe each other. I did not wish them to have an interview unless I knew what it was all about."

"Will you please tell me what she told you when you saw her at Patchogue?"

With a prayer that Avis Arlen's memory would gibe with mine, I gave him the alibi which we had prepared for the girl.

"Mrs. Graham, you are the Cleverest woman I know. May I see you tonight, if I motor out now?"

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Pseudo-Elimination Trap Play

Many players are familiar with the fundamental principle of the "elimination play." They know fully the danger of leading a suit of which both Declarer and Dummy are void, affording a discard to one hand and a ruff to the other.

It is unfortunate that they do not delve further into the variations of this play, and discover that there is such a thing as a "pseudo-elimination," which has all the earmarks of the true forced lead play except that Declarer has one losing trick too many.

In the following hand Mr. M. Elis, of New York City, established a pseudo-elimination position, and the West player, who did not stop long enough to count Mr. Elis' hand, fell into the trap.

East, Dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
			Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
6 ♠ (1)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A gambling bid, since North has shown no strength other than distribution favorable to a spade contract.

West opened the club King, which South ruffed. The spade Ace was now led, and disclosed the fact that West had a good spade trick. Mr. Elis, therefore, proceeded to strip his and Dummy's hands of hearts and clubs by a cross-ruff, and then threw West into the lead with the spade King.

West, who had been thoroughly coached in the dangers of splitting the adversaries' trumps, almost triumphantly led a small diamond into Mr. Elis' A-K-J, nor would any argument convince him that he could have foreseen the disastrous results of that play. His error was in not remembering that the North and South hands must hold four diamonds each, and that though by a ruff and discard one hand could reduce this to three, his Queen twice guarded must still win the setting trick. The contract should have been defeated, but one of the things a good player often does is to create opportunities for the opponents to err, and this Mr. Elis did very cleverly.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Party Call

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know if it is not good form, to call on a hostess soon after you have been her luncheon guest, and entertained during the afternoon? A.

This call on your hostess, after a party that she has given, is in excellent form, and a very gracious thing to do. True it is that nowadays the "party call" isn't given the charming and formal attention that it used to have, but it is still a delightful thing to do.

At a Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be proper at the dinner table for the hostess to begin eating, or should this privilege be left to the guest of honor? READER.

If the dinner is small, the hostess usually indicates the time to begin the course, but when the dinner is a large one, usually the guests begin casually, when they have been served with one or two of the food items of the course.

EASY Electric Pump

a modern convenience you should have on the washer you buy. . .

BEFORE Easy Engineers devised the Easy Electric Pump for your convenience, there were only three ways to empty the old-fashioned washer—each of the three laborious, unsanitary—or both!

1. It was necessary to roll the heavy, water-laden washer across to the floor drain, bend over and open the drain valve, wait until the water had run out, then wheel it back again. Hard work!
2. If the casters rusted and made it impossible to roll the washer, the water could be drained out on the floor and permitted to find its own way to the drain. Sloppy floors, wet feet!
3. You could drain the water in a pail, lift the pail and dump it in sink or drain. Back-breaking labor!

All this is ended with the Easy Electric Pump. All you do is touch a lever, and the new Easy empties itself into sink or set tubs. No water to lift or carry—No wet feet or messy floors.

RECIPES SPUR TO HUSBAND'S APPETITE

As a rule the husband is the "head" of the family but when it comes to the family meals, and the food served, the wife usually takes that title. Here's a little conversation reported to the contest editor of the Sun-Telegraph. The husband has just come home to dinner and remarked to his wife:

"I am unusually hungry today. I hope you have something good to eat."

"Why unusually hungry?" asks the wife.

And he replied: "Well, I have been reading the prize recipes in the Prudence Penny contest. They are in today's Sun-Telegraph and they made me hungry."

And the wife replied: "Show them to me. I can't seem to find anything really new to put on the table. These recipes may be just what I need."

And this is an instance where the wife was shown the way to serve something different and still appetizing to her "head" of the family. Now she is clipping the prize-winning recipes every day.

This is, perhaps, an experience, with many housewives since the Prudence Penny favorite recipe contest started in the Sun-Telegraph. This newspaper, through this contest, is bringing before the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity new and tested recipes every day.

The Sun-Telegraph is paying $15 daily in cash prizes to get these helpful suggestions for the women who have the daily food problems among their responsibilities. If you have a favorite recipe—one that you are proud of—send it to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. There is a $5 prize and 10 $1 prizes awarded by expert judges every day.

FIVE DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER

MISS HARRIETT FARKAS
2100 Beaver Ave., McKeesport, Pa.
HUNGARIAN "RAGO" SOUP

Three tablespoons fat.
One carrot diced.
Three small stalks celery, diced.
One-half tablespoon onion, chopped fine.
Salt and pepper to taste.
One-half tablespoon parsley chopped fine.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two quarts water.
One small cauliflower.
One teaspoon sugar.

DUMPLINGS

Saute veal in fat and paprika for 10 minutes. Add carrot, celery, onion and seasoning. Keep adding small quantities of water until veal and vegetables are tender. Add parsley, then flour and let flour brown just slightly. Add two quarts water, cauliflower separated into flowerets and sugar. When cauliflower is tender, drop tiny dumplings into soup and boil 15 minutes longer. Serves six.

DUMPLINGS FOR SOUP

Make a thin batter of:
One-half cup flour.
One whole egg.
Pinch of salt.

Beat well with spoon and drop tiny dumplings from tip of spoon into boiling soup. Dip spoon into soup occasionally to keep batter from sticking to spoon.

PEACH PUDDING

One-quart canned peaches or eight large fresh ones.
Four slices toasted white bread.
One tablespoon butter.
One cup sugar (fresh fruit); one-quarter cup (canned fruit).
Juice of one lemon.
Put peaches thru potato ricer or fruit press. Mix pulp, juice and part of the sugar. Cut bread in any desired shape—squares, cubes, circles, triangles. Put mixture in bottom of baking dish. Lay bread cut-outs on top, dot with butter and sprinkle with sugar. Set baking dish in moderate oven and bake for 15 minutes. Serve warm with whole milk or cold with lemon-flavored whipped cream.

This recipe has possibilities. Marshmallows may be added. Pineapple bits give it a pleasing flavor, too. But the plain Peach Pudding is delicious and economical to prepare—so I'm passing it along to other economy-minded housewives.

MISS E. L. PARKIN,

JELLIED CRANBERRIES

One quart of cranberries.
One pint of cold water.
Boil for five minutes. Strain. Add one pound of granulated sugar. Stir well and set away to cool.

Woman Finds Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I am now forty-six and passing through the Change. I was a terrible sufferer from headaches and giddy spells which lasted two days at a time. I felt as if I had an iron hat on my head. I tried several medicines but felt no better. Then I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and oh joy! the headaches and the hot flushes are gone. You may publish this letter. I hope it will help some one else to use your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Stewart Fookes, Palace Apts., Mineola, L. I., New York.

COLDS

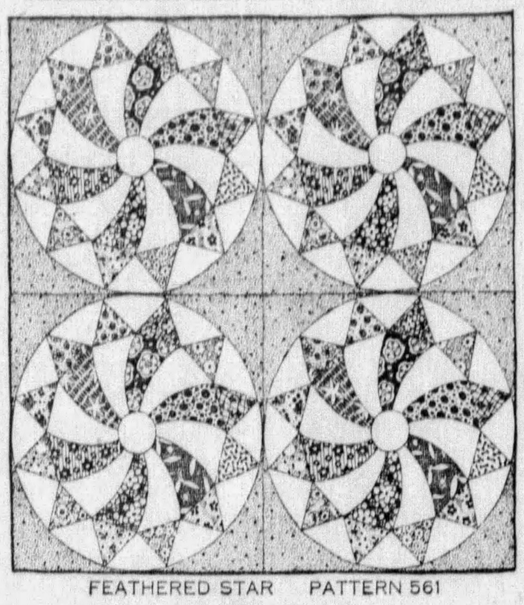
Go Thru 3 Stages

—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal, which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

GAY SCRAP QUILT



FEATHERED STAR PATTERN 561

By LAURA WHEELER

Feathered Star is one of those lovely scrap quilts that is as much a joy to make as it is to possess. It is most effective done in a great variety of scraps, although some people carry it out in a few materials that are repeated throughout. The patches are a good size to handle and are easily joined.

Pattern 561 comes to you with complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

OPTOMETRISTS CONVENE HERE

An educational campaign to acquaint the public with the strain modern living and working conditions exert on eyes, was advocated by Prof. Ralph Barstown, of the University of Rochester, N. Y., at the opening of the thirty-seventh convention of the Pennsylvania Optometric Association in the Hotel Schenley, yesterday.

Business sessions of the convention, which has a registration of about 200 delegates, started today. This morning the visitors were welcomed to the city by Mayor John S. Herron. Responses were made by Dr. Albert M. McConnell for the Pittsburgh branch of the profession, and by Dr. Jesse C. Strauss, Allentown, state president.

Dr. William A. Feinbloom, of New York, inventor of the telescopic lens as an aid to sub-normal vision will speak tonight. Dr. Thomas McBurnie, of Brooklyn, president of the national association, will talk at the state society's banquet tomorrow night.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Your comment that a man isn't really drunk if he can say "linoleum" may be so, but try and get him to say "standard statistics" . . . Lilian Harvey and Willy Fritsch aren't so hot as yesterday . . . Gene Raymond is the current orchid sender . . . I like the song "Dinner at Eight," but I liked it just as much when it was called "One Hour With You" . . . I'm surprised at Mary McCormic Mdivani—her piece in the magazines read pretty sloppy. . . Sheila Barrett may come back from the mid-west a bride—that Cleveland radio critic is so persistent he even followed her to Chicago! . . Tell the dollies in the Joe Cook show they're ruining business at nearby theaters, by not pulling down their undressing room shades.

Madame Marlaine tells me that the ladies will be "interestingly pale" (a la Greta) this winter. And that they'll all go about looking like they are suffering from the vapors or like they're gonna faint any moment . . . Frieda Hempel, the operatic star, by the way, is going into the cosmetic business . . . When you get the chance, tune in on Dick Himber's Orchestra, one of the better ones . . . Or Bing Crosby's version of "Thanks."

I hear that Radio City paid the highest fee yet for first run on the picture "Henry, the Eighth"—$20,000 . . . I took in Night Court. Judge Overton Harris presided and what impressed me most was his human understanding and he isn't the type of magistrate who tries to stifle natural laughter when the testimony compels it . . . Trying to suppress laughter sometimes is so painful. . . Incidentally, you may recommend Soglow's illustrations and the text in "Dumb-belles Lettres"—a very amusing thing . . . You might get a paragraph out of this: No trucks are permitted on fashionable Park avenue—not even furniture moving vans or ice trucks. So, as a result, the icemen who deliver their wares to the few places that haven't electrical refrigeration, have to do it in sedans, loaded to the ceiling with ice blocks. It looked funny to me, at any rate . . . Rud Rennie, the sports writer, had a good simile, to wit: "Pleasant as a recruiting poster and equally deceptive."

Robert Moses was the man the Fusionists really wanted to run for Mayor instead of La Guardia, and who do you think talked him out of it—Al Smith! . . . Al told him he couldn't see his protege join a fight against Tammany Hall . . . Smith's loyalty to Tammany, by the way, is the strangest thing in the political world, since the present heads of it and Al are at odds . . . What I can't understand is this—Smith has been talked of for Mayor for a long time—all the papers suggested him, but nobody has asked him as yet if he wanted to run—funny bunch, them . . . The papers related that Henry Woodward celebrated his 77th birthday on the job the other day, Henry claiming to be the oldest working reporter in the country . . . Mebbeso, but I am told that the distinction should go to Mrs. Mary Lane of Rockville, Mo., still on the job for the Carrolton (Ohio) Chronicle and Mary is 84—so print that please, as we girls must stick together.

This might interest the 2,800 members of the old Morning and Evening Worlds who were stranded when the gazettes were peddled. A prominent writer, an American, but many years in Yurrop, has an angel who wants to start or buy into the local newspaper field . . . N. R. Hoover, of the old World, represents him and is here investigating matters . . . Vicky Wisner, of the Chanin group, is betrothed to K. Karpp and wants the sector to know about it . . . A house guest I know with a passion for statistics tells me that Mrs. Payne Whitney has 104 automobiles (including horse limousines) and employs 42 chauffeurs. In fewer words, she does her part . . . One of the papers stated that George M. Cohan is a Giant rooter. Well, perhaps. He lost $2,000 betting on Washington the first day . . . When the first half of the 2nd game was dull I got a laugh out of a flip-cracking hot-dog vendor, who kept yelling: "Here ya are! Git ya hot franks—better known as Coney Island chicken!"

The deportation boom is on again at the exclusive island of Mallorca, Edward Collier being the most recent to have to pack and git . . . It all started because some New Yorkers went there and tried to out-do De-Maupassant . . . I located Bert Grant for that party—hope he got the job . . . Your crack about scallions for those who try to warble "Last Round Up" and can't was taken to heart by those who offer it. Edward Nell, Jr., did it on the air the other night and grand . . . Joe Morrison, who introduced it with Olsen's crew does it delightfully, .too—but something should be done about not making it stale too soon . . . Maurice Kann offers this fact—John Krimsky, who sponsored "Maedchen in Uniform" and "Emperor Jones," two of the biggest cinema hits, has never been in Hollywood!

The buzz is that Heywood Broun has definitely made up his mind to change jobs, at fancy wages, too . . . I thought you told me he told you he wasn't . . . I found out why Glenda Moorehead is so attractive—her mother (Lola Dallas) was one of the original "Floradora Sextette" ladies, all of whom were brilliant and beautiful, marrying wealthy men . . . No romance with Charles Carlisle, however . . . Molly Peck, the Albertina Rasch dancer, and the hubby are plotting to unravel.

That chap who wrote that he was on the verge of insanity and that he would kill his mother and that Judge was committed to the observation ward yesterday . . . His letter asking that you do something to prevent his acts was disappointing to some of the scribes, who at first thought he was going to get you. So it didn't make much of a story . . . The irony of it is that Hirschfield, with whom you've traded opinions, has his life practically saved by you . . . The gag about the Long Island train conductor who gets a chuckle when he calls out: "New York! New York! That wicked city!" has a sequel. A subway conductor got a laugh with this: "Wall Street, Wall Street—ha, ha, ha!" I caught the Hollywood revue, better than ever—all the girls are lovely . . . And I promised not to tell you the groom's name—but Jane Eichelberger, one of the debs of last year—has been a secret bride for months. Her family tried to have it annulled and all that sortathing, but gave up last week, realizing it must be love.—Your Girl Friday.

Rupert Hughes Writes Kidnaping Story

The wave of kidnaping is responsible for Rupert Hughes' writing of "Mrs. Fane's Baby is Stolen," the original story which Paramount will transfer to the screen with Baby LeRoy in the featured role.

"'Mrs. Fane's Baby is Stolen' is pure fiction," Hughes emphasizes, "but in view of things which are happening in broad daylight, with people disappearing from their homes, their cars and from trains, it is highly plausible."

Clara Bow Hints She'll Soon Quit Screen

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9.—Two months without a job is giving Rex Bell the dithers. With "Hoopla" nearing completion, Clara Bow talks of making a trip, but Rex won't go for fear of missing a film opportunity. This is the first layoff the young western star has had in several years, and he can't even go to the ranch without leaving Clara alone in Hollywood. Reports are very active again that the redhead will make no more pictures after she finishes at Fox. Clara complains that acting has become an effort to her. Despite her youth, she's been in Hollywood for about 11 years, and she says she is willing to give the newcomers a chance.

You've heard, of course, that John Barrymore has become a doting parent. So had the lady who recently questioned him about bathing infants. Arching the Barrymore brows, John replied:

"It's very simple. You put the baby in and, if it turns blue, the water is too cold; if it turns red, it's too hot."

Director Stephen Roberts, who is something of a bibliophile, is crowing about his luck. He went to a Hollywood bookstore and paid $8 for an old history with Abraham Lincoln's name on the fly-leaf. Going home, he ruffled the pages of the tome and out fell a time-yellowed letter.

What a thrill when he read the signature! It was "Charles Dickens" and the letter is an authentic and humorous communication from the English novelist to his plumber.

Van Dyke would like to have some of the clothes returned which guests wore away from his swimming party last Sunday. Max Baer and others playfully pushed people in with their clothes on . . . "The Mad Dog of Europe," Hitler picture, is to be produced finally by Al Rosen . . . At last, they've discovered a way to keep Jimmy Durante from yelling too loudly into the microphone. They separate him from it by two chairs. It's a fact.

EXPERT GETS LUTHER LETTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—A letter written by Martin Luther in which the leader of the reformation set forth his religious beliefs was brought here today by Gabriel Wells, collector of rare documents.

Wells, who found the four-page letter in England, described it as one of the most important autograph letters by Luther ever discovered outside Germany.

The letter, which Wells said was apparently written about 1523, was addressed to Count Albrecht von Mansfeld, staunch upholder of Luther's religious tenets. Luther wrote:

"Your Grace has a good friend who is well inclined towards the Gospel but nevertheless refuses in practice to adopt the same, with its ceremonies."

Luther went on to outline what, in his opinion, Christianity required of the individual. It demanded, he wrote, that "Good works should be directed toward one's neighbor," that one should "preach and belive his word," and "confess openly without fear."

Film Chariot Racers Spill Cameramen

Three cameramen were injured and $25,000 worth of equipment was destroped when four chariots, roaring down the home stretch, failed to dodge the camera set-up during the making of scenes for "Roman Scandals," Eddie Cantor's next starring vehicle. The cameramen were back on the job the next day. Nine chariots, with four horses each, take part in the race, which is the climax that Producer Samuel Goldwyn hopes will top the bullfight in "The Kid From Spain."

Schildkraut Returns After Two Years

Joseph Schildkraut, who has been appearing on the European and New York stage for the past two years, returned to Hollywood last week and is under contract to Columbia Pictures.

His first picture appearance was in D. W. Griffith's "Two Orphans," in which he scored an outstanding success.

Mark Set for Attendance

Opening day attendance records at Radio City Music Hall were shattered when "My Weakness," the Fox Film production starring Lilian Harvey, with Lew Ayres, Charles Butterworth, Harry Langdon and Sid Silvers, played to the largest first day crowd in the history of that theater.

A total of 25,600 persons attended the performance, surpassing by 600 the attendance of the opening day of "Cavalcade," another Fox film.

"My Weakness" serves to present Lilian Harvey in an American-made film. She will be remembered for her work in "Congress Dances," with Henry Garat, made in Europe.

All in a Day

The Promise.

"ONE THING I promise you," said George Carey to Phil Grant, "and that is that, now that I'm goin' in with you, I'm gonna stick with you right to the very end.

"You know me, Phil, and you know that I don't say nothin' that I don't mean. We're shakin' hands, and we're partners from now on. And when I say I'm stickin' with you to the end, that's just what I mean."

The two men shook hands warmly across the table and smiled into each other's eyes. There were six other men at that table—and they, too, wore broad smiles. For that handshake between George Carey and Phil Grant meant the end of plenty of trouble.

It was the sort of trouble that the public worries about, but seldom understands. George and Phil were both expert racketeers and they had, for some time, been the respective leaders of rival mobs. Everything had gone well until they both attempted to monopolize a racket in the same district—and then the fun had begun.

One morning would find a Carey follower put on the spot, and the following morning would see two Grant men drilled full of holes and placed in bags. It was an interesting form of amusement, and it entertained the police no end.

But now, through a mediator, Mr. Carey and Mr. Grant had come together—and Mr. Carey's promise meant the end of the killings. They were partners now. And things were either going to be okay—or they would be far worse than ever.

For George and Phil, you see, were two entirely different men. George was as on-the-level as a racket guy could possibly be, and crossing a pal was not in his make-up. But Phil, on the other hand, would cross his mother if he thought he could get away with it.

Thus you have your two partners who have gone into business for better or for worse. George, plenty tough and honest in his own fashion. Phil, tough enough but not even square with himself.

In spite of the peaceful words and the handclasps, was there trouble on the horizon? You betcha. . . .

* * *

For some six months, everything was moonlight and pretzels. George took care of this end of the state, while Phil was entrusted with the racket throughout the remainder of the territory. Collections were rolling in beautifully and everybody was plenty happy.

Suddenly, one bright morning, George began to grow a trifle suspicious. For no apparent reason, collections upstate were growing smaller. Under ordinary circumstances, he wouldn't have thought about it a second time. But he knew Phil—and Phil was no ordinary circumstance.

Still he said nothing. He sat tight and awaited developments. They weren't slow in arriving. Each week, the collections grew smaller and smaller. Each week, the receipts dwindled to an alarming degree. And these were days when the racket should have been at its very best.

So George sent a few of his boys to investigate. They investigated quietly and thoroughly, and they were back with the required information within a very short time. They had the evidence, and there was no doubt about it.

Mr. Phil Grant had been up to his old tricks again. Collections had been as large as usual, but Mr. Grant had pocketed a great deal of the money without the customary split. Furthermore, he was negotiating with another mob upstate—and, if he connected, George and his followers would be left in the cold altogether.

George took the news in very calm fashion. Phil was due in town that night for his split on the city profits. Time enough for George to do his talking . . .

The talking he did that night, however, never became very extensive. He gave Phil the usual split, asked him how things were going upstate—and took his hat from the chair.

"Come on, Phil," he said. "You're goin' my way, and I might as well drive you home."

The next morning, Mr. Phil Grant was found on a lonely road. He was as dead as a Tom Thumb [illegible] course . . .

* * *

After the [illegible], a number of the boys sat around in their favorite speakeasy. This time, George Carey did a great deal of talking. There was to be a new arrangement, he asserted, and he was going to run things from then on.

"And what's more," he added, "I'll run them on the level so that every guy gets an honest split. We're goin' back to the old days again."

The boys weren't as enthusiastic as they might have been, and George glanced around him in surprise. Finally he turned to one of his chief lieutenants.

The lieutenant shifted in his chair.

"If you gotta know, George," he replied uneasily, "some of the boys is kinda worried. They could always depend on your promise—and four of us was there when you promised Phil Grant to stick with him right to the end.

"We all know you knocked him off, and that means you broke your promise. See?"

George Carey clenched his fists. Then he relaxed—and smiled.

"Sure, I knocked him off," he returned easily. "But I had plenty of reason, as you guys know. And what's more, I didn't break my promise about stickin' to the end. When I make a promise, I keep it.

"That's why I was a pall bearer at his funeral." . .

Hostess

Billie Burke has the hostess role in "Dinner at Eight," photoplay in the Nixon that is begining its second week today.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Dinner at Eight," film in the Nixon based on the stage hit of the same title, begins its second week today. It is presented twice daily with a name cast that will be hard to beat by any future picture.

The first production of the Golden Triangle Players for Children, local organization, will be presented next Saturday in the theater of the Twentieth Century Club. The play will be "A Child of the Sun," to be acted by Nelle Moore Sprowls, Madeleine Skelly Foust, Lydia B. Patterson, Ruth Aston, Augusta Steele, Martin Fallon, John McQuade, E. Kendall Power, Jack Woolley and Lester C. Myers, Jr. It was adapted by Mr. Woolley from a story by Charles C. Banks about American Indian life.

Doris Kreiger and Jay Jarrell head the cast of "College Sweethearts," comedy by Edward Blaine that will have a musical setting, and will be produced as the first work of the season by the South Hills Community Players, in Washington School, Mt. Lebanon, four nights, opening October 18. Edward Blaine is director of the organization. The tunes are by Kenneth Wrigley. Among other players of principal roles will be Elynor Hendrickson and Howard Blaine.

* * *

In answer to numerous inquiries—there is no prospect of immediate resumption of stage presentations in the combination houses. The situation stands as it did more than a year ago, with regard to music, and each side seems willing to let it remain that way.

* * *

Ted Healy, the well known stage comic, who has worked in pictures, has just signed a long-term contract with M-G-M and will be seen in Jean Harlow's starring vehicle, "Bombshell" . . . Winnie Lightner, absent from films for some time, has a featured role in Joan Crawford's next, "Dancing Lady" . . . Many bathing beauties have worked up to star roles, but it remainded for a star, Ruth Chatterton, to become a bathing beauty. She swims and dives in her coming picture, "Female" . . .Monte Blue, back in Hollywood after a year's tour, has been signed by Paramount for "The Thundering Herd," Zane Grey tale. . .Pola Negri, who has been abroad since her last picture-making, arrived in New York last week . . . Aline MacMahon, who has been a vacationer in New York, will return to Hollywood shortly . . . "Heir to the Hurrah," some pumpkins of a melodrama of the stage in its day, will be a movie, starring George O'Brien, whose support will include Sally Eilers and Herbert Mundin . . . "Search for Beauty," for which Paramount conducted a contest to obtain talent, the winners including William O'Dell, of Pittsburgh, will go into production October 23 . . . May Robson, who has clicked as the film mother of a girl, will be the mother of Richard Cromwell in "The Most Precious Thing in Life," to be made by Columbia, producer of "Lady For a Day" . . . Rochester, N. Y., will have the honor of the premiere of Walter Hampden's new play, "Ruy Blas," Friday and Saturday of this week.

Do as your dentist does—

when he cleans your teeth

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

● Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

It cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

● No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

● Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

More wedding news! Today I want to tell you about another autumn wedding distinguishing Saturday, one that took place in the south.

Cecil Lutz Holloway, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Victor Dryden Holloway, of Kingston Pike, Knoxville, Tenn., and A. Ralston Matheny, son of Mrs. Florence Matheny, of Thomas boulevard, Pittsburgh, were married Saturday in St. John's Episcopal Church, Knoxville, Tenn., by the Rev. Louis Melcher.

Bride In Satin

Ivory satin with a veil of tulle and lace was worn by the bride. Her attendants were Mary Mitchell, Gene Houser, Anny Bonhyman, Blanche Holland, Betty Holloway and Martha Henderson, all of Knoxville. Eleanor Lutz, of Knoxville, was maid of honor.

Charles E. Matheny was best man, and Richard D. Matheny, Russell Broaddus, of Louisville; J. E. Lutz, Peter Anderson, James Lacey and Paul Keller, all of Knoxville, were ushers.

A reception at Westwood, the home of the bride's parents, followed. After November 1, following a New England wedding trip, Mr. Matheny and his bride will be at home in the Greenhill Apartments.

* * *

Among the hundreds and hundreds and hundreds who attended the Evans-Ford wedding Saturday, (I didn't have space to mention them in my wedding story yesterday), were many members of the young married set, who must have thought a great deal about their own weddings, not so long ago.

Among Guests

Among these were the junior James Verner Scaifes, the Roberdeau Green Annans (she was a lovely bride, the former Elizabeth Leovy), the William M. Doolittles (she was Mary Hill); and the George C. Stephensons (she was Neil Stewart Zang).

The E. P. Mellons II were there, with Mrs. Mellon wearing one of the smartest costumes I've seen in ages. It was of pumpkin yellow wool, fitted to the figure, and long sleeved and distinguished by bretelles of mink. Mrs. Mellon is the former Marian Stone, whose wedding a few years ago was one of the brilliant events of Pittsburgh's social history.

The Nelson Vance Harpers (Eleanor Rowe) were there, and many of our betrothed girls, too, who will soon figure in weddings of their own.

Marjorie Kimball, former Junior League president, who now lives in Chicago, was here for the wedding. Her engagement was made known some time ago. Another betrothed guest was Catherine Suydam.

Seen at Nuptials

Others of the many I recall seeing at the wedding were Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, Mrs. George S. Love, Mrs. William Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Charles Flaccus, Norman Allderdice, Mrs. F. C. Irish, Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., and two of her daughters, and Phyllis and Louise Totten.

Ellen McClay was there, the Samuel Harden Churches, Mrs. William Zang, Mrs. T. C. Jenkins and her daughter, Elizabeth; the Reginald Macdonalds, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., Mrs. Herbert duPuy and Mrs. Maclay Hall.

In a group of Sewickley girls were Betty Childs, Rosamound Fitch, Rebecca and Nancy Doyle. Margaret Brainard was there, Juliet Hillman, Mrs. W. W. Blair, Jr., Lewis A. Park and George Hann, Helen Leovy and Mrs. F. A. Leovy.

Among the last to leave the church after the wedding was Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, who visited with friends in the vestibule. And among the last to arrive at the wedding were her son, Richard King Mellon, and his cousin, Paul Mellon.

Attend Wedding

The Theodore F. Smiths I saw, the Herbert A. Mays, Judge and Mrs. Stephen Stone, Mrs. C. A. Painter, Jr., Mrs. Raymond Hilliard, Mrs. W. Eugene Gary, the Edward W. Gwinners, Mrs. George Willock, Mrs. John M. Lazear and Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly.

The Frank J. Kiers were there (their daughter, the Baroness Pellenc, was a bridesmaid, you know), Mrs. David McG Witherow and her debutante daughter, Patricia, Mrs. John McKelvy, Mrs. Reginald Quaile and the James Magees.

Also there were Margaret and Fredericka Holdship, Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, Mrs. George Pearson, Mrs. D. M. Clemson, Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, Mrs. James H. Hammond, Mrs. George E. Ebbert, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Mrs. William M. Furey, and goodness knows how many more.

Bryson Club to Hold Hay Ride Wednesday

The Bryson Club, of St. Bernard's parish, Mt. Lebanon, will hold a hay ride Wednesday evening, leaving St. Bernard's School at 7:45 o'clock. Dancing will follow the hay ride. In case of rain, the event will be postponed to the next evening.

Belvedere Hospital Benefit on Wednesday

Mrs. E. F. Sunseri, [illegible] General Hospital, will hold a card party for the benefit of the hospital at McCann's, formerly the Fitzenhouse, North Highland avenue, Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Young Mrs. Farrell, the former Sallie Gibson, daughter of the junior John Gibsons, was the first deb of 1932 to be married. And she had the first big fall wedding—September 9 at Calvary Episcopal Church.

* * *

Have you ever realized that young Nancy Patterson, the Simon T. Pattersons' daughter, resembles, especially when she laughs, her aunt, Mrs. John W. Lawrence? Nancy has suddenly grown up.

* * *

The Sewickley Hunt Club has a new costume—white paint with red trimmings.

* * *

A few days before her wedding Saturday I saw Laura Evans, now Mrs. Emory Moran Ford, of Detroit, dashing off to one of the innumerable parties in her honor in the smartest dress.

It was of wool—a sort of dark gray covert cloth affair, but sheer. And the pointed caps of the long, fitted sleeves were of gray fur.

* * *

Never have I seen such a crowd, including children galore, as stood for more than an hour outside Calvary Episcopal Church Saturday to catch a glimpse of the bride, the bridal party, the guests at the Evans-Ford wedding.

A motorcycle escort had to clear the way before the bride's car as she arrived at the church.

So many guests were invited to the wedding that it took them about 10 minutes to reach the church door after they had alighted from their cars.

Through the Spyglass Viewing the New

Much scurrying 'round every day . . . much focusing of our spyglass . . and consequently an assortment of items we're handing over for your approval. Call Grant 6500 for the names of the shops where these may be found . . . or send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

The ever-present handkerchief . . . how usual, how unexciting! But this time with those Appenzell edged, embroidered monograms, and all hand-made at 4 for $1—thrills will replace your erstwhile indifference. Also men's handkies of a quality which would cost $1.50 for the 'kerchief ALONE . . . now 3 for $1.95, with the most exquisitely embroidered cutout monograms you ever laid your young eyes upon! Over 1,000 styles of handkerchiefs in this shop . . . and they're having a sale now! Need we say more?

* * *

LAZY lubbers note! If a new pair of lounging pajamas is in order or you would like to crash through with a pair for a gift to your dearest friend . . . these Chinese p. js. at only $4.95 will be a thought! They're black moire with gold thread embroidery and all the foolishly fabled birds and whatnot which makes Chinese p. js. really Chinese! And $4.95 is a diminutive sum for such Oriental splendor!

* * *

Oh yes . . . there's a new silver [illegible] to be had . . . very good and [illegible] yet inexpensive. We're [illegible] taken with a pair of nut dishes we saw made of it . . . like shells . . . and only $1 for the pair. Good to "salt down" for Christmas . . . how about it?

* * *

[illegible] a silver chest . . . especially designed for the putting away of 84 pieces (if you're lucky enough to possess that many!) Guaranteed tarnish proof . . . has been chemically treated so that it will continue to be tarnish proof . . . and costs $1.

* * *

Rock-a-bye . . . lull your fretting, mothers . . . for our glittering spyglass has peered about for you and discovered the best layette buy of the town! A 38-piece layette, this . . . for $15.95 . . . which is a saving of over $2 (easily!) and gives you the BEST qualities in it! There are baby shirts (name of maker on request) in sterilized packages . . . and bands, hose, kimonos, diapers, rubber sheets, blankets, wash cloths, towels and sweaters! And if this doesn't lift a load from your shoulders . . . well, we'll be wearing a hangdog air for days!

* * *

What would you think of a very, very round fat flour sifter which shakes the flour evenly over the gravy you're making . . . or across the cream sauce? These are 25c . . . and the best specimens of their kind we've seen!

* * *

Then . . . there "being nothing like nice gloves" in almost every woman's opinion . . . we suggest the fine kid ones we know about . . . which are $4.50 now and going up every time a new shipment arrives! In smart shades . . . and with trick loops at the wrists where you can thread ribbon or fabric through to match your costume!

Miss Sylvia Edelstein Weds Edward H. Stern

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Edelstein, of Charles street, Knoxville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Sylvia Florence Edelstein, to Edward H. Stern, of Monessen, which took place October 1. Officiating was Rabbi Benjamin A. Lichter, at 7:30 o'clock in B'nai Israel Synagogue.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother, and wore a gown of lace and satin with a veil of tulle caught with lilies of the valley. She carried orchids, white roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. Jack H. Orinstein, a matron of honor, wore Nile green waffle crepe and carried tea roses.

The bride's mother wore black transparent velvet with a corsage of pink roses. Bernard Miller, of Oil City, cousin of the bride, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Sam D. Stern completed the bridal party. Mrs. Stern wore black velvet and taffeta with a corsage of pink roses.

After a Northern trip on the U. S. S. Chatham, Mr. and Mrs. Stern will live in McKee avenue, Monessen.

Drama Institute To Hear Clubs' Problems

At the second annual drama institute to be held November 4 under auspices of the Pittsburgh Drama League representatives of seven women's clubs will be leaders in the discussion of practical difficulties confronting the producers of plays in the numerous drama departments now functioning in local clubs.

The program for this particular group—one of four conferences to be held during the afternoon—has been planned by one of the directors of the league, Mrs. W. C. Hawley, founder of the outstanding drama department in the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg as well as of the Edgewood Players, a newer group of community players.

Mrs. Chester F. Johnston will preside. Mrs. H. Allen Machesney will discuss stage settings; Mrs. L. L. Beal, direction of plays; Mrs. Allan Kirk, study of plays; Mrs. J. B. Henry, casting and makeup; Mrs. John P. Baker, selection of plays, and Mrs. Hawley, costuming. An opportunity for full discussion on each phase of the play-producing will be afforded those who attend.

The institute will be held at the Pennsylvania College for Women under the chairmanship of Miss Vanda E. Kerst. There will be a morning session beginning at 10 o'clock.

Luncheon will be featured by a reunion of the charter members of the league, which was founded on November 6, 1913. Several speakers are on the day's program, and a number of demonstrations will be conducted.

Miss Green Wears Unusual Veil At Wedding

Miss Bernice Green wore an unusual veil arrangement when she became the bride of Frank L. Hoffman, this morning at 11:30 o'clock in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Green, of Beacon street. The bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Pauline Hoffman, of Philadelphia.

The bride's gown was of white satin and Duchesse lace, and her veil was three-quarter length, of tulle, and was draped from a cap of the satin. She carried white orchids and gardenias. Miss Janet Green, as her sister's maid of honor, wore pink taffeta and carried pink tea roses. Mark Nolan, uncle of the bridegroom, was the best man, and the father of the bride gave her in marriage. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson.

After the wedding breakfast Mr. Hoffman and his bride will leave on a southern motor trip and will live at Hobart and Wendover streets when they return.

Children's Aid Plans Movie Benefit

The Jewish Children's Aid Society held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Anna Smith, of Stratford avenue, to plan a benefit movie to be held at the Davis Theater Sunday evening, October 22.

Mrs. Smith is general chairman and is assisted by Miss Ida Hansel, co-chairman, in charge of tickets; Mrs. Louis Abrams, ushers; Mrs. Elkan Munter, reservations, and Miss Selma Sigal, publicity.

A board meeting will be held Thursday in the home of Mrs. Irving Abrams, of Nicholson street.

Emma Louise Stealey To Marry A. K. Wright

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stealey, of Bon Vue street, North Side, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emma Louise Stealey, to Alexander Kilgour Wright, of Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Wright, of Auchterarder, Perthshire, Scotland.

Crafton Couple to Mark Fiftieth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William C. O'Reilly, Dinsmore avenue, Crafton, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Wednesday.

They were married in St. James' Church, West End, October 11, 1883, and have lived in Crafton ever since. They will be at home Wednesday afternoon and evening to their friends.

U and I Club Party To Be Held Thursday

The U and I Club will hold a bingo party Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Joseph M. Allen, Perrysville avenue and Burgess street, North Side, at 8 o'clock.

Pauline Collins Weds Louis Mann Stamberg In Charleroi Home

Miss Pauline Collins, daughter of Mrs. Louis Collins, of Charleroi, Pa., and Louis Mann Stamberg, of Allentown, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Stamberg, of Philadelphia, were married yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's mother by Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, of the Rodef Shalom Temple, Pittsburgh.

The bride wore ivory satin having a court train and a veil of tulle cascading from a cap of point d'esprit lace worn by her mother at her wedding. She carried a round bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Eleanor Collins, as her sister's only attendant, wore rust colored velvet, and carried an arm bouquet of dahlias. Leonard Collins gave his sister in marriage, and Dr. William Stamberg, of Philadelphia, was his brother's best man.

West Newton Club Lists Special Activities

In addition to the regular meetings scheduled in their good-looking year books the West Newton Juniors list an "activity" on each page, these including a supper in the woods (that was last month), a night at the State Federation convention, a benefit bridge, a Christmas dance, a theater party, an open night, a progressive dinner, an illustrated lecture by Dr. Samuel H. Williams and a mother and daughter dinner.

When G. L. Townsend discusses "Disarmament and the New Deal" on November 6, the girls will have Kiwanians and Rotarians of the town as their guests. Miss Josephine Hoffarth, of the West Penn Power Company, will give a home economics talk in December and each member will be required to submit her favorite recipe in order to be admitted to the meeting.

A forum on motion pictures is listed for January, Dr. Florence Marcus is to speak on health in February, an art talk will be given by Dr. Murray F. McJaslin in March and a current topics round table is listed for April. The annual meeting is an event of May.

Miss Alberta Williams, president of the club, has on her staff Miss Mary Moody and Miss Olive Obley, vice presidents; recording secretary, Miss Ethel Neff, corresponding secretary, Miss Clara Kracsun, and Miss Josephine Markle, treasurer.

For the remainder of the year, the members will build their programs around travelogues, child psychology, modern books and magazines, strange peoples, Russia, racketeering in America, women and their careers, prominent people and McKeesport. And in addition to these evenings of study, there will be special events and talks by guest speakers.

Affairs Planned For Pitt Alumni Homecoming

Homecoming for thousands of Pitt alumni will be held next week-end when Pitt plays the Navy in the feature football game of the season. A series of events for the entertainment of Pitt graduates returning to the campus for the game has been arranged by the newly organized General Alumni Association, headed by C. W. Ridinger, president, and John W. Hallock, executive secretary.

Opening with a smoker Friday evening at the Hotel Schenley, the homecoming celebration will include class reunions, class luncheons and a score of fraternity dances.

High ranking naval officers will be honor guests at the Friday evening smoker. Included among the naval officials who will arrive in Pittsburgh in time ot attend the opening event on the homecoming program are Admiral William H. Stanley, chief of naval operations; Rear Admiral W. D. Leahy, chief of the Bureau of Navigation; Rear Admiral T. C. Hart, superintendent of the Naval Academy; Capt. R. S. Holmes, commandant of the midshipmen; Capt. G. W. Wilcox, director of athletics at the academy, and Capt. T. T. Caldwell.

The program at this event will consist of short talks by the rival coaches, Rip Miller, of the Navy, and Jock Sutherland, of Pitt. W. Don Harrison, director of athletics at Pitt, will also speak.

Preceding the game, class reunions will be held in campus buildings and special luncheons will be sponsored by class organizations at the Hotel Schenley, University Club and Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

Norman McLeod is general chairman of the homecoming and is assisted by A. K. Collingwood, W. C. Arthur and Joseph Matson.

State Federation of Women's Clubs Delegates Arrive for Convention Here

Philadelphia Veteran Now 'Junior'

Today's events at the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women's convention in the William Penn Hotel: Sessions of the credentials committee, 9 o'clock; meeting of executive board, 10 o'clock; luncheon for executive board by Dormont New Century Club and rehearsal of convention choir, 1:30; garden jaunt and demonstration visit to Utility Hall, 2 o'clock; visit to better Homes Exhibit, 3:30; presidents', past presidents' and delegates' dinners, 6 o'clock; grand march of state officers and club presidents, 8:15; concert, 8:30; reception to delegates and visiting club women, 9:30.

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Another State Federation convention is with us! Delegates from all over the state are arriving today for the annual five-day meeting, headquarters for which are in the William Penn Hotel. One of the first to drop in to the executive board meeting this morning was Mrs. Lucretia Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, wife of a former Mayor of the City of Brotherly Love, who has, since her arrival, found herself made a member of the juniors.

Mrs. Blankenburg is 88 and proudly boasts that she has missed few state conventions since she attended the first one, 38 years ago. She has been recipient of many honors, but this latest one came to her when she found her name on a junior badge. But she doesn't know whether she's been elected, and, if so, whether she's an active or an honorary member.

Last year Mrs. Blankenburg was voted the Gimbel award of $1,000 as the outstanding woman by the clubs in and near Philadelphia. She gave the entire amount to charity. That was the second time she had been given a gold award, for the Advertising Women presented her with $100 in gold several years ago for the same reason. She has also been granted the degree of doctor of humane letters by Temple University. Mrs. Blankenburg says she attributes her good health to the fact that she has "never used tobacco, alcohol nor sleeping powders."

The exhibits are being put into shape and promise to be an exceptionally interesting feature of the convention. Especially is this true of the garden exhibit, which is most elaborate and occupies the entire Blue Room. Junior projects, exemplified in miniature, are quite worthwhile, too, and the press and publicity display shows numerous books of many kinds.

The garden jaunt this afternoon, which is to several "small gardens" in the East End, is culminating in a tea and garden conference at Mrs. Samuel C. Grier's home in Shady avenue. The gardens visited are at the homes of Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. Leonard K. Guiler, Mrs. J. E. MacCloskey, Mrs. M. L. Benedum, Mrs. Joseph Ingram and Mrs. W. S. Elliott.

Republican Women To Confer on October 16

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The National Women's Republican Club announced yesterday that a national conference of Republican women, the first since the presidential campaign, has been called for October 16 at Cincinnati, O.

Mrs. George A. Wyeth, president, said the conference would be attended by women from 14 states—Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Delaware, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and West Virginia.

Mrs. Wyeth said the conference would be concerned with "Republican trends in all parts of the country." Discussion will concern the National Recovery Administration agreements, tariffs, "sound currency" and the liquor control problem.

Among those who will take part in the conference are Mrs. Ellis B. Yost, director of the women's division of the Republican National Committee; Mrs. George B. Dean, president of the Women's Republican Clubs of Illinois; Mrs. John S. Sheppard, member of the New York State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and head of the New York Organization for National Prohibition Reform; Mrs. Paul Fitzsimons, of the National Council and Republican national committeewoman from Rhode Island; Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Levan, of Steubenville, O.; Mrs. George Hoadly, of Cincinnati, chairman of the Ohio division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform; Miss Dorothy Madison, vice chairman of the Young Republicans of New Jersey.

Braddock Junior Club To Study 'Native State'

"Our Native State" is this year's study topic which will be developed by the Braddock Junior Woman's Club. At the two meetings already held the president, Miss Florence Davis, was honored and the background of the state was studied.

At their session tomorrow the members will discuss the history, old homes and old streets of Philadelphia, and will also have one paper on Benjamin Franklin. Two of the spring programs will be devoted to Pittsburgh.

'FORE! MAKE YOUR COSTUMES SNAPPY!'

By PRUNELLA WOOD

WOMEN in quest of a few autumnal sports outfits for northern greens and fairways should not overlook the college shops. There is plenty of speed in the models collected in such specialty corners of large stores, and there is no reason at all that they should bloom exclusively on college maidens.

Carefully selected, moreover, they will be a good filler to take South a little later on—or to pack for Bermuda this minute, as cruises now include chilly winds which call for tweedy comforts.

* * *

TOO much cannot be said for the lastex boucle which has come into the sports frock scene recently. No amount of hard wear and strenuous cleaning makes it budge out of fit and form, which is to say that the peak in knitted fabrics has been scaled.

* * *

A TIP in selecting sport clothes than can be adjusted to thermometer coyness is to choose models with sleeves that can be rolled above the elbow, or models that combine a thinnish woolen jumper with a good, stout cardigan of woolen or suede. The extra layer can be parked on the hickory limb or in the bag when it grows onerous. Color is important as a common denominator between seasons and resorts, too, and the bright shades are best.

One of the new lastex boucles which declines to bulge or sag is shown left above, in an active two-piece sports frock of copper henna. Center, another outdoors costume of striped flannel is shown. The neckerchief is of self-material with a fringed border. The sleeves are long, but loose enough to roll above the elbows easily. Right, the classic cardigan of soft woolen is combined with a checked woolen skirt which buttons from waist to hem. Lincoln green and white is the color scheme.

West End Club Interchanges Programs

Robert Doyle will address the West End Literary Club at its meeting on October 19, an interchange with the club's November program, which will be of a religious nature. Mr. Doyle's subject is "Character."

The club has planned a Christmas party, a guest day, a program on "Famous Bells," a spelling bee, and a singing class, a musical fantasy, and a program headed "Let's Go Places," which one takes to mean an afternoon of travel talks by the members.

Viscountess Furness Seen With New Escort

PARIS—The continent's darkest and most heartbreaking eyes, which are the property of Viscountess Furness, have shifted their disturbing attention, thus causing endless comment hereabouts.

Viscountess Furness is the former Thelma Converse Morgan, daughter of the late Consul-General Harry Hayes Morgan and sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt.

Formerly Lady Furness was constantly with the Prince of Wales at Biarritz and elsewhere, but now she is most frequently escorted by Lord Michelham, wealthy heir to the Stern fortune.

Books Dedicated To Federation President

Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, scholarship chairman for the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, who has compiled and edited a scholarship directory for the state, has dedicated the booklet to Mrs. Richard J. Hamilton, federation president. The directory, which is the first of its kind in America, lists all the organizations in the state giving scholarship aid.

Mrs. Miller will speak on "The Federation Meets the Scholarship Challenge" at the educational conference, a part of the State Federation convention's Thursday program this week.

Franco-American Society Revelations Threatened

PARIS. — Paris atmosphere seems to bring out the creative spirit. Miss Beth Leary, who has just sailed for New York, may write her memoirs of Franco-American society, while Elsa Maxwell is putting the finishing touches to her expose of the same society. (Which will burn off your ears if she finds a publisher with nerve and strong legs.)

Elsa's friends who have perused her manuscript report it is a wild and dangerous revelation, which will make lots of persons most unhappy. But Elsa told me:

"I love my enemies. I don't know what I'd do without them."

Dormont College Club Will Meet Tomorrow

At the home of Mrs. F. Nelson Groves, Espey avenue, the Dormont College Club will meet tomorrow evening. Mrs. P. H. Ringhart is to discuss the current theatrical season.

Rochester Club Will Discuss Fairs Oct. 16

Under the caption, "Let's Imagine We Were There," the Rochester Woman's Club will discuss the World's Fair and Century of Progress Exposition at its next meeting, October 16. The reception honoring the president, Mrs. Joseph H. Grandey, was held last Monday.

The entire year's programs will be carried out under such captions as "Let's Be Thankful"—the Thanksgiving meeting; "Let's Begin at Home," "Let's Hear About Some Good Books" (and that day there will be a shower for the Rochester Public Library) and "Let's Seek the Spirit of Christmas."

Continuing with the same sort of heads, the members will hear an illustrated talk by Miss Zella M. Breckenridge, a program in charge of the department of education, an afternoon of studying the Indian, and "In an Antique Shop," the same program with which the Dormont New Century opened its year on Friday.

In the spring comes the annual election and a talk by F. William Kohler on "A Million Years In Fifteen Minutes," one by Lelia Campbell Taggart on "The Old Woman In the Modern Novel," and illustrated talks on art and gardens, with a flower show in conjunction with the latter.

Minute sketches of famous composers promises entertainment for one of the May meetings; for the other there's to be a fine arts program. A lawn party at which the juniors will be guests is the concluding event of the year.

Tarentum Club's Book Makeup Original

One of the most original year books in its makeup is that of the Tarentum Book Club whose mimeographed pages are loose-leaved into a plain green cardboard binding and tied with a white ribbon. Having observed its president's day in honor of Mrs. G. D. Stuart, the club will proceed at its subsequent meetings to study poise, character, influence, common sense, practicality (asking "Is Woman Practical?"), opportunity, perseverance, speech, personality, happiness, autosuggestion and thought, a program equal in originality to the book itself. The sub-topics assigned under these captions promise a year of unusual interest and profit.

With Mrs. Stuart are serving Mrs. D. P. Kennedy and Mrs. James Davidson, vice presidents; Mrs. Harold Goss, recording; Mrs. N. G. Jacobs, corresponding secretary, and Miss Emelia Stephenson, treasurer.

Four Programs Scheduled by Music Club

The season's first bulletin issued by the Tuesday Musical Club lists October's two events and also those for November—the opera program and the Thanksgiving program. Songs by American composers and a recital in Puritan costume will feature the latter.

The newly organized Chamber Music Group has planned a series of benefits for the Foster Memorial fund at the home of the chairman, Miss Charlotte Suliot. The club's ways and means committee will sponsor a card party Thursday evening, November 23, at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and on November 7 the club will visit Boggs & Buhl's homes exhibit.

Kappa Sigma Psi Dance To Be Held on Friday

The Kappa Sigma Psi sorority will hold its annual fall dance at Longview Farms Friday with Mrs. Marian Reed as chairman, assisted by Miss Nelda Jackson and Miss Ethel Buran.

He is heard over WCAE-WJAS at 12:15, 2:15 and 6:30.

What Do You Think of Radio?

By AIRCASTER

A while back, I said I thought Myrt and Marge left Jack Arnold out of their skit this fall because they were a bit jealous of his popularity.

Isabel Hurley of Monessen sent my remarks to the girls and asked them, "How about this?" Myrt and Marge politely replied to Mrs. Hurley:—

"At the time our show started this fall, Vinton Haworth (Jack Arnold), had a very nice movie contract in New York, and couldn't leave, so we had to start our show without him.

"It may be that he will take a part in the show later on, but this is not certain as yet.—Myrt and Marge."

An Invitation

It seems to me that you radio listeners ought to make excellent Aircasters, and I cordially invite you to write your praises and complaints for publication in this column.

Suppose we set aside a part of the space and let everybody have his say about this, that and the other thing in the realm of radio.

Send your opinions of programs and artists to me. Sign your name and address. I sha'n't print your name unless you want me to, but I'll not publish any anonymous letters.

25% Increase

A report from Los Angeles states that under the NRA policy they are now known as the five Marx brothers.

Migrating Byrd

Leonard Liebling, music critic of the New York American, will be the commentator on the philharmonic broadcasts via WABC this season.

America's formal farewell to the Admiral Byrd expedition is slated to be broadcast by the CBS chain next Sunday from Norfolk.

Wolf Roundup

Dear Aircaster:

That "Last Roundup" is sure one long drawn-out affair.

Why don't they make it the last roundup?

And it might be added that this is one bird who's afraid of the big, bad wolf—yea, afraid that one of these days I'll scatter the radio all over the living room if our radio program directors don't learn when enough is enough of anything.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

With so many questions concerning the man who will go with Admiral Byrd to do the broadcasting from Little America, it behooves us to say that to bring to the microphone some of the adventuresome thrill of the expedition will be a task for a master showman.

He will have to remember the thousands of listeners who made that trip in fancy to the South Pole on successive Saturday nights when the messages were broadcast during the first expedition. He must not take from the listener the thrill of a far distant adventure.

There is something terrifying, yet fascinating in the death-like silences of the icy wastes. People who heard those messages go down to the bottom of the world could picture the dangers, the rigors, the fierce battle against furious elements.

They could see men crawl over ice, or in a cabin poring over maps while howling, angry, demons beat at their havens trying to snatch at them.

They had to depend on imagination. The grim-like stillness from the frozen fastness was compelling. It was to me as I broadcast those messages.

It might be a little difficult to conjure such a primitive picture in the minds of the people in front of their radios listening to a chain broadcast from the South Pole.

Perhaps it won't seem that they are so far from civilization when with them is civilization's advanced product, the broadcast microphone.

Then again it might not seem any more exciting than a broadcast from a studio using adequate property effects.

The thousands of you who stayed at your radios during the late hours will attest to the excitement that they gave you. Many a listener's heart was in his mouth as he heard the operator from here call "Hello, Little America—Calling WFA. Hello, Little America."

Then breathlessly waiting for that faint then clearer, then fainter, high weird piping as the dots and dashes from the bottom of the world came as if borne by the melancholy bitter winds themselves.

Irate Man Chases Boys, Falls Dead

BALTIMORE, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—John H. Kuhl grew irritated at the noise from a boys' baseball game being played in an alley behind his home. He went out, found a policeman and followed him to the alley. The boys ran away, shouting. Kuhl clutched his breast, gasped and fell dead in the officer's arms. Heart attack, said a doctor.

NEW UPRISING FEARED IN CUBA

HAVANA, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Oriente Province and its capital, Santiago, seethed with unrest today because of labor troubles and serious food shortage.

Adherents of former President Mario G. Menocal were reported preparing for a revolution in several Oriente towns.

Labor unions met to formulate demands and to plan a general strike. Food stocks dwindled; a thousand hungry beggars walked the streets. The political situation was tense.

In Havana, soldiers and radical members of the ABC Secret Society were shot at from housetops while troopers searched for arms in homes of leading oppositionists.

Attempts to conciliate political differences between the Grau San Martin administration and its opponents, meanwhile, advanced with the appointment by the pro-Grau student directory of four professors to enter negotiations broken off more than a week ago by the government's uncompromising rejection of demands for its resignation.

WOMAN SHOOTS LEOPARD, LION

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—A lion and a leopard were bagged with one shot for each in Tanganyika recently by Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, wife of the president of the American Museum of Natural History, it was disclosed last night in a letter made public by Dr. George H. Sherwood, museum director.

Mrs. Davison and her husband were sent to Africa by the museum in July. A letter from Davison told of his wife's exploit. The lion, Davison wrote, was killed at 70 yards.

Mrs. Davison passed an entire night in an automobile parked near a trap, to bag the leopard. The animal had done considerable damage in the region.

The leopard was shot as it leaped for a bait in the trap. The expedition sought only one lion and one leopard specimen. Dr. Sherwood said the Davisons are on their way home, and will arrive Wednesday.

Argentine President Views Brazil Troops

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—President Augustin P. Justo, of Argentina, and President Getulio Vargas, of Brazil, today reviewed 20,000 troops in a colorful spectacle planned in further celebration of the visit of the Argentine leader. The crews of the Argentine warships Moreno, Tucuman, Larioja and Mendoza led the march.

SCREEN ACTOR HURT IN CRASH

HOLLYWOOD Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Francis Henderson, known on the screen as Lyle Talbot, was in the Cedars of Lebanan Hospital today in a critical condition as the result of a traffic accident.

Henderson was injured when his car got out of control on a hill in Hollywood and crashed into a house. The car was demolished when it struck the residence after hurtling the curb. A corner of the house was torn away by the impact.

Henderson, a graduate of stock companies in the Middle West, has played several important roles in the films. He appeared in "Love Is a Racket," "Unholy Love," "Thirteenth Guest," "Stranger In Town," "Bit City Blues," "Three on a Match," No More Orchids," and other productions.

Italian Flier Claims World Speed Mark

ANCONA, Italy, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—A world air speed record of 393.33 miles an hour over a 100-kilometer course was claimed today by Lieut. Col. Guglielmo Cassinelli.

Officials said he surpassed a mark set two years ago by Flight Lieut. J. N. Boothman of the British Royal Air Force.

ROAD BEAUTY WORK PLANNED

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Plans for beautification of state highways while constructing emergency road projects designed to relieve unemployment are under consideration by Road Commissioner Bailey.

At his request T. E. Gray, landscape architect of the extension division, West Virginia University, is making plans for the work along the roadsides.

Definite projects in the beautification campaign have not yet been chosen, although the Droop Mountain battlefield is foremost in consideration "because of its historical importance."

Bailey pointed out that the federal act providing for allocation of funds to the states for emergency road projects carries authority for use of a part of the money in landscaping.

Charleston Picked By Scout Leaders

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Charleston, W. Va., had been selected today by Boy Scout executives from Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia as their convention city in 1934.

Closing their two-day meeting, the executives discussed a program designed to give one boy out of every four who has reached the age of 12 years, four years of scout training before 1942.

SHACK DWELLER'S DEATH BARES $100,000 FORTUNE

PICNIC TRUCK RAMS POLE; 29 HURT

Party En Route Home From Corn Roast; 21 in Hospitals

Of the 29 persons reported injured late Saturday night when a picnic truck ran wild and crashed into a pole at Jack's Run and McNeely roads, Ross Township, 21 remained in hospitals today.

Ulanda Mangold, of McDowell street, North Side, is in the Suburban Hospital with a fractured skull, and Helen Young, 19, of 1806 Cottage place, North Side, is in St. John's Hospital with a head injury. They were the only ones whose injuries were reported serious.

The alleged driver of the car, Lenard Strausbaugh, of 2917 Stayton street, who was ordered to post $1,000 bond, was reported to have told police that the accident was due to the failure of certain mechanical parts of the truck to function properly.

The party was returning from a corn roast in Ross Township when the crash occurred.

AMONG THE INJURED

Those taken to hospitals, most of them suffering from cuts and bruises include:

Cecil Toomey and James Toomey, sister and brother, of 6 Sheriff street; Joseph McCarthen, of 2803 Stayton street; John Petro, of 831 Grand avenue; Beatrice Murphy, of 1002 Smithton street; Joseph Wisoski, of 3006 Vinsel street; John Baschak, of 2905 Stayton street; Florence Guckert, of 3615 Mexico street; Erna Vogel, of 18 Mitchell street; Harry Dukes, Jr., of 3146 Sorento street, and Carlyn Vicksen, of 2913 Frederick street; John Bucka, Jr., 24, of 2651 McDowell street; Regis Madel, 28, of 3046 Frederick; Joseph Pcola, 19, of 3138 Mitchell street; Stella Robis, 20, of 3147 Lecky avenue; Ruth Guckert, 19, of 3615 Mexico street; Maria Deloquilo, 20, of 309 Preble avenue, and Florence Bohl, 19, of 2815 McDowell street.

The other injured were taken to their homes by passing motorists and treated by physicians.

AUTOS HIT POLES

Glen Heath, of Greenock, was injured yesterday when his automobile crashed into a pole in Versailles, according to a police report. Two passengers in his car, Gilbert Streigle, 24, of Glassport, and Laura Knagler, of Greenock, were also injured.

Oliver Rambo, Jr., 28, of 2318 Carson street; Michael Sezesovich, 27, of 2822 Sarah street, and David Williams, of 1537 Fallowfield street, were injured when Rambo's car crashed into a pole. All were taken to South Side Hospital.

POLICE CAR IN CRASH

Michael Slimovich, 20, of 1726 Larkins way, was injured in an automobile accident involving three automobiles, one of which was a police car, in Baldwin road, according to a police report. The accident occurred, it was reported, when the police car, driven by Frank Tobasko, was sideswiped by another car driven by Oscar Guibert, of 1926 Crafton boulevard. The police car, in turn crashed with another, driven by Miss Mary Gallagher, of 107 South Twelfth street. Miss Gallagher's car then struck a tow truck owned by El-

ZONING BOARD BARS MINE IN CITY

Permit Refused for Residential Area Operation

One request to open a coal mine in a residential district was turned down and another case held for further investigation by the Zoning Board of Adjustment today.

Coal shortage caused by the strike is believed responsible for sudden activity around old mine openings in the city, some of them abandoned for years.

The board refused a permit to Edwin G. Collins to open a mine on a lot with a frontage of 30 feet at 440 Cannor street, Fifteenth ward, and extending 340 feet to Bigelow street.

Many residents of the neighborhood appeared to protest, and it was testified no coal had been previously mined on the property.

On a request to mine coal at 280 Crane avenue, Beechview, representatives of John K. Hodgson were told to bring in evidence Friday afternoon on when a mine on the property was last operated.

George Murray, a neighbor, objected to any trucking of coal that would block Lowenhill street at Crane avenue, near his home. The workings on the property are said to be a part of the old Chain mine, which supplied Singer-Nimick and other mills in West Carson street almost 40 years ago.

City Solicitor Thomas M. Benner is of the opinion that a property owner may dig coal on his own proporty for his own use without a permit. This would not include selling coal, however, he said.

'PAUPER'S RAGS' GIVE UP SECRET OF RICHES

Bank Books, Titles To Property Found In Shabby Trunk

The rags of Francisco Negoni, 72, of 210 Corry street, were pulled aside today to reveal a fortune estimated at more than $100,000—the accumulation of years.

But close on the heels of his sudden death as he finished digging a ditch on his property, Saturday, came discovery—after he laid, unidentified and unknown, in the morgue over the week-end.

TELLS OF 'POVERTY'

It was Wolf who identified him at the morgue today. And it was Wolf who told Deputy Coroner Roy S. Addelsberger of Negoni's "poverty."

How he bought a second hand overcoat for $3 last week and was glad he'd be warm this winter.

How he always bought second hand shoes.

It was for a routine inspection that Addelsberger went to the Corry street shack today. He would look through Negoni's personal effects—if any—find nothing but poverty and destitution, possibly discover the name of a relative or so, and return to more interesting affairs.

FORTUNE BARED

But in a shabby little trunk his eyes were opened.

There were deeds to property in and around Pittsburgh, and to a hotel in Meadville, Pa. There were six bank books from Pittsburgh institutions and several from banks in Youngstown, O., and Meadville. All recorded the deposit of large sums of money.

There, too, were documents showing investments of sums ranging from $1,000 to $10,000.

And a will leaving his entire estate to a brother and four sisters in Italy. And that estate, according to Deputy Coroner Joseph Olliffe, can be roughly estimated at—at least—$100,000.

The relatives in Italy have been cabled to learn what disposition they wish made of the body.

HILLQUIT RITES WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Morris Hillquit, who received, last year, the largest vote ever given a Socialist in a New York city election, is dead.

The national chairman of the Socialist party, who was 64 years old, died Saturday night, a few hours after he dictated a letter to the party's executive committee in Chicago.

A rugged physical makeup, which enabled him to campaign tirelessly for Socialism in this country for 40 years, failed him shortly after the 1932 mayoralty election, in which he headed his party's ticket. Early this year he underwent an operation.

Funeral services will be Wednesday. The body will be cremated.

Hillquit was outspoken against the World War and America's entrance, but in 1918 he offered, in an address, to go to Austria and Germany to urge workingmen to overthrow their governments. This step, he suggested, would aid President Wilson in his efforts to bring about peace.

CHURCH MARKS ANNIVERSARY

The one hundredth anniversary of the Disciples of Christ in Pennsylvania will be celebrated at a series of special programs beginning tonight in Memorial Hall. One of the features of the service will be the singing of a chorus of 250 voices trained for the international convention of the Disciples of Christ which opens Wednesday in Syria Mosque.

The Rev. S. S. Lappin, pastor of the Central Christian Church of Pittsburgh, and the Rev. H. A. Denton, pastor of the Mount Lebanon Christian Church, will speak tonight. The celebration will continue through tomorrow.

PARLEY TONIGHT ON TUBE TOLLS

Residents of Brookline and the South Hills tonight will be given an opportunity to express their sentiments towards the proposed plan of the County Commissioners to impose a toll for the use of the Liberty Tubes.

An open meeting is to be held in the Brookline school under the auspices of the Brookline Board of Trade at which protests may be made.

Debt Balance Being Talked Toward Zero

—By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER—

Foreign debt delegates went to the World Series last week. Just another game they didn't understand.

Now they are back in conference again. Until something else happens to change the subject.

f the arguments get too financial we have some nice college football, stunt flying by the Navy and good movies.

After all, talking over a debt is never fun for the man who owes the money. Hospitality demands that you make your guest feel at home. Or wish that he was there.

Look about time for us to call off those debt-fixing conferences.

With every little talk the amounts get smaller. And we will soon be trying to cash the whispers.

DR. G. A. URLING, DENTIST, DIES

Dr. George A. Urling, 81, of 939 North Negley avenue, died today.

He was a member of all the Masonic bodies and the I. O. O. F. He had practiced dentistry for the last 46 years.

He leaves his wife; two sons, Dr. George, Jr., and Walter C.; a daughter, Mrs. Clara U. Walker; two brothers, Dr. Harry and John, of California, and two sisters, Mary and Margaret Urling, both of Bellevue.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at his late home.

PROBE TO HEAR MECHANICS

Sixty mechanics of the county election bureau who prepared and serviced the voting machines during the primary were to testify today, when the Harris committee investigating the machines failure resumed its sessions.

At an evening session more than 50 judges and inspectors of elections in the Sixteenth and Twenty-first wards will testify.

Thieves Ransack Oakland House

Breaking a glass in the door of the home of C. G. Baker, 258 Halket street, early today, thieves ransacked the house, escaping with a suitcase full of clothing, a child's wrist watch and a purse.

Deal 30 Years Ago Provides Small Fortune

A violin purchased 30 years ago by the late Richard Geminehart for a carrier pigeon and $5 would bring his widow, Mrs. Henrietta Geminehart, $3,000 today if she wished to sell.

Mrs. Geminehart's son, George, uncovered the violin the other day in a cupboard of the Geminehart home, 1028 Welfer street.

Noticing it bore the date 1640, George carried the violin to a well known downtown music store where it was appraised and judged to be worth $3,000.

Mrs. Geminehart said yesterday her husband, a pigeon fancier and amateur musician, had given one Charles Goff a pigeon and $5 for the violin.

Mrs. Geminehart is not anxious to sell. For those who know about violins it bears the inscription "Copy of Iofredis Cappa Soluzzio Fecip."

BUMP INJURES 'CHUTE' LEAPER

Larry Marshall, 25, of 103 Main street, East Pittsburgh, was hurt slightly yesterday when he landed hard in a parchute near the Wilkinsburg airport. He was treated at the Columbia Hospital for injuries to his legs and nose.

Marshall's leap from a plane was part of an exhibition at the field. The 'chute opened but was propelled fast by a high wind as it neared the ground, the hospital report said.

DOG SAVES SIX AS HOME BURNS

Pal, a small fox terrier, is today a hero.

His alertness saved the lives of three adults and three children when a house, at 416 Ninth street, Oakmont, burned to the ground early yesterday.

When the fire started, from an undetermined origin shortly after dawn, Pal went to the third floor of the frame dwelling and awakened William Matts by barking. As the room filled with smoke, Matts made his way to the second floor and aroused Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Miller and their three children.

THREATEN NAZI BOYCOTT HERE

Boycott of German merchandise in Pittsburgh was threatened today by the Jewish People's Committee in a warning against Nazi organizations. Receiving the protest, John E. Loibl, German vice consul here, said:

"I do not represent Mr. Hitler. I represent the German government. He happens to be the head of that government now, but when he's out some one else will be in."

Loibl said he is purely a commercial representative of the German government, receiving no salary and has been an American citizen 25 years. He represents a steamship line in Pittsburgh.

Socialists Arrange Rallies Tomorrow

The Socialist Party will hold two open air campaign rallies tomorrow night. Dr. William J. Van Essen, candidate for mayor, will speak at Pearl street and Liberty avenue, Bloomfield, and at Main street and Wabash avenue, West End. Other speakers will be David Rinne and James Devlin, candidates for Council.

Building Burns On Schenley Links

A one-story frame building, used as a dressing room at the Schenley Park public golf links, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin last night. Loss was estimated at $200.

2 Held as Suspects In Chicken Thefts

The owners of 39 freshly killed chickens were being sought by Oakland police today.

Stopping a truck in Greenfield avenue for investigation, Oakland radio police found the chickens and arrested Tencher Norman, 39, of 832 Windom street, and William Brent, 61, of 7557 Cushin street, both Negroes. Police said the two admitted they had made raids on hen houses in Mt. Lebanon.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 9.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

When you really figure it out, there is no individual that is as funny as a nation (any nation not just these). An Argentine president visited Brazil (the first time in generations). He went there in an Argentine battleship, was met by Brazilian cruisers, and 75 fighting planes (now all this mind you is on a good-will trip).

Will Rogers

Imagine individuals doing that. I go to visit you, take along a Winchester and belt full of cartridges. You meet me at your gate with your best polished machine gun, and two Colt forty-fives, but at the banquet that night there is wonderful speeches of good-will, then next morning both of 'em start building more guns.

Viva diplomacy, nobody is fooled, nobody is hurt. Viva hooey.

Yours, WILL.

Copeland Will Naming Church Fought by Kin

"When is a trust fund not a trust fund?" seemed to be the theme of a hearing before the Pennsylvania Supreme Court today as it was called on to untangle the estate of the late James R. Copeland, of Parnassus.

Copeland's daughter, Mrs. Florence E. Yates, and his brother, Theodore W. Copeland, want the Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America to return $51,265 and Copeland's sister, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Campbell, to return $13,000 to the estate.

The $51,265 was ordered paid by the Westmoreland County Orphan's Court on the ground that it was a trust fund left Copeland by his aunt, Amelia Gailey, in 1922. The bequest was not set forth in Copeland's will.

James Copeland kept the Gailey money in a "trust account," witnesses testified before the Orphan's Court, and he considered it to have been left in trust by the aunt. Attorney Charles P. Walter, for Mrs. Yates and Theodore Copeland, on the other hand, cited the will this way:

"I give and bequeath my entire estate . . . to my nephew, James Renwick Copeland, of Parnassus, Pa., to be his absolutely without any conditions, directions or restrictions of any sort."

Lean Convict Escapes Via Hole, Stout Pal Fails

Take jail breaks, for instance.

Bankey and Arnold Rahloff escaped from the Rockview Penitentiary on September 14 but were recaptured the next day near State College and placed in Center County jail.

Yesterday, wardens found Rahloff had dug a hole in the jail wall and crawled to freedom. Bankey, however, couldn't get through the hole and apparently had not had time to enlarge it.

Physical measurements explained his failure, guards said. They said Rahloff is 5 feet 10¾ inches tall and weighs 172 pounds. Bankey, while weighing about the same, is almost six inches shorter.

Both had been sentenced from Washington County, Rahloff for six to 12 years and Bankey for eight and a half to 17 years.

OLDEST U. S. ART GALLERY OPEN IN NEW PLACE

By PENELOPE REDD

The formal opening of the Gillespie Art Galleries in their new location on the eleventh floor of the Kaufmann Building at a reception this afternoon for art amateurs, artists and representatives of the leading galleries in the major American cities, is of more than ordinary importance to Pittsburgh because this occasion marks the second year in the second century of existence of Gillespie's, America's oldest art gallery. Three excellently selected exhibitions of paintings and prints have been chosen for the public.

Miss Redd

For the moment, however, one is concerned with the plan of the new galleries. The 13 exhibition rooms provide the grey-green neutral wood background so sympathetic to the high-keyed modern paintings, also the deep, rich-hued fabrics essential to the tonal paintings, while lustrous taupe complements the color values of the black and white prints. The two galleries for the decorative arts are skillfully planned for a variety of exhibition purposes. All 13 have the finest gallery lighting yet achieved in the city.

CHOICE EXAMPLES

Although the exhibition presents certain names, such as Gauguin, which still startle the public, we do not find any shockingly contemporary paintings. The Gauguin, "Brittany Landscape," painted in 1886, diverges far less from the conventional than does the Renoir, "Washerwomen."

On the whole, the virtue of the exhibition does not rest with the names famous in art, but in the choice examples representing the artists. Sir William Orpen's picture demonstrates this point. His early portrait of his little daughter is perhaps the finest Orpen ever to be shown in Pittsburgh.

There is the wit that later became too obvious in Orpen. There is the vigor that later became too nervously brittle.

STUDY OF GIRL

On the other side of the shield is Pascin. His tenuous "Girl in Pink," the study of an adolescent, represents the fluidity of being. Without logical reason, it suggests the feeling of brushing against blossoms in a garden dimly seen in the twilight.

More objective in mood are many of the fine American paintings. Even the highly imaginative "Holiday" of Maurice Prendergast with its mosaic figures is positive.

Among the highlights are the Melchers' "Spring-Ingleside," Metcalf's "Old Willow Road," Hassam's "Mt. Vernon Street, Boston," Bruce's "San Luis Obispo," Lie's "Tranquility," and Sterne's "Anticoli Performance." An American, new to this reviewer, Herbert Meyer, in "Still Life" shows sound craftsmanship and a sober approach to beauty that speaks well for his potential future.

The exhibition of paintings and of prints will continue on view through October 23.

MAN FIGHTING ROBBER CUT

Police today sought the assailant who slashed James Diebold, 30, of 47 Bancus way, North Side, in a robbery attempt in Burdock way.

Diebold said the man attacked him after following him from the Ft. Wayne station. When Diebold resisted, he reported, the man drew a knife and cut him on the forehead. He was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

Robert Barnhart, of 646 Herron avenue, reported he was robbed of $2 by several Negroes who tripped him with a rope stretched across the sidewalk at Center avenue and Morgan street, Saturday night.

Joseph Ryan, of 1327 Reedsdale street, was held up and robbed of $9 by three armed men Saturday night in Sandusky street, according to a police report.

Naturalist to Talk Here on Bird Life

Pittsburgh school children will hear of bird life from Jack Miner, naturalist and author, of Kingsville, Ont., in a series of lectures beginning October 17, under auspices of the Nature Study Club, Audubon Society, Izak Walton League and the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society.

He will speak at Dormont High School Tuesday, October 17; Monessen High, Wednesday; Y. M. & W. H. A., Thursday; Community House, North Side, Friday; Sewickley, Monday, October 23, and the Tarentum Y. M. C. A. the following day.

Woman Found Cut Fails to Explain

Police today were investigating the injury of Joanne Katavich, 46, of 64 Beelan street, found last night bleeding from a head cut at Forbes and Brady streets. She was unable to explain her injury to police who questioned her at the Montefiore Hospital.

Girl Falls 3 Stories 'Sailing' Airplanes

Elizabeth Sabo, 10, of 310 Mulberry street, McKeesport, fell from the roof of a three-story house at 113 Fourth street, McKeesport, while sailing paper airplanes. She suffered a fractured skull. She was taken to McKeesport Hospital.

Warren Meanor, 7, died yesterday from injuries suffered earlier when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home in Beaver road, Carnot, according to a Coroner's report. He ran into the road to retrieve a buckeye which he had dropped, it was reported. Frank McCormick, 50, of Coraopolis, the alleged driver, was ordered to post bond before the Coroner.

Several passengers in a Dormont street car were shaken at midnight when an automobile collided head-on with the car as it stopped at West Liberty and Capital avenues.

The driver of the auto, John Miles, 49, of 617 Boggs avenue, suffering a compound fracture of the skull, was taken to Mercy Hospital. His condition is serious. None of the passengers were injured.

Grace to Speak On 'American Boy'

Paul Grace, founder and director of Camp Chief Plenty Coups, will speak on "The American Boy and His Making" at Carnegie Institute Lecture Hall, Tuesday, October 17. Co-operating with Senator Ernest T. Eaton, chairman of the education committee of the Montana State Senate, Mr. Grace has been engaged in a survey of boys' work in the Eastern part of the United States and Canada.

FRIARS EVICTED FROM HOME

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Friars Club, once New York's best-known meeting place of actors, bon vivants and wits, today stands dispossessed of its home for failure to pay a $250,000 mortgage. The New York Bank for Savings took over the clubhouse and temporary headquarters were opened by the club in a Times Square hotel.

George M. Cohan, popularly regarded as the abbot of the Friars, said he had no authority in the club since its recent reorganization, but his business manager was served with a summons for unpaid salaries of club employes. In three years, the club's membership dropped from 1,800 to 389.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

NRA FAILING, LOBBY CHIEF SAYS HERE

President Roosevelt's recovery program and the Democratic party in general were criticized by Benjamin C. Marsh, of Washington, secretary of the People's Lobby, in an address in Kingsley Settlement yesterday. He said:

"The NRA has no chance of success. Several months experience with the NRA and the agricultural act have clearly shown that further and more fundamental action is necessary to recovery.

"Labor has been coded but not employed. Farmers have not been made prosperous. We have learned that we cannot drink ourselves into prosperity.

"It is quite obvious that the federal government is going to have to take over the coal mines and oil and pay the present owners only for values they have given."

Legislation he said was necessary for recovery included:

Appropriation of $1,000,000,000 for relief, $500,000,000 for scholarships for children, revision of the revenue act by repealing at least $1,000,000,000 of consumption taxes, increasing the income tax rate and surtaxes so they will take the major part of incomes over $100,000, increasing tax rates, and taxing the income from government bonds as part of a general income, and taxing all land values to prevent more land speculation; appropriation of $3,000,000,000 for public works to be assessed on property benefited and credit for housing in states where taxes are transferred from buildings to land values.

L. A. Wills, vice president of the League for Social Justice in Pittsburgh, will further a plan to have local representatives in Congress appear before a mass meeting and give their stand on the legislation outlined by Marsh.

DR. KERR'S SON IN FATHER'S PULPIT

Hugh Thomson Kerr, Jr., a student in the Western Theological Seminary, yesterday preached his first sermon in opening the week's celebration marking the twentieth anniversary of his father, Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, as pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Kerr, Jr.

The speaker reviewed conditions in the world today, and drew a picture of the horizon "across which future looms so hopefully for young men."

Dr. Kerr, former moderator of the Presbyterian Church in America, in the morning reviewed the score of years in which different changes have taken place in the physical aspects of his church, in the lives of his parishioners and in the world. Dr. Kerr said:

"The 20 years given Shadyside were the best years of my life; I cannot hope to duplicate them, because time does run on and time does take its toll."

A hymn written by Dr. Kerr, "God of Our Life Through All the Circling Years," was sung. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, of New York, dean of American preachers, conducts the services held each evening at 8 o'clock except Saturday.

ELECTRICITY IS BLAMED FOR WATER 'RUST'

Fugitive currents of electricity were reported by the South Pittsburgh Water Company as probably causing drinking water along the Castle Shannon road district near Mt. Lebanon, to become rust color.

Supt. Charles J. Eld, Jr., said the company has been working on the "seemingly unsolvable problem" for two and one-half years and has expended nearly $10,000 in a survey. He said:

"It is a problem that we are going to solve at any expense. We are doing everything we can in the interest of our consumers and we feel sure the source of the electric currents getting into our pipe lines will soon be solved."

The trouble, he believes, may come from the Castle Shannon car line of the Pittsburgh Railways Company; the widespread practice of grounding electric wires on home water pipes; from underground electric or telephone lines or from electric wires in a coal mine beneath the district involved, he said.

Engineers and chemists think the fugitive electricity set up an electrolysis chemically activating the pipe lines and thus affecting the water.

William R. Work, head of the Department of Electrical Engineering at Carnegie Tech, said such a situation is difficult to solve and takes considerable time. He said:

"Electricity getting in the water lines does not harm the water nor does it endanger life. It is just an unavoidable problem."

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO WIN THE WORLD SERIES

21 out of 23 GIANTS WORLD CHAMPIONS Smoke CAMELS

(Left) "I LONG AGO learned that Camels are the cigarette for me," says "Blondy" Ryan. "I like Camels better, and they don't get on my nerves."

(Above) "JUMPY NERVES AND home runs don't go together," according to Mel Ott. "So I stick to my Camels when I get a minute to enjoy a smoke."

WELL, THE RETURNS ARE IN. Congratulations to the new World Champions—the Giants! Rated by the experts as a hopeless contender this amazing team, playing under inspired leadership, fought successfully through one of the hardest National League races in years... and, again the under dog, went on to win the World Series.

It takes healthy nerves to play "better baseball than you know how."

It takes healthy nerves to go on winning day after day through crucial series after series... delivering time after time in the pinches.

It means something when you discover that 21 out of the 23 Giants smoke Camel cigarettes.

These men, to whom healthy nerves are all-important, have found that Camel's costlier tobaccos not only taste better, but also they never interfere with training... never jangle the nerves.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

CAMELS — THEY NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES

Loved ones need you! —you dare not fail them

IS YOUR appetite poor? If you tire easily what does it mean? . . . and how can you correct it? Do you lack resistance to infectious diseases—pimples and boils . . . what does this indicate?

These are symptoms which often harass rundown, anemic persons. It is in these complaints that S.S.S. is very useful.

Modern medical research stresses the need of building up, frequently the blood's red-cells and their hemo-glo-bin (skin and tissue purifier) content. The reason of this is that hemo-glo-bin carries oxygen from the lungs to all parts of the body—even to the skin.

Don't take chances. Infectious diseases strike without warning. Loved ones need you! You dare not fail them. Keep up your strength and resistance thru the blood.

Take S.S.S. just before meals. No need to change your diet . . . S.S.S. will not interfere with any other medicine you may be taking. Begin a course of it today—then note your improvement. HARPSTER'S OWN STORY OF TECH'S ROUT OF TEMPLE

SPORTS

By JAMES J. LONG

Old League's Stock Rises. • Grove Nearing 200 Mark.
Honesty of Game Shown. | Race Meet Entries Jump.
Fine Start by Harpster. | Another Onder on Way.

NATIONAL WINS TWICE IN THREE YEARS

Long the underdog in World Series competition, and often referred to sneeringly as a minor league by adherents of the apparently more powerful American loop, the old National League seems to be on the rise again. After the convincing manner in which Bill Terry's Giants, behind the superb pitching of Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher, toppled the supposedly much stronger Senators in four out of five games to take the big title, John A. Heydler's league must be said to have refuted the assertions of its being inferior to its rival in the matter of class. The Nationals' success in winning two of the last three World Series may not balance the all-time score, which still stands at 17 to 13 against it, but it would appear to indicate that right now the senior circuit has the edge.

Bill Terry

The quick finish, too, is another boost for the honesty of baseball. Even the fact that the players do not share in the receipts after the fourth game has not deterred some suspicious minds from predicting each year that the series would be jockeyed to the limit of seven games for the purpose of gathering in all the money possible. The attention of these smart citizens is called to the fact that in a total of 30 series, only six have gone the limit, and that of the last seven series three have ended in the minimum of four games and two have been decided in five contests. The seven series have totaled only 35 games or an average of five, just seven games more than the lowest number possible, 28, and 14 below the possible maximum of 49.

HARPSTER GETS OFF TO GREAT START

The way Howard Harpster introduced himself to the national circle of major college football coaches on Saturday must have convinced the country that a real big-timer has needed only an opportunity to prove his qualities as a master mentor. The great Pop Warner took one of his worst lickings from Carnegie Tech's young coach.

Much more difficult jobs are ahead for Harpster, as the Temple team was the weakest looking Warner-coached eleven ever to appear here, even more disappointing than the Stanford outfit Pop brought to Pittsburgh last season.

The running attack no doubt will be there when it is needed, and in this connection you can set it down right now that Steve Terebus, 148-pound halfback from Johnstown, is going to cause Carnegie's opponents a lot of grief.

TWELVE WHITE SOX BOOKED FOR RELEASE

In carrying out his plans to dispose of Pat Malone, Zack Taylor, Bill Campbell, Leroy Herrmann and others to reconstruct the Cubs during the winter, Charley Grimm will not be doing the biggest housecleaning job of the year in Chicago. In the White Sox camp, Manager Lew Fonseca promises to outstrip the Bruin boss.

No fewer than 12 players now on the Pale Hose roster are slated to be released to other clubs in sales or trades, it is understood. Lou Comiskey's investment of $75,000 for Simmons, Haas and Dykes did not give him a winner, because of the weakness of the pitching department, but the Sox owner says he is prepared to go further, and it is intimated he has $100,000 ready to send along with the 12 players booked for release in an attempt to get a much stronger club for 1934.

GROVE NEEDS ONLY FIVE FOR 200 WINS

With Carl Hubbell, Earl Whitehill, Alvin Crowder and others holding the center of the pitching stage at the close of the regular baseball season, little attention was paid to the fact that Lefty Grove had added another brilliant chapter to an amazing slab career by winning 24 games against only eight defeats. That leaves Grove only five games short of the very select 200 circle, as he has piled up 195 victories against 79 defeats in his nine years of service with the A's.

Lefty Grove

Some other hurlers have won 200 big league ball games, but very few of them did it in less time than it will take Grove to get there. Lefty's nine-year percentage is .712, meaning that he has won seven out of every ten games pitched. For seven consecutive years he has won 20 or more games per season, his record for that period being 172 victories against only 54 defeats, a percentage of .761, or a shade better than three out of every four. One of the all-time greats is the Mackian southpaw.

LARGER PURSES FOR COLUMBUS DAY RACES

The annual Columbus Day race meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Hunts Race Association, of which the course on the farm of George R. McNary, near Greensburg, will be the scene on Thursday, is likely to be a greater success than any heretofore because of the increased size of the purses. This factor has brought many additional entries and naturally will lead to keener competition. There are three big races on the card to draw the best of the horses in the district, and three lesser events will provide enjoyment for the farmers and patrons of the meeting.

This meeting is the only one in this section of the country that has the sanction of the Hunts Committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association, and as a result of the sanction the meeting always attracts entries that otherwise would not be seen.

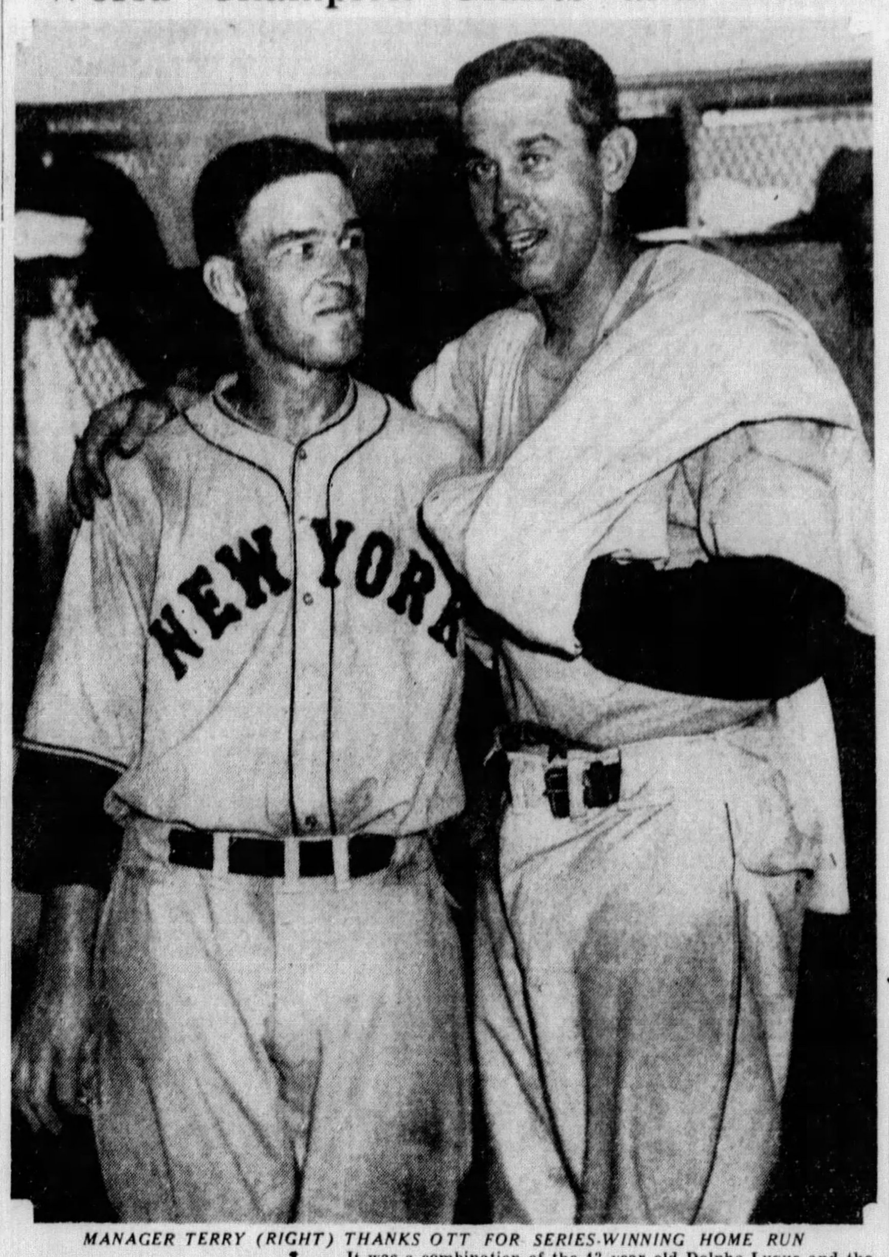
FOOTBALL TO SEE THIRD ONDER BROTHER

The prominence of the Onder family, of Jeannette, in college football, is not likely to end when the members now active have wound up their gridiron careers. At present, the family has two representatives on college fields, as was brought to attention in novel style at Morgantown Saturday by the presentation of a brother-against-brother act. Tarcisio and Angelo Onder played together in their high school days at Jeannette, but on Saturday they were rivals, as Tar is a guard for the University of Pittsburgh team while brother Angelo plays left end for the Mountaineers. Angelo, a sophomore, is playing his first season on the West Virginia varsity squad. Tar finishes his college gridiron career at Pitt this fall.

Tar Onder

There is another Onder coming along who bids fair to shine as brilliantly as his two older brothers. Geno, now an outstanding halfback in the W. P. I. A. L., is performing in fine style for Jeannette High School, and is due to enter college next year. So far, he has indicated no preference, but it is a safe bet that the respective merits of Pitt and West Virginia are drummed into his ears at every family gathering.

World Champion Giants and Heroes of the Final Victory Over Senators



MANAGER TERRY (RIGHT) THANKS OTT FOR SERIES-WINNING HOME RUN

It was a combination of the 43-year-old Dolpho Luque and the home run drive of Mel Ott in the tenth inning that enabled the New York Giants to clean up the World Series with the Senators in the fifth game. Is Manager Bill Terry happy? Well, just look at him. These are International News Photograph Service pictures.

GIANTS HAILED AS WORTHY CHAMPIONS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The aftermath of the World Series offers an eloquent eulogy to the fighting Giants, new champions of baseball. In the opinion of National League followers in all cities of the circuit, the winning of the world title by Bill Terry's club was a fitting climax to a season wherein they showed aggressiveness, skill, resourcefulness and sportsmanship of a high order.

A detailed account of the sequence of events in the dash of an ill-favored ball team would furnish many interesting chapters for cold weather reading. In brief tabloid form the progress of Memphis Bill Terry's team is easy to follow.

GIANTS NOT FIGURED

About seven months ago the majority of the prophets relegated the Giants to a low spot in the second division. That was March. Early April found the situation unchanged, but the baseball bell of mid-April scarcely had rung before the Polo Grounders began to act in an uncharted manner. They were swapping punches with all comers and holding their own.

The favored Pirates ran true to form in the merry month of May, but as June arrived, the Bucco pitchers went into the morning glory class and the scrappy Giants passed us in a surprising stride.

June had come and gone, however, before the Giants' supporters took their club seriously. The advance predictions apparently had led the team's backers to think it would fold up like an opera hat.

Came July with its severe test as a preface to the hot August drive. Flag contenders often look with apprehension on the August phase of the race, yet the Terrymen rode along with their heads up and taking on all comers with a smile.

GREAT SERIES HERE

But even though they met the test of August like champs, the race was far from being over. September challenged the mettle of the aspiring leaders in a stern manner, they had to cross over the rugged Alleghenies and take on three ball clubs that still held pennant inclinations.

What the Giants accomplished in September is still fresh in the minds of Pirate fans. True, the classy Buccos won three of five games in a gruelling series, but Hubbell, the wonder pitcher, turned back the locals in the final clash and the Giants headed West with enough fight to clinch the issue ere they turned back to the home scenes.

The actions of the Giants in the World Series surpassed their behaviour through six months of fighting in the National League sweepstakes, the difference being the players were stepped up to

Gledhill Captures Coast Net Crown

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, Cal., yesterday won the singles crown of the Pacific Coast tennis championships in a surprising defeat of Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles. The score was 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 9-7, 6-3.

Robert Harmon, of Berkeley, national boys' champion, captured the singles title for boys under 18 by defeating Stanley Lordeaux, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

Alice Marble, 18-year-old San Franciscan, retained her singles title in an unexpected and surprisingly easy defeat of Dorothy Round, British Wightman Cup player, 6-4, 6-1.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: AN IMPERIAL RACKET—Commodus, who was Emperor of Rome and aspired to be likened to Hercules, fought as a gladiator in the arena 1,031 times and received the equivalent of $180,000 for each appearance. The emperor is described as "a detested beast and glutton wallowing in filth." He was victorious in all his gladiatorial encounters, but his opponents never had a chance. Commodus fought attired in impenetrable armor, while his antagonists always were unarmed and defenseless. He finally found an avenger in the athlete Narcissus, who strangled the emperor on December 31, 192. GERMAN GIFT—The word "gift" in German has three different meanings, depending upon the gender. The masculine "der gift" means "anger," the feminine "die gift" means "present," the neuter "das gift" means "poison."

TARTAN COACH GIVES CREDIT TO PLAYERS

By Howard Harpster

Carnegie Tech Football Coach, All-America Quarterback, 1928.

Carnegie Tech successfully opened its 1933 season at the Stadium last Saturday when a fighting Tartan team turned in a surprising 25-to-0 victory over Pop Warner's highly-touted Temple eleven. The clever running and passing attack which the Owls showed a week before in the game with South Carolina, and which the Tech coaches greatly feared, failed to click, and the reason for this failure can be traced directly to a fast-charging Carnegie line.

Harpster

The Tech forward wall played an inspired game all afternoon and surged through its larger opponents time after time to stop the Temple backs before they were able to get started. On their attempted forward passes, the passers were forced to hurry their throws because of the inrushing red jerseys, and several times the Owl passers were brought to earth before they could throw the ball and large losses resulted.

PRAISES CAPT. STEWART

It didn't take Quarterback Bevevino long to pick out a weakness in the Temple secondary, and, on Tech's third play, he called for a quick pass over the center of the line, Spizak to Lewis. Lewis picked the ball out of the air on the 35-yard line and ran unmolested for a touchdown. The reason he was not molested on his run: in fact, was not stopped on the 20-yard line, was that Capt. Red Stewart, our other end, was on the job and took out the Temple safety man with one of the best blocks of the day. Red was unnoticed by most of the spectators, but it was due to his block that Tech jumped into an early lead.

The second score, which came in the third quarter, was a repetition of the first scoring play. This time there were two Temple players standing by with their hands in their pockets as Lewis made another fine catch, taking the ball from under their very noses, and trotted over the goal line.

BACKFIELD TAKEN TO TASK

Terebus broke off tackle early in the last period, reversed his field and made a beautiful run of 37 yards for the third marker. It is doubtful if this score would have been made but for another fine block of the safety man on the 10-yard line. This time it was Goodrich who cleared the last obstacle.

A substitute team made the last score with a pass, Spizak to Moore, who made a sensational diving catch to fall over the goal with the ball in his arms.

Tech's running attack failed to impress as indicated by the fact that we made only two first downs

GLASSPORT OUT AS CHAMPION IN CLASS B

By JULIUS LEVIN

The class B schools of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League are assured of having a new champion on their throne this season.

This much was established Saturday beyond all question of a doubt when East Huntingdon High School, coached by J. Owen Huntsman, defeated Glassport High School, coached by Roy Hickes, 24 to 6.

Co-champion with Springdale in class B last season, Glassport was forced to carry on a lone fight to retain its laurels due to the fact that Springdale was elevated to class A rating at the start of the football campaign.

ELIZABETH LEADER

Elizabeth High School, Russell Byler's contender for the throne vacated by Glassport, chalked up its fifth successive victory over a class B school and heads the parade for the crown. Elizabeth's 14-0 victory raised its point total for the season to 111 to none for the opposition.

Glassport was not the only class B school to be eliminated from the title race during the past week-end. Ben Avon, East Pike Run, West Newton and Youngwood were the others to join Glassport among the also rans.

Three teams rated as contenders for the class A toga, now gracing the trophy case at Ambridge High School, saw their hopes for the title shattered by setbacks. They were Stowe Township, beaten by Duquesne; Swissvale, eliminated by Arnold, and Trinity, beaten by Donora.

SCOTT HOLDS LEAD

Scott High, registering its fourth successive class A victory at the expense of Mt. Lebanon, continues to head the parade in this division with Ambridge, the defending champion, and Butler close at its heels. Ambridge defeated New Brighton for its thirteenth straight victory in two years, while Butler, coached by Regis Heinzer, scored a 19-0 victory over Har-Brack.

Both Ambridge and Butler have scored three successive triumphs over class A teams so far this season.

New Kensington High, coached by Carl Glock, took sole possession of first place in the class AA race by scoring a 20-0 victory over Wilkinsburg. New Castle, co-champion with Jeannette and McKeesport last season, did not engage in a class AA game, meeting Union Township instead.

CLAIRTON VICTOR

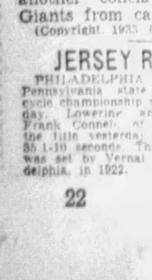
Clairton defeated Washington in its first class AA game and moved into a deadlock with the Bridenbaugh eleven. Greensburg, Turtle Creek Union and Jeannette have yet to play their first double A games. Turtle Creek Union, bumped around freely by class A and class B schools, is not expected to cut much of a figure in the race.

South and Westinghouse remain deadlocked for first place in Section I and Carrick and Perry are deadlocked for the lead in Section I and Carrick, South Hills and Perry are deadlocked for the lead in Section II, of the City League. None of the five teams mentioned played in league battles last week. South made a fine showing against Altoona, losing out by a 19-14 score in a thrilling battle.

NICK EXPLAINS NATS' DEFEAT

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Well, Judge Landis and 120,000,000 jurors, I've been inspecting the report cards of the whole World Series and I found out how those Giants beat our Washington club. In a couple of nutshells, as Amos or Andy would put it, they out-conferred us.



Nick Altrock

I looked up my chart of the Senators' doings in all the games, and there was often as long a stretch as four or five innings when Joe Cronin didn't hold a convention around the pitcher's box.

On the other hand, the Giants never let an inning pass without summoning all the infielders to a conclave. Bill Terry and the lads would congregate around the flinger, Bill would pull out a gavel from his hip pocket and hold a board of directors' meeting right on the spot.

"Have you got any stuff left?"

"I got seven strikeouts, one base on balls and two scratch hits left."

Well, that's what hyped up the Giants. You hold enough directors' meetings and pep talks in the middle of the diamond and the boys naturally get imbued, if you know what I mean.

PITCHERS WON SERIES—RUTH

By BABE RUTH

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Looking back on the 1933 World Series, the thought that comes first to mind is that tight pitching is the best equipment for a contest of this kind. The New York Giants went into this recent series with better pitching, just as National League followers had insisted in the advance dope.

Babe Ruth

Like many others who saw only the Senators during the season, I felt that Washington would win, because the Senators were the harder hitters through the year and also had pitching somewhat above the average.

There can be no alibis for those who picked the American League champions to triumph. The Giants played better ball and clearly earned the honors. The Senators did not look as good through the series as they had looked against the Yankees during the regular season. But it was the superior play of the National Leaguers which made Washington look bad, and it strikes me that the answer is found in that fact alone.

It would be idle to advance the excuse that the Senators didn't hit as they did through the American League season. What made them so puny at the plate that they collected only 11 runs in five ball games? The reasons were Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher and Adolf Luque. The Giants showed the Senators too much pitching. No matter how well a team can hit, good pitching will stop it.

Pitching was the big answer in this series. Aside from Mel Ott there was no player whose hitting will be particularly remembered a few weeks after the series excitement has died down. Ott's hitting won the final game in a spectacular way, just as his hitting made the first victory possible.

TECH COACH'S OWN STORY

by carrying the ball. Our line was much weaker offensively than defensively, while the backfield's play was very mediocre both in blocking and in running. The only Tech back who really was moving was Johnny Sayles, who ran hard the few times he carried the ball. The other runners were slow in starting and had very little drive.

FIGHTING SPIRIT HIGH

Aside from the passing game, which our team executed in midseason form, the most impressive part of our team's play was the great fighting spirit of the entire team. After watching our boys, I have come to the conclusion that we have a mediocre team that can be easily defeated when the players are not in a fighting mood, but which can rise to great heights when fighting as it did against Temple.

Credit for Carnegie's fine start Saturday goes entirely to the players. They played hard football and clearly deserved their fine victory.

It is very flattering to read that "Harp Beats Pop" and "Outfoxes the Fox," etc., but there never yet has been a coach who won a football game, and no coach ever lost one, either.

HENDERSON NET VICTOR

George D. Henderson was crowned the club singles champion by virtue of his triumph over W. Russell Unger, 9-7, 6-4, 6-8, 8-6, in the annual Stanton Heights tennis tournament, concluded yesterday. Play for the championship began Saturday and was halted when darkness intervened.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Not since that Saturday afternoon when Fats Heller and Bulldg Reider took to the air to crush the Army at the Stadium, season before last, have the Pittsburgh football fans been dazzled by such a brilliant exhibition of the manly art of football as Carnegie Tech put up to crush Pop Warner's Temple University hopefuls from Philadelphia, 25-0, at the Stadium last Saturday. . . . Making his debut as a big-time coach, Howard Harpster had his alma mater play the same brilliant sort of football that he himself put on tap when he was the quarterbacking genius of Carnegie to fetch three touchdowns on long forward passes and another through tackle. . . . It was not so much that Temple was poor as that Tech played a scintillating, smart game that the engagement was a classic of achievement by the Tartans.

The fans like an open game, where a single thrust carries the ball from far outside the scoring zone over the final chalk mark. . . . The old line-smashing game is drab in comparison. . . . With its exhibition, Tech had the enemy flatfooted, back on its heels, all afternoon. . . . It's generalship was superb, perhaps not entirely orthodox, but the type, with its mixture of passes and quick kicks, that repeatedly outguessed the defense and left it completely baffled and stunned as the receivers caught the passes and the runners sped on. . . . When Harpster was a player they said he directed the team with the mind of a coach. . . . Now it can be safely said that he coaches with the mind of a quarterback.

Tech entered upon its new deal, that of a graduate coaching system, headed by the youthful Harpster and his line mentor, Don Lovewell, after its many years of the Wally Steffen-Bob Waddell regime, with much moaning about its tough schedule and lack of material, and a prayer that it would get safely past its first season of the change . . . . It need retain the pose no longer . . . Harpster and his players proved well able to take care of themselves as they came through their initial test with flying colors against the mighty opposition of Pop Warner seeking new laurels in the Eastern field . . . With Notre Dame held to a scoreless tie by Kansas, New York University beaten by West Virginia Wesleyan, 3-0, and Michigan State humbled by Michigan, 20-6, on Saturday, while Pitt has had its own troubles with a 9-0 squeeze over W. & J., and a 21-0 victory over West Virginia, these future opponents lose some of their fearsomeness as against the bright sparkle of the Plaid.

You couldn't blame the Washington Senators very much if they should complain, after what happened in the World Series just completed, that there Ott to be a law . . . Mike Palm, former Penn State star, is the assistant coach and one of the quarterbacks of the Cincinnati Pros, who play the Pittsburgh Pirates at Forbes Field Wednesday night . . . He's 32 years old and still going strong . . . Bernard Kelly, Jr., formerly of McKeesport, now of Fairmont, W. Va., is the new manager of Joey Speigal, Uniontown southpaw welterweight, and has him booked for bouts with Louis (Kid) Cook at Fairmont, Thursday night; Jimmy Columbo at Clarksburg, W. Va., October 19, and Paul Oger at Charleston, W. Va., October 30 . . . George Kavel, former Carnegie Tech halfback star, now is the coach of West Wyoming High School in the anthracite region in the eastern part of the state, a town of 2,500 persons . . . He held Kingston to a 7-0 score and played a scoreless tie with Forty Fort in his first two starts.—HARRY KEck.

Series Excitement Blamed for Death

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—(INS.)—Excitement caused by his keen interest in the world series baseball games, was blamed today for a cerebral hemorrhage which brought about the death of Michael J. Mullin, 57, a Philadelphia deputy coroner and one-time pitcher for the Detroit Tigers.

Mullin's son, Michael, Jr., recently was signed by the New York Yankees for trial as a pitcher next season.

MORGAN BEATS MOON RUN

A number of interesting games were played in the Keystone Soccer League yesterday afternoon, the Morgan club pulling the big upset of the day by defeating Moon Run, 2 to 1.

All the scoring was handled in the first half, Singer tallying twice for Morgan and Lloyd counting for Moon Run.

The battle at Heidelberg resulted in the Green and Gold beating its local rival from Glendale, 5 to 1, a much larger score than was expected. At South Park a large crowd watched Curry and the Reihls, of Castle Shannon, battle to a 2-2 tie. Cecil invaded Gallatin and lost by a 4-to-1 count.

In the Allegheny Valley League, the Valley Athletics traveled to Garfield Park and beat United, 3-0 Harmarville stopped Renton 3-1; Hillman nosed out Harwick 1-0; Tuscan swamped Newfield, 5-1, and Tarentum had little trouble beating Curtisville, 4 to 2.

In the Monongahela League, Speedways lost to Gallatin Juniors, 2-1, and Fitz Henry downed Van Vooris, 3 to 0.

Panhandle League action found Houston and Leetsdale draw, one all; Morgan nosed out Canonsburg, 2-1; Coraopolis swamped Hills Station 4-0; The Shannon Braves beat the Webers, 2 to 1; Bridgeville and West Carnegie played to a 2-2 tie, and the Avella-Cedar Grove game was called at the half-way mark because of the heavy storm with Avella leading, 1 to 0.

MORGANS, ETNA PLAY TO TIE

The Etna Sycamores have given other local independent football teams something over which to ponder. Yesterday they held the Scott Morgans to a scoreless tie, the Homewooders missing two chances to score.

Twice the Morgans punched the ball to the Sycamores' three-yard line, but both times were unable to push it across.

In other games, the Snees beat the New Kensington Merchants, 13 to 0; Etna Indians nosed out the Busek Dukes, 7 to 6; Sto-Rox beat Allison Park, 12 to 0; Rox Rangers won over Midland, 6 to 0, Kolinsky scoring in the first period; Aliquippa Indians walloped the Monessen Ravens, 26 to 0; Knapils and McKeesport played to a scoreless tie; J. J. Doyles upset North Braddock Merchants, 6 to 0; Goose Goslins downed Beechview, 12 to 0, and Brookline Merchants won over the Williams eleven, 6 to 0.

SERIES PUZZLE TO CRONIN

By JOE CRONIN

Manager Washington Senators, American League Champions.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Our Washington Club's defeat in the World Series to me will ever be surprising. I'm really still dazed trying to figure out how we could take such a decisive beating.

Joe Cronin

The Giants were a great club in the series, greater even than their most ardent supporters had believed they would be. And as the series was played they certainly deserved to win.

But I'll never be convinced the series would have gone as it did, had our club played its real game. It seems to be the general opinion that the Giants' pitchers dominated the series. I'll admit that the result of the struggle makes it look that way, yet we had pretty fine pitching in there, too.

There were only two one-sided games. The Giants won one. We took the other. Each of the three remaining games were fine pitching battles all the way.

The Giants averaged little more than three runs a game, just about what they figured to average on their season performance in the National League. We averaged only a little more than two runs a game, way below our American League season standard.

That still makes the Giant pitchers look great, but unfortunately, we happened to be in one of our worst batting slumps of the year. Twice during the American League campaign we suffered such slumps and in one of them that came late in July we lost our lead in the race for a time.

Unfortunately for our Washington club it had to have its worst slump at bat just at the time when a few hits more that we got would have meant an entirely different ending to the World Series.

LOCAL ELEVENS IN UNBEATEN CATEGORY

By JESS CARVER

Pittsburgh's football fans, supporters of the Pitts, the Techs and the Dukes, or the Dukes, the Techs and the Pitts, or the Techs, the Dukes and the Pitts (there is no partiality here) may now sit back and await the developments of what has started out to be a great gridiron season.

To date, the three local varsities have played exactly seven games, and the home boys are batting 1.000, a swell average in any league.

Waynesburg, West Virginia Wesleyan, Bucknell, Temple, Wash-Jeff and West Virginia have fallen before the might of local attacks. The Dukes have an edge on their Panther and Tartan rivals in that they have met and turned back four adversaries. Pitt had beaten two and Tech, in its initial start of the campaign Saturday, decisively defeated Temple University.

FUTURES BRIGHT

The immediate future for all three is quite rosy, too. The Dukes figure to take Western Maryland in stride this coming Friday night; Tech ought to run through Xavier in Cincinnati on Saturday with ease and Pitt will be the choice to sink the Navy.

The Dukes deserved a more decisive win over Bucknell than the 6-0 score of last Friday. Bucknell was big and tough, but lacked the finesse which Elmer Layden and Joe Bach have imparted to their snappy Duquesne eleven. The Bisons started off as if they were going to have a field day, or night, but once Joe Bach moved Armand Niccolai into the position he should have been playing, the Lewisburgians were fustrated.

On Saturday, Pitt's varsity, employing the straightest kind of straight football, marched impressively to two touchdowns against West Virginia. Then Heinie Weisenbaugh made one the easy way by simply skipping 80 yards.

SKLADANY STAR

This fellow Muggsy Skladany is playing such good ball at end for Pitt that he's in danger of being lost in the shuffle, or something, meaning that Muggsy is so consistent, is in every play with such vim and intensity, to say nothing of efficiency, that his work is in danger of being taken as matter of fact. It is these ends who break out now and then with a sparkling bit of play and then are lost to sight for the next hour, or more, that make the headlines. But the coaches will take men of Skladany's caliber anytime.

Speaking of ends, by the way, Pittsburgh has never been better off for terminals. Pitt has Skladany, Tech has Lewis and Red Stewart and those two lads guarding the wings at Duquesne, Krankota and Baker, so far have left nothing to be desired.

West Virginia Wesleyan's 3-0 victory over New York University was the outstanding performance to be recorded by district elevens over the week-end. Feet Barnum, who recently left Pitt to enroll at Wesleyan, was the hero of the game.

Waynesburg gave Wash-Jeff a busy afternoon, the Presidents being forced to play out the string to get a 19-7 victory. Pitt's B team held St. Thomas, which previously had beaten Western Maryland to a 13-0 score. Grove City opened its campaign with a none too impressive victory over Morris-Harvey. Springfield crushed Allegheny, 27-0; Bethany and Hiram fought to a 7-7 tie; St. Bonaventure found Westminister easy, the Bonnies winning, 33 to 12. California upset the dope by nosing out Edinboro, 3-0, and Slippery Rock beat Millesville, 36 to 7. Indian barely beat Lock Haven, 8 to 6.

DAVIS-ELKINS STRONG

Friday night, Geneva made it three in a row by taking Thiel in the opening Conference game of the year and Davis-Elkins continued to pile up huge scores, crushing valiant West Liberty.

Your correspondent was told by at least three persons, who should know, too, that Cam Henderson is slated to replace Greasy Neale at West Virginia next year.

Coach Neale, it is reported, handed in his resignation after the Duquesne game here, but reconsidered and decided to stay on. The word got out, however, and across the sidewalk of one of Morgantown's principal streets Saturday, was the following slogan, if you could call it such:

"NRA — Neale's Resignation Accepted."

Local Polo Tilts Halted by Rain

Two local polo games yesterday were curtailed by rain. At South Park, the Brentwood riders were leading South Park, 4 to 2, when play was called at the end of the fourth chukker.

Charleroi held a 2-to-0 advantage over Chartiers Heights in the third chukker when it was deemed wise to halt the action.

The lineups:

CHARLEROI—2.	CHAR. HTS.—0.
H. Hank	P. Lageman
J. Hank	Sheehan
Long	Weisz

Score by chukkers:

BIG BILL WINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Big Bill Tilden, the veteran professional tennis star, yesterday completed a clean sweep of an elimination series to determine an opponent for Henri Cochet, of France, for an indoor match in February by administering a thorough trouncing to Vincent Richards, who recently won the national pro championship. The scores of the match were 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Hubbell Voted Most Valuable Series Player

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—Carl Hubbell, Oklahoma master of the screw ball and twice victor over the Senators in two stirring engagements, emerged as the "most valuable player" in the World Series triumph scored by the Giants, according to a consensus of sports writers polled by the Associated Press.

Hubbell and Mel Ott, whose home run decided the fifth and final game in the tenth inning, ran away with the balloting, according to the experts. Tabulation of points on the basis of a "first five" picked by 17 writers from the players of the two contending clubs showed Hubbell leading with 82 points and Ott next with 66.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—With the spark of resentment fanned into flame the Green Bay Packers today were back in the National Professional Football race with a 17 to 0 shutout over the powerful Portsmouth Spartans to their credit.

After being held to two ties and defeated once, the Packers' chances for the championship were regarded very slim, but yesterday's victory changed opinions, although the road ahead is still hard.

The Chicago Bears gained undisputed possession of first place yesterday by defeating Brooklyn, 10 to 0, for their third straight. Boston nosed out New York, 21 to 20, and the Chicago Cardinals won their first game by beating Cincinnati, 3 to 0. The lineups:

BARONI LEADER IN OPEN PLAY

By TOM BIRKS

Fred Baroni, pro at the Oakland Beach course, Conneaut Lake, a former West Penn Open champion, led the field at the end of the first 18 holes of the 36-hole Schenley Open tournament being played over the Schenley Park course today. Hhe shot a brilliant 63, three under par figures, to lead the field.

Sam Parks, pro at South Hills, and Johnny Capebianco, of Aliquippa, were deadlocked for second place with 65's. The cards of the leaders:

Fred Baroni—

GIANTS PROVED WORTH, TERRY CONVINCED

By BILL TERRY

Manager New York Giants, World Champions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The keenest satisfaction the World Series triumph of the Giants holds for me is derived from the thought that the team's ability and solid worth now is generally recognized. The fans have accepted the Giants as a team that honestly earned its championship laurels.

Bill Terry

The series victory was clean-cut and decisive; the Giants won on merit alone. Luck or the breaks did not enter into the outcome. In a championship test, they proved their championship qualifications.

It was a team victory, too. Hubbell's phenomenal pitching was the outstanding feature of the series, of course, but even a most casual review of the series' developments reveals that at one time or another, every member of the team had a hand in the victory.

TEAM PLAY WINS

Ott's home run was of tremendous assistance to Hubbell in the opener; Lefty O'Doul's pinch hit turned the tide in the second; Jackson's perfect bunt and Blondy Ryan's run-scoring hit won the third, a game saved, incidentally, by the sensational double play engineered by Ryan and Critz—and Mel Ott's second home run, plus Luque's masterful relief pitching secured the final victory. During the series, too, Davis and Moore launched several rallies with their hits, and Mancuso's direction of the pitchers was faultless.

That's the merit of the Giants, to my mind, their splendid balance. They played as a team, not as nine individuals. One player complements the other, and as a team they present an unbroken front. There isn't a weak man in the line.

OTT'S HOMER COSTLY

Ott's series clinching home run probably cost the Giants $150,000, a Sunday game at the Polo Grounds would have been a certain sellout, but it was well worth it.

It climaxed a splendid year for the Giants; brought them a well deserved victory, and testified again to the inherent honesty and sportsmanship of baseball. It's a sport before it is a commercial enterprise and President Stoneham joins me in extending felicitations to all the Giants.

GIANTS HAILED AS CHAMPS

All honor, then, to Hubbell and the other pitchers who stood out through the long summer and in the October classic, but while we pay a deserved tribute to the staunch sharpshooters it is not getting out of line to suggest that the club would have been little better than an ordinary entry had the Ryans and the Jacksons, the Otts and the Moores, the Critzs and Mancusos shown any letup in their spirit.

Through it all the leadership of Bill Terry was an inspiration. Bill moved on the theory that nine heads were better than one and the winning of the National League flag and World Series, therefore, was a big family affair.

The Pirates will split $21,349.93 as their share of the series receipts. The series drew in all a paid attendance of 164,076, netting a grand total of $679,365. The commissioner's share was $101,904.75. The players pool for the first four games amounted to $284,665.68, 70 per cent of which went to the Giants and Senators on a 60-40 basis. The remainder was divided among the second, third and fourth place teams in each league.

White Sox Sweep Series With Cubs

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The Chicago White Sox ruled supreme in city baseball circles today after having administered four straight defeats to their old enemies, the Cubs, of the National League.

It was the thirteenth series won by the South Siders in 20 meetings.

The Cubs lost the final game, 5 to 1, yesterday. Guy Bush started for the Cubs, but he was replaced by Pat Malone after two runs had been scored in the first. Heving pitched for the winners and allowed seven hits.

The series drew 56,416 fans, paying $60,446. Each club received $10,374.82. The commissioner got $9,046.89. Winning players received $637.79, and losing players $456.70. The score by innings:

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

VOICES CAN BE REMADE SAYS INSTRUCTOR

Voices can be made over again and many of them should be, in the opinion of Elbert R. Moses, founder and president of the Pittsburgh School of Speech, Law and Finance Building.

"There are no two individuals born with the same timber. However, the quality of a person's voice can be improved. We think best when our voices are calm and controlled instead of harsh and rough."

President Roosevelt, he pointed out, has one of the most appealing voices of any man in public office today. In fact, he said, that he has one of the best voices of any president in recent years and this helps in bringing forth his human qualities. Moses said:

Pittsburgh policemen have harsher voices than those in most other cities, while in Boston and Washington the police have more of an inviting nature to their voices. He said:

"A person can develop an appealing quality in his voice. It helps in gaining business and confidence."

GMO DELIVERIES DOUBLE 1932

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Sales of General Motors cars and trucks to consumers in the United States in September were 71,458 units, comparing with 86,372 in August and 34,694 in September, 1932. Sales to dealers in the United States were 67,733 in September, against 84,504 in August and 23,545 in September, 1932. Total sales to dealers in the United States and Canada and overseas shipments were 81,148 in September, comparing with 97,614 in August and 30,117 in September, 1932.

For the first nine months of the year, sales to consumers in the United States were 644,892 units, against 450,347 in the like period in 1932. Sales to dealers in the United States were 672,545 cars and trucks compared with 420,543 last year, and total sales to dealers were 784,302 against 492,323 a year ago.

Decline in Steel Tonnage Expected

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Some Wall street quarters expect that the United States Steel Corporation September 30 unfilled tonnage figures to be released tomorrow will show a reduction from the previous month. This guess is based on the assumption of a slower rate of buying pending the industry's adjustment to the code, and the maintenance of a comparatively high rate of mill operations and shipments during the month.

Government Launches Stock Exchange Survey

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

FAR-REACHING changes in stock exchange practices may result from the work of a committee recently named by Secretary of Commerce Roper, at the suggestion of President Roosevelt.

The committee has been ordered to study all phases of the operations of the security exchanges in order to determine what legislation, if any, will be desirable for the protection of the public.

When the Securities Act was proposed last spring the President announced that a stock and commodity exchange bill also was under consideration. The appointment of the committee represents the desire of the administration to follow up this idea.

* * *

To Differ Widely From Past Studies

THE EXCHANGE has been investigated at many times in the past. It has been subject to bitter political attacks. The present study, judging from the men on the committee, will not be for the purpose of baiting the exchange to create a political effect. In this respect it will differ from all previous investigations.

The committee consists of Assistant Secretary of Commerce Dickinson, Undersecretary of the Treasury Acheson, Arthur Dean, of Sullivan & Cromwell and Prof. A. A. Berle, Government and outside experts have consented to aid in the work.

The bill was not taken up at the special session of Congress due to the fact that Secretary Roper is understood to have told the President that the subject was so intricate that great harm might be done by hasty action.

* * *

Need for Laws Still Uncertain

AFTER THE committee has completed its survey it will determine whether or not new legislation is necessary and practical. In addition, the power of the federal government to pass such legislation will be studied.

In its work the committee will meet with committees of the Senate and House which have the exchange and securities problems under their jurisdiction.

The securities act may also come under the scrutiny of the committee. The findings of the committee on this act may be of great importance in the changes which it is now felt Congress must make in its next session.

In its work, the committee is particularly anxious to avoid hasty recommendations which might result in legislation which would be harmful to business. Its mission is to correct existing abuses, if possible, and to protect both the public and the exchanges.

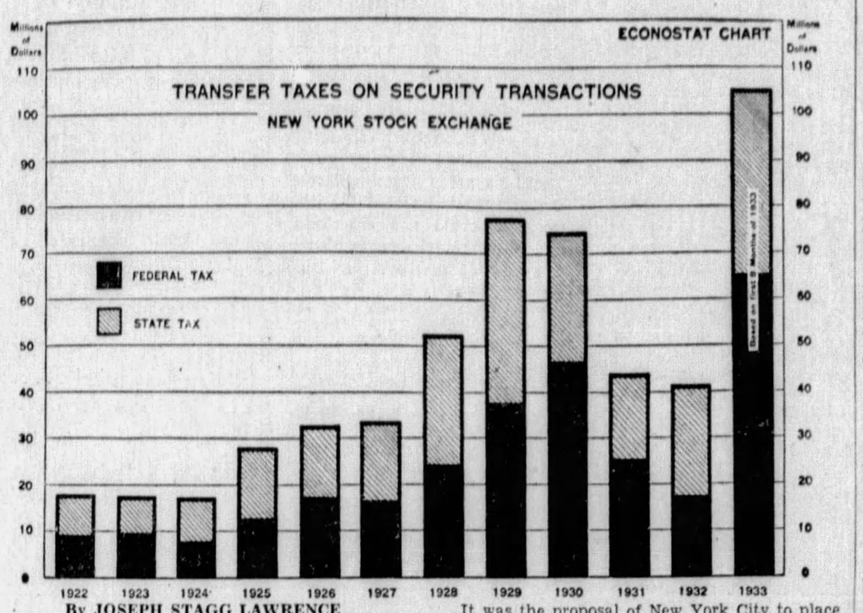
Securities Transfer Taxes Held Deterrent to Trading



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Econostat

This chart may be labeled the portrait of an issue. It is increased taxation of New York stock brokers and their transactions which brought about the threat of mass migration on the part of the New York Stock Exchange from its historic location at the lower end of Manhattan Island to Newark, N. J.

The chart shows the rising trend of tax burdens upon security transactions in this greatest of all security markets. The rise in the tax total up to 1929 was due entirely to an increase in the volume of transactions. The rise noted in 1933 was due in part to an increase in the volume of trading and also to the increase in state and federal taxes.

It was the proposal of New York City to place an additional transfer tax of 4 cents a share on stocks and a 5 per cent tax on the gross income of brokers which precipitated the preparations of the security community to move to the more tolerant jurisdiction of the State of New Jersey—a movement now abandoned.

A major reason for objection on the part of brokers is that taxes have a very marked effect on the volume of trading. They tend to reduce speculative activity and make a thin market. In such a market prices may not always be truly representatives of real values and it is the buyer and seller who ultimately suffer.

Entirely aside from this sound economic objection, it was claimed higher taxes had for some time been driving trading to other exchanges.

TRADE VOLUME AT RIGHT POINT FOR PRICES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—After the elation of the early summer spurt, industrial orders dropped about 10 per cent from the July level in August, and have since continued to move sidewise.

Mr. Rukeyser

Accordingly, a survey of the recent statistics of business shows vastly more stability than the gyrations in sentiment at the speculative center.

The climb upward was checked by the loss of the stimulus from a further relative increase in farm prices, which was tending to bring back 8,500,000 farm workers into the market for industrial products. This process was retarded less by the setback in farm prices than by the increase in the prices of industrial goods, which the farmer buys.

Thus the campaign to re-establish parity and economic balance was interrupted. From this viewpoint, the work that George Peek, administrator of the farm act, is doing to raise farm prices is of key importance to the whole economic structure.

BALANCE NEEDED

The great need is to create a state of equilibrium, which will enable the vast social classes—farmers, industrial workers and the service groups—freely to interchange the products of their hours of labor.

Advocates of a genuinely balanced economic life would like to see wheat at $1.50 a bushel, corn at 85 cents a bushel and cotton at 15 cents a pound.

With the present relationship of prices, business volume is just about where it should be. Accordingly, there is little justification for vague fears of the possibility of collapse.

On the other hand, with an aggressive farm program, accelerated public works and a clearly delineated monetary policy, it would be more reasonable to look forward to further absorption of the unemployed.

EMPLOYMENT ESTIMATE

One capable industrialist estimates that 4,000,000 persons have already returned to work. Deductions, however, must be made at present for those out of strike.

The epidemic of strikes tends to offset the program of recovery, thwarting the effort to get more men back to work. There is no disposition to question the right of labor to strike, but the effect of the weapon while unemployment is still rampant is especially damaging to the whole economic system. That is why there is a growing sentiment for a labor truce until more normal conditions are restored.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Industrial Rayon Corporation and subsidiaries report for nine months ended September 30, net profit of $1,258,035, after all charges, including interest, depreciation and federal taxes, equivalent to $6.29 a share. This compares with net loss of $210,928 after similar charges in the corresponding period last year.

STEEL DECLINE CHECKED BY GAINS HERE

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The seven weeks steady decline in steel production was broken last week, the magazine Steel said today, and the average output held at 38 per cent of capacity. The weekly review said:

"Notwithstanding labor difficulties Pittsburgh district steel mills put on enough additional capacity to cancel operating losses in the Buffalo, Wheeling and New England districts.

"This first break in a seven-week decline in production resulted from pressure for deliveries against third quarter contracts, which the steel code requires to be effective by October 15. This tonnage is chiefly for stock in anticipation of advancing prices and possible strike interruptions.

"In all lines of iron and steel, new business the past week was negligible, which is no unusual occurrence following the turn of a quarter and the conclusion of the contracting period. In a week or ten days mills will have shipped their third quarter obligations and be dependent upon strictly current consuming requirements, minus whatever withdrawals are made from stock.

"The rise in the Pittsburgh district operating rate last week from 30 per cent to 38, with 40 per cent probable this week, evidences the minor effect upon production.

"The fuel situation, however, remains tense. In the week ended September 30, no Connellsville beehive coke was made, the first blank week in 53 years. The deficiency in fuel has been supplied by Kentucky and West Virginia mines."

Lumber Bookings Best Since July

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Lumber orders booked at the mills during the week ended September 30 were higher than during any week since mid July, and production was slightly higher than the previous week, the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association reports.

Production totaled 192,164,000 feet; shipments from the mills amounted to 195,306,000 feet, and orders for new business to 187,022,000.

During the first nine months of the year production was 25 per cent above that of last year; shipments were 14 per cent above, and orders were 16 per cent in excess of last year.

U. S. Lead Stocks Lower Last Month

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—United States lead stocks on September 1 amounted to 257,301 short tons, comparing with 262,993 tons on August 1 and 252,534 tons on September 1, 1932, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

BONDS REFLECT MONETARY DOUBTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—(AP.)—The bond market displayed considerable indecision during the past week as sentiment ebbed and flowed on the question of sound money and inflation.

Prime investment issues, including United States government securities, generally maintained a steady to firm tone throughout a week that was replete with reports and rumors concerning the administration's monetary policy. The best grade loans indicated the growing belief that the government would not experiment with drastic currency expansion as a means of promoting national recovery, but would depend largely upon broadening of the credit horizon and the releasing of hundreds of millions of dollars in tied-up bank deposits.

MARKET CONFUSED

At the same time, as the inflationary wave appeared to recede, many secondary liens of all categories, which had accompanied common stocks on the upward spring-summer drive, turned heavy or rallied along with equities. As the week closed considerable confusion enveloped the more speculative groups.

Week-end trade reviews found that business and industry were lagging, with the principal slack being shown by the heavier lines which have been affected by labor troubles.

STEEL RATE HOLDS

Steel production, however, picked up a trifle and freight car loadings recorded a seasonal gain, although under the advance in the same 1932 week. It was also pointed out that wages were not keeping pace with prices.

Foreign obligations were highly irregular. German loans improved, due partly to buying from abroad and to repatriation by the reich. Issues of the gold standard countries rose and fell with dollar exchange rates.

SPECIALIZING FOR 101 YEARS IN COMMERCIAL BANKING FOR INDUSTRY

DEFINITE TREND ABSENT IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Definite trends were absent in listless security markets today and stocks and staples did little more than shift cautiously from one foot to another.

Equity trading started with a semblance of enthusiasm which put most of the alcohols and a number of specialties up 1 to around 2 or more points. The upward flurry died quickly as the metals developed a rather heavy tone and, after the first half hour, the ticker tape was inclined to move lazily. Prices settled down to a rather narrow range. Grains dipped and rallied nervously, but cotton held fairly steady in the face of the official prognostication of a greater yield than had been expected. Other commodities were irregular. Bonds were a bit mixed. The dollar was higher against sterling but lower in terms of French gold francs.

Gains of fractions to around a point were recorded by such stocks as Case, United States Steel, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Johns-Manville, Chrysler, Allied Chemical, American Can, Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania. National Distillers Industrial got up about 3 and United States Alcohol, Schenley and American Commercial Alcohol advanced a point or more. United States Smelting dropped more than 2 and Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, St. Joseph Lead and others of this group sagged around a point.

The government's cotton forecast of 12,885,000 bales, based on a condition figure of 66.7 per cent as of October 1, compared with recent private estimates ranging between 11,900,000 and some 12,400,000. Ordinarily, it was said in brokerage circles, this forecast would have been quite bearish. The administration's recent move to make substantial loans to farmers on a crop reduction basis, however, was believed to have offset to a considerable extent the present higher yield figures.

Market observers, notwithstanding the cloudy cotton picture, were cheered by the fact that hogs at Chicago reached a new top for the past year or more in the morning, advancing to $5.55. The previous peak was $5.50 in July last year. Today's price was the best for October since 1931. Proponents of advancing security prices recalled that rising hog quotations preceded the spring-summer boom in stocks.

The optimists also point to the recent strength displayed by the textile trade which, like hogs, led the upturn in general prices not only during the past spring but in the summer of 1932. But the more conservative financial circles are not too sure that the hog and textile indicators will duplicate their past performances because of many other complications which are present at this time.

GRAINS SUFFER SETBACKS

CHICAGO, Oct. 9. — Material setbacks in grain prices early today accompanied increased pressure to sell, disclosing lack of aggressive demand. Much of the selling came from Eastern sources. Opening unchanged to ¼c off, wheat later receded all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c lower, and subsequently underwent a general decline.

Bearish aspects of the government crop report today as to cotton had a decided weakening effect on grains and wheat soon declined about two cents a bushel.

Corn and oats took their cue from wheat action. Provisions were steadied by upturns of hog values to the highest point since October, 1931.

LARGER COTTON CROP SEEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—A cotton crop of 12,885,000 bales is forecast by the Department of Agriculture, based on a condition figure of 66.7 per cent as of October 1. This compares with the September 1 figure of 12,414,000 bales, on a condition of 67.5 per cent and final 1932 output of 13,002,000 bales.

The Census Bureau reports 5,851,415 running bales of lint cotton, counting round bales as halves, ginned from the crop of 1933 prior to October 1, comparing with 4,835,000 bales for 1932 and 5,409,567 for 1931.

Yield per acre is placed at 205.3 pounds on October 1, against 197.8 on September 1 and 173.3 in 1932.

Commenting on the report, the board said:

"The October forecast is an increase of 471,000 bales or 3.8 per cent above the September forecast. The indicated crop is 117,000 bales less than the crop produced in 1932 and 1,781,000 bales or about 12 per cent below the 1928-1932 average of 14,666,000 bales.

"The average yield forecast as of October 1 is 205.3 pounds per acre, compared with 173.3 pounds in 1932 and an average yield for the period 1922-1931 of 167.4 pounds per acre.

"Conditions during September were unusually favorable for maturing late bolls. In most parts of the belt the crop is mature and a large proportion of bolls have opened. Picking and ginning have made good progress under favorable conditions."

Financial Topics

Moree Confidence Noted On Bullish Side Market.

Bullish sentiment around the street is growing a little bolder. The resistance of the general market to weakness in grains last week and the ability of some of the stocks to push ahead to new highs for the current move has been encouraging. While the stocks which have pushed into higher levels are largely under professional sponsorship, it is nevertheless enlightening to see the lack of resistance in these issues to operations for the rise. Some feel that this points the way for a broader forward move.

The rayon industry is apparently enjoying a real upturn in business and operating profits. Textiles, as a whole, have been doing well, but rayon seems to be running ahead of the industry as a whole. Industrial rayon, for example, reports net for the nine months ended September 30, last, equal, after all charges, to $6.29 a share on its no par capital stock. This contrasts with a net loss of $210,928 reported for the same period last year. Of that amount, $2.86 a share was earned in the past three months. The stock, responding to the showing, moved to new high levels for the advance.

The American Telephone earnings statement for the third quarter will be issued October 16. In view of the fact that September showed the first net gain in phones for the system in about two years and considering the operating economies effected earlier in the year, some encouragement should be derived from this report. In the first half of this year, Telephone reported a balance of $3.54 earned for the common, of which $1.82 a share was earned in the second quarter.

While the rate of steel operations in September fell to 40.89 per cent of capacity, that level was in sharp contrast to the 17.64 per cent average for the industry in the corresponding month of 1932. In July, with operations at 58.95 per cent, steel makers generally were in the "black" in spite of the increased costs they were forced to absorb through NRA operations. The lull in the steel rate got under way in August, and put operations down to 49.42 per cent. Generally, 40 per cent is regarded as the dividing line between profitable and unprofitable steel making, but increased costs now in effect make a profit at 40 per cent of capacity out of the question for a number of units in the industry.

Wall Street went into the new week with the belief that there are some momentous developments at hand. The "buy now" campaign, which starts today, suggests that things will not be long delayed in order to help the business drive. Stocks have shown persistent stubborness in the face of the recent slump in grains which is a good sign. There is a lot of confidence commodities will turn in a better performance this week. They are too important an influence on the business picture to be neglected by the powers-that-be. . .

Standard Statistics Co., in its weekly summary of the general business situation says:

"Conservatism still dominates business enterprise, largely in reflection of monetary uncertainties and the lack of a clear understanding of the future policy of the administration with respect to prices. Until these prospects can be gauged with some degree of carlity, no basis will exist for resumption of the forward movement on a broad front. Relative stability, however, appears in near term prospect in most lines at approximately present levels."

'FIRST DAY' SALE OF STAMP HERE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Pittsburgh has been added today to the list of postoffices where the five-cent Kosciusko commemorative stamp will be first placed on sale next Friday. Other offices are Chicago, Boston, Detroit, St. Louis, Buffalo and Kosciusko, second-class office in Attala County, Miss. The stamp is being issued in honor of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko in recognition of his services during the Revolutionary War.

The decision from the office of Postmaster General Farley is in recognition of the growing activities of stamp collectors in the Pittsburgh area since the inauguration of the Stamp Collectors' Department in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Simple Rules and Prize List for COMICRAX Contest

(1) "Comicrax," the new pastime, will run as a weekly contest in the Daily Sun-Telegraph—appearing on the Want Ad pages, (Second weekly contest begins Monday, October 9).

(2) The contest will consist of 6 Daily cartoons, each drawn to represent some popular phrase or "by-word" and with each cartoon there will appear a list of these popular phrases in which list the correct answer for the cartoon of the day will be included.

(3) The prizes to be awarded by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will total $100.00 weekly as follows:

First Prize	$25.00
Second Prize	$15.00
Third Prize	$10.00
4th & 5th Prizes, $5.00 each,	$10.00
6th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th Prizes, $3.00 each	$15.00
25 Prizes, $1.00 each	$25.00
35 Cash Prizes totaling	$100.00

(4) These prizes will be awarded to the entrants who submit the most nearly correct and neatest sets of answers in each weekly series and who submit the best letters of not more than 50 words on the question "Which Want Ad appeared in the Sun-Telegraph during the current week most interested you and why?"—attaching the Want Ad or a copy of it to your letter and giving the date and classification of its appearance.

(5) The first group of cartoons—6 in all—must be submitted as a single unit and distinctly separate from any contest cartoons to appear in succeeding weeks' issues of the Sun-Telegraph. The sets of answers for the second week's "Comicrax" contest must be in the hands of the Comicrax Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., before midnight, Tuesday, October 17th.

(6) The judges will be selected by the Sun-Telegraph and their decisions will be final. The Sun-Telegraph will not enter in any correspondence about letters or cartoons in this "Comicrax" contest. The contest is open to everyone in the reading area of this newspaper except employees and their families of the Sun-Telegraph or of Radio Station WCAE, affiliated with the Sun-Telegraph.

(7) It is not necessary to buy the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in order to compete. Copies of the Sun-Telegraph are on file at public libraries and may be examined without charge. Copies may also be examined at the Sun-Telegraph. Contestants may send tracings of the contest cartoons if they so wish.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"Give me a chance, give me a break!" said Murtoch. "I don't want to die. I don't want to be shot. If I gave you the goods on Crelliman, what would you do for me?"

"Quit stalling," said Durant disgustedly. "We want Crelliman dead."

"I'll get him dead for you!" cried the gangster. "If he hired me to kill someone, wouldn't he go to the chair?"

"Of course he would," said Durant. "But if that's all you have to say—why would you confess that you killed someone at his orders?"

"Because if I told on him I wouldn't get the chair. I wouldn't be killed. I'd get life and he'd get the chair if you people stuck up for me and said that I told you.

"So help me God, I'm not stalling. And I have another witness. She was with me three nights ago when Crelliman gave me a grand to bump off—I'm not telling who, not until you promise that you'll get me off."

"Get you off? For a murder? I'll get you life imprisonment but that's the best. Take it or leave it. You know me. You know my word is good."

"I don't want to die. I'll take your word. Crelliman hired me to kill Montagne. There was a girl in the flat with me three nights ago when he told me to do it, when he gave me the money. He didn't know she was in my bedroom, but she heard it all. She's stuck on me; she'll come through for me."

"Who is she? I think you're lying, but I'll take a chance. I can postpone killing you for a little while. But if she's out of town or can't be reached, then say your prayers, Murtoch."

"She's right in this building. Has an apartment here. Her name is Mamie Ross. She's in Apartment 13-D. You go down and ask her what she heard. For God's sake, give me a break; give me a chance!"

GUNMAN CONFESSES

Durant nodded to Stevens. Instantly the lieutenant left the room, and the next 10 minutes were the longest Durant had ever spent. If the girl refused to talk . . . Then Stevens reentered the room bringing with him a rather pretty girl who had thrown a kimono over her pajamas

"She was in the bedroom, Mr. Durant. She heard Crelliman tell Murtoch to be in this room the next night and to shoot Montagne when and if she came out on the porch with Siddall. That's all she knows. She says that she told Murtoch not to be a sucker, but to let Crelliman do his own killing. She says she thought from the papers, that Siddall had killed the girl. She lies, but that's to square herself for not telling the police what she knew."

Durant looked at Murtoch. "You confess that you shot Mimi Montagne from the window of your apartment?"

"Yes, yes, yes," whimpered Murtoch.

Durant walked to the window. Gertie Waxted and Crelliman were leaving the porch and entering the penthouse. He turned back to Stevens.

"You and I ought to be enough to take Crelliman. You two men"—he addressed the detectives—"take this man and this woman to Police Headquarters and book them. Come on, Stevens."

Durant yawned; his eyes opened. He looked about the bedroom. He grinned as he pressed the button that would summon Layton. Then his eyes widened as the bedroom door opened and Gertie Waxted entered the room.

DURANT COLLAPSES

"So you're here, are you?" he said. "Where have you been keeping yourself? Did I so fail in hospitality that I made you take the couch outside?"

"You didn't make me do anything," she told him. "You just collapsed, and Layton and I put you to bed."

"Layton and—you?"

"Uh-huh. Spare my maiden blushes and don't ask too many details; and let me tell you something, mister: if I'd known the shape you were in I'd never let you do what you did without a shot of hooch. Why, the doctor said you were crazy to go through all that mental strain without a drink, after the way you'd been hitting it up."

"The doctor—I have no recollection of seeing him—underestimates my will power," said Durant.

"Of course you don't remember seeing him. You busted into Crelliman's penthouse, and Stevens put the bracelets on him before he realized what was coming to him. You were pretty groggy then, but I didn't realize what a strain you'd been under, or I'd have put you to bed in Crelliman's flat. I did ask if you were tired, but no, the big mans had to finish it all up at once. You had to roust the district attorney out of bed and have young Siddall waked up out of a nice sound sleep in the Tombs before you'd go home. And when I finally got you here, did you go out like a light!"

"Have I been out long?" asked Durant.

"It's 10 a. m. You passed out at 6 yesterday morning. The doctor gave you a shot in the arm and that helped. He was in last night and said you were sleeping like a babe and not to worry. But I got to thinking you'd never wake up."

"And I suppose you can't wait to read the headlines," she said.

REPORTERS WAITING

"Are there many?" asked Durant.

"Many!" Nothing else but. Editorials, too. 'One of the most brilliant feats of detection in the annals of crime.' 'The most dastardly plot against an innocent man exposed by the uncanny intellect of Jackson Durant.' 'The City owes such a man civic honors.' Holy cats, are you tops? You have struck the deadliest blow against gangster rule that's been delivered yet. Why, the papers yesterday afternoon said there had been criticism of your abandonment of an orthodox legal career, but your service in clearing an innocent man and sending Crelliman on the way to the chair was ample justification of that abandonment. And do I speak rich language?" she giggled.

"Like a professor," he chuckled. "And now, if you'll remove all your allure from this room, I'll climb out of bed, shave and shower, and join you on the porch."

"And will you see the reporters before or after breakfast?" she asked.

"Not even to explain my presence here?"

His eyes darkened. "Are they hinting—has anything been printed about you and me?"

"Only that I'm your assistant and that I staged a scene with Crelliman to impress Murtoch. And I don't get that at all. According to what you said before you passed out, you didn't use Crelliman and me at all. You didn't need me on his porch. Then why have me there?"

Durant eyed her. "You're like the child who wants to know how the trick is done, aren't you? And then the illusion is gone. But you deserve to be told, Gertie. I meant to re-enact Murtoch's killing of Mimi in order to break him down. Only I pretended that I was going to kill you. And then Murtoch himself gave me a better idea. He said that your murder would be pinned on him, and I went on, impromptu, from that cue.

CLUB RECONSIDERS

"But when you and Layton combine to write my life, let your millions of readers think that I planned all along to let Murtoch believe I intended to pin your murder on him. It makes me less fallible. And now, will you, like a modest creature, withdraw your shining presence from my chamber?"

She made a face at him and left the room. He was smiling as he went into the bath for his shower, and his eyes were gay as he joined her later on the porch. He beamed on Layton as the worthy servitor, muttering excited greetings, poured his coffee. He glanced idly at the front pages of the newspaper. Then he reached for a pile of mail.

He opened an envelope and whistled softly. The governors of the Mallet would be pleased if he would name a day on which his fellow club members could give a dinner in his honor. His clearing of Thomas Siddall from the charge of murder was so brilliant a thing that the club would like to make a semi-public showing of its esteem and respect.

So he'd come back, eh? Because he had cleared a gentleman from a serious charge, instead of a low racketeer, his own people wanted him back. His career had become worthy, had it?

WINTER AT VALLEY FORGE (1777-1778)

Talking about liberty and love of country and suffering for these causes are different stories. The Americans who took up arms in the Revolutionary War actually underwent sacrifices to make the country free and prosperous. The winter at Valley Forge, when starving and freezing Americans held out against the British, was a brilliant manifestation of real love of country. Washington and Lafayette are shown sharing the deprivations of their men. (Character Building.)

MES OGLETHORPE DEALING WITH INDIANS

Oglethorpe (1696-1785) received the last charter anted by George II, King of England, in 1732 to rm a colony for British insolvents and criminals the territory of today's Georgia. Though zealous he did not succeed in making the colony pay on account of economic and political troubles. His charter expired (1753), Georgia becoming again a royal colony. But Oglethorpe lived long enough to see his colony's independence acknowledged by the British after the Revolutionary War. (United States History.)

HYDROGEN AND OXYGEN BY ELECTROLYSIS (Chemistry)

Hydrogen (H) is a colorless, tasteless, odorless gas, the lightest of all. It is combustible, forming water (H_2O) by burning. From water it can be obtained by the disintegrating effect of electric current: electrolysis. Above the front and side sections of the Levin generator for decomposing water into hydrogen and oxygen. (For another electrolytic cell see issue of September 20.) Each cell contains three compartments. Hydrogen is produced in the center, containing the cobalt-plated cathode (negative electrode) while oxygen is liberated in the two outer chambers, containing the nickel-plated anode (positive electrode). The electricity-conducting solution to be decomposed (electrolyte) is alkaline. (Taylor: Industrial Hydrogen.)

RIDING PLOWS (Gen. Science)

They are drawn by horses, the operator riding in the seat. The plow-bottom consists of share and moldboard. Plow with 1 bottom is called a sulky; with more bottoms, a gang plow. The above is one type of sulky plow. It has one land wheel, vertical, and two furrow wheels, inclined to counteract the side pressure from the plow bottom. By the depth-landing—and leveling levers the plow bottom and the furrow are regulated.

VOLCANIC THEORY OF LUNAR CRATERS

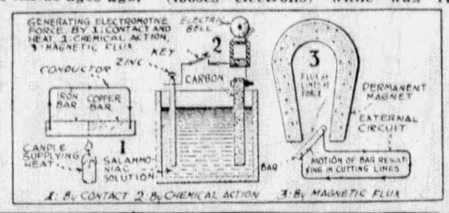
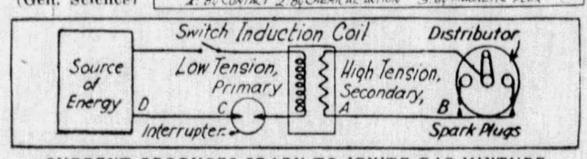
The moon's diameter is 2,160 miles and its distance from the earth varies between 222,000 and 253,000 miles. (Gen. Science)





CURRENT PRODUCES SPARK TO IGNITE GAS MIXTURE

Low tension current is transformed into high tension, sufficient to make a spark, by the induction coil. (Moyer: Gasoline Automobile.)

Courtesy of McGraw-Hill Book Co. (Croft: Pract. Electricity)

ELECTRICITY IS ENERGY AND CONSTITUENT OF MATTER

Non-metallic substances rubbed together are capable of attracting light bodies. The cause of this is electricity, consisting of minute particles, the positive protons and the negative electrons. The same kind repel, the different kinds attract and neutralize each other.

Above: Glass rubbed with silk will become positively charged (looses electrons) while wax rubbed with cotton becomes negatively charged (gains such).

Right: Placing a charged body near a non-charged body is the method of electrifying an insulated conductor (metal). This is electrostatic induction. Electric particles separated in this way make static electricity. Flowing electrons make the electric current. The cause of the flow is the electromotive force, generated in different ways.

Left: Generation by contact and heat, chemical action and magnetic induction. Very strong electromotive force (high tension) may chase electrons over a gap between conductors causing a spark. Electricity cannot be generated it is always present in matter which is composed of electrical particles.

PERICLES, SPEAKING FOR FALLEN HEROES

Pericles (495-429 B. C.) was a leader famous in war and peace, especially as a great orator. He became sole ruler over Athens in 444 B. C., bringing about prosperity by wise statesmanship, and beautifying the city with magnificent structures. He encouraged civic interest by saying: "We regard a man who shows no interest in public affairs not as a harmless but as a useless character"...

Nothing Like a Good Book

We recommend very lavishly that lovely story, "Murder in a Thimble." Who killed Bronson Bump? The only clue is a hat left in a nudist colony. The story starts in 1756 and winds up in 1924. That doesn't mean years. It's the numbers of the hotel rooms. What was the thimble baited with? What was Bronson Bump's motive in seeking to mix stratosphere with gin? Why did his beautiful wife jab a hatpin through a keyhole and then do a swan dive into a saucer of coffee?

Who was the sinister figure with the paper ears always lurking in the background? Why had he threatened doomish disaster to the family of Bronson Bump? This story is an intimate biography of grade crossings and holiday driving. It is the author's first book and firmly establishes him in the archives of the dead letter office.

There are 16 homicides, 11 strange evaporations and an even dozen barn burnings in "Murder in a Thimble." It's the thing for the boat or the train. Just like getting your home town newspaper.

"Although handicapped by the size of his arena the author does very well. We recommend it as a nice sample of optimistic brooding."

"'Murder in a Thimble' is a tasty dab of Greenwich Village at its best. When the pet chimpanzee strangles the hero and brings the cup back to America it betokens a new high spot in kindergarden training. While gloomerific in spots and sadistic in others we can truly say it has the authentic Harvard background."

"The author should go a long ways. He should start right this minute if he is smart."

"Nothing quite like it. But it reminds you of everything. It was Edgar Allen Poe's best plot. And Edgar admitted he copped it from a bill poster."

Help the Hospitals!

Charity and Good Business Judgment Demand That the State Shall Come to Their Rescue.

The 8-year-old son of a foreigner, a workingman in very humble circumstances, was taken to a Pittsburgh hospital recently in a critical condition from tetanus, the result of running a dirty splinter into his hand. By a liberal use of antitoxin the boy's life has been saved, The serum cost the hospital $152.40, and it is doubtful if the child's father can pay for it. Who, then, is to pay?

Let us consider a more common demand on the hospitals. Someone dangerously ill from pneumonia is rushed to a hospital. The physicians direct that oxygen shall be given. The patient is put in an oxygen tent and the gas administered. A serious illness of two weeks duration probably would cost the hospital at least $70 for oxygen alone. Suppose the patient is indigent—who is to pay?

The hospitals of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania have had to take care of innumerable cases like this—expensive cases—cases in which the patients have been unable to pay. And the result is that many of the hospitals have been brought to the verge of bankruptcy.

The general hospital in Rochester, Pa., recently found itself in such desperate straits that it had only two dozen eggs on hand and needed 15 dozen to take care of the patients' requirements for a single day. It sent out an SOS call, which brought it baskets of eggs and provisions. But what a shameful thing it is that a hospital should have been forced to such extremes to meet its daily needs!

The depression is responsible, of course, for the hospitals' plight—the depression and the refusal of the state to recognize the hospitals' need as of as great importance as unemployment relief.

At a time when the demands on the hospitals for free service reached unprecedented heights the appropriations of those which receive state aid were reduced!

The 30 or more large hospitals in the Pittsburgh district are not commercial institutions. They are not run for profit, and they cannot survive without contributions in addition to the payment received from patients.

Unless the unfortunates who require treatment and are unable to pay for it are to go unaided and be left to die, it is up to the people of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania to come to the rescue of the hospitals—and that at once.

One thing that every citizen can do to assist the hospitals eligible for state aid is to vote on November 7 in favor of the proposed $25,000,000 state bond issue for charitable purposes.

Another thing that should be done is to form neighborhood and community organizations to raise money for the hospitals, particularly those which, because they are in charge of religious organizations, are not eligible for state aid. Bear in mind that lines of creed or race are never drawn by these sectarian hospitals in receiving patients.

Here are some suggestions for women's clubs, civic bodies and other organizations that would like to do something for the hospitals:

The auxiliary of a Canonsburg hospital has been conducting a "quilt campaign." The Jameson Memorial Hospital at New Castle sponsored two Food Donation Days. A one-day street carnival was given at Tyrone for the benefit of the Philipsburg State Hospital. A horse show was given at Philadelphia for the benefit of one hospital, and a fashion show called "Bagatelles" for the benefit of another.

There is one other thing that the well-wishers of the hospitals can do, and that is to ask Gov. Pinchot to include in his program for the special session of the Legislature next month legislation for the relief of the hospitals.

It is not only charity but also good business judgment to support these valuable institutions.

Backing the Wrong Nag

The Beaver-Mahoning Route Is Best for a Canal to Connect the Ohio With Lake Erie.

The Oakmont Chamber of Commerce has telegraphed President Roosevelt, asking him to include in the NRA public works program the construction of a canal to connect Lake Erie with the Allegheny River by way of French Creek.

Lake Erie lies at a level 150 feet below that of Pittsburgh. The proposed canal would divert water from the Allegheny River. Most of the time we need all the water in the Allegheny that we can get, to dilute and counteract the effect of pollution such as that which is now pouring down the Clarion River from the paper mills at Johnsonburg.

The businessmen of Pittsburgh, no less desirous than those of Oakmont of a canal to connect the Ohio River with the Great Lakes, have decided after 50 years of study that the Beaver-Mahoning River route is the best.

Apropos of contamination like that from the Johnsonburg paper mills, which is expected in a day or two to discolor slightly and give a slightly disagreeable taste to Pittsburgh's drinking water, Grover Ladner, a well-known Philadelphia lawyer, makes an interesting suggestion.

Ladner proposes that the NRA include in all codes a blanket provision to the effect that if an industry pollutes streams, and if practicable methods of treatment or disposal of these wastes are known, the industry be required as a part of its code to employ these methods of treatment. This would place all competitors on the same footing, as opposed to the handicaps that might be imposed by state legislation of this sort.

So far as coal mines are concerned, the sealing of abandoned mines, as proposed by the United Stafes Bureau of Mines, might be sufficient to eliminate excess pollution. Kenneth A. Reid, of Connellsville, a member of the State Board of Fish Commissioners, writes in respect to this:

"As an illustration of the magnitude of abandoned mine pollution as compared with that coming from operating mines, the Youghiogheny River above the mouth of Indian Creek gets 90 per cent of its acid mine drainage from abandoned mine workings and only 10 per cent from active mines. While abandoned mines are not proportionately as great a factor in the pollution of the Kiskiminetas River, they are a very important one, and the correction of their pollution would materially reduce the acidity of this stream, and consequently the Allegheny, into which it discharges."

It is worthy of note, too, that not all mines discharge an acid drainage. For example, water issuing from the Consumers Mining Company's Harmarville mine is alkaline. It is a shaft mine and air does not easily find its way into the deep workings, to oxidize sulphur and promote the formation of sulphuric acid.

Pittsburgh's water resources are among its most valuable assets, and it is encouraging to find businessmen and others awaking to the importance of preserving and developing them.

Shutting Off the Fuel

(Copyright, 1933.)

Under a wise policy of Federal aid—of aid extended in the form of shipbuilding loans and ocean and air mail contracts—America has been re-establishing its merchant marine and developing splendid aviation services.

Ships and airplanes are both primary national assets.

We need them both for travel. We need them both for trade. We need them both to defend our own shores and our overseas possessions when war is again visited upon us. And we cannot have them without Federal subventions.

In search of abuses a special committee of the United States Senate is now conducting an ill-timed inquiry into the mail contracts.

But everybody suspects that the Senate inquiry was not motivated by a crusading zeal against abuses. The old and unreasonable prejudice against American subsidies for the benefit of the American people was what made the Senate resolution of inquiry possible.

However, the inquiry is on. Let the Senators search out abuses and let the Government act accordingly with respect to any abuses exposed.

But let the Senators also understand one thing clearly—the American people will bitterly resent any attempt to wreck our young merchant marine or to clip the wings of aviation by meddling with the mail contract laws and policies.

Selling Out Love

Money isn't the only thing for which love is sold. It's going so cheap, these days, that Jack (the Beanstalk boy) who traded a perfectly good cow for a hatful of pretty beans, seems almost like a financial genius beside the average human being. At least he got a thrilling adventure in exchange.

* * *

The things we do to kill love, the mess we make of it, the cheap trumpery for which we barter it, must make the angels weep! And the devil laugh!

* * *

Some of us make a GAME of love just an amusing pastime for our lighter moments. All our SERIOUS thoughts are concentrated on money-making or social climbing or keeping our hips and weight down.

Others commercialize love and think they've made a good bargain when they trade it in for an ermine coat and a few square-cut diamonds. Or for a trip to Europe or a limousine.

* * *

Some women strangle love to death with jealousy, or choke the life out of it with demands, exactions, tears or kisses. And some men freeze love to death with criticism or indifference, crush it out with petty selfishness, or send it into a coma from neglect.

* * *

Lots of people dodge love, these days, as they would dodge a creditor. They will risk their lives in airplanes, gamble their fortunes in Wall Street and merrily flirt with death at railroad crossings. But they shiver at the thought of staking their affections or their hearts on anybody. They live in the cold fear of becoming emotionally entangled and taking a chance on happiness. * * *

But most of us just SELL love—for anything that's offered—or exchange it, as we do our old furniture. For ambition, for a career, for what we fondly call our "freedom" — or what-have-you?

Lots of young women have given up love and marriage in exchange for what they thought was "duty." And lots of fine young men have let the love they prized die of starvation, while they worked overtime trying to get rich enough to marry the girl.

* * *

How many bleak old men we meet, who preferred their creature comforts to love and companionship. And how many modern young women we meet, who feel that no man's love could repay them for the "independence" of their pay envelopes. That's selling love awfully CHEAP!

* * *

We're a bright lot of boys and girls—we humans! We'll SELL ANYTHING—love, health, happiness—and sell it cheap. And yet, the only things worth WHILE in this life are the things that Fate hands us on a silver platter, and which we cheerfully trade for "a hatful of pretty beans!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—In the manner of Arnold Bennett's journal: We drove from Philadelphia yesterday in a drumming rain. Stopping at Staten Island for lunch at an admirable tavern with lump gilt mirrors, red plush furniture and glass door-knobs. The sun coming out, M. and the dogs walked far down a country lane.

Something melancholy about ending a vacation, especially on Sunday. So with Mike and Alice Hogg to a place called The Stork. Too fireworky and stuffy for me and the check, which I did not pay, outrageous. Afterward driving past the Rockefeller cathedral as the carillon chimed.

Getting comfortable in bed, I began to read an accumulation of newspapers and periodicals. For years I have decried war with Japan as propaganda of jingoists. But now firmly believe such a set-to is more than a vague probability and soon. Superb October weather.

This morning I breakfasted alone and wrote 1,000 words. Earl Carrol came by. He arrived at 10:35 and left at 11. He is resolved not to invite critics to his theatrical productions in the future. He thinks they write merely for acclaim of their own circle. I did not try to dissuade him.

* * *

Hubert Kelley, a young man of the Kansas City Star, came in this morning to interview me. He appeared a bright fellow and is on a roaming assignment. I had a feeling, as after all questioning, I talked too much. One of the best jobs of random reporting I've often thought was that done by Julian Street for Collier's about 25 years ago. Goodish subjects the way through.

* * *

This afternoon I visited a publisher and pocketing an advance, articled to turn out a book "New York and Its Celebrities." Inquiring if anything in especial was to be stressed, he generalized: "Make it pithy!" But my problem is time. As I grow older the task of writing becomes increasingly tedious. I postpone the new.

* * *

I called at Leon Gordon's studio in the Beaux Arts. A young lady who ran the lift said he had gone to Carlsbad. So I tucked a card under his door with the scribble: "I have long wanted to grow old so I could go to Carlsbad."

* * *

Joining M. in a reception room of the Waldorf, we went around the corner to a tea from which Mrs. Patrick Campbell was sweeping to a car, imperiously. Someone recalled her flare-up with Shaw during a rehearsal of "Pygmalion." An argument and the famous vegetarian became shirty. "You are a horrible fellow," cried Mrs. Pat. "One day you'll eat beefsteak and then Heaven protect all women." It was recorded Shaw flamed red to the roots of his hair.

* * *

There were at this tea four acquaintances divorced and remarried since we saw them last. All seemed flogging themselves into pseudo-gaiety with cocktails. A chanteuse warbled a putrid thing. I jockeyed Maybelle Olwell into a corner for engaging talk, and save for this interlude altogether a beefy time and pleased when people started to go.

* * *

On way home M. took me in hand about my incessant grumbling, but we ran into a fellow who owes me quite a sum and this furnished such opportunity to change the subject. I was glad to see him. Before taking a tub I went over the typescript of my motor journey and noticed far too frequent use of the word "arcadia." And Lord, I thought, if one could but re-write a piece after seeing it in print. But I detest tidying a work once done. Reading "Richard Harding Davis, His Days," and talking to Walter Chrysler, Jr., on the phone, until time to go again.

* * *

Dinner with the Irvin Cobbs. Laura home from Vichey much rested. Others included the Hoggs, Elizabeth Blun, Kitty and Messmore Kendall, Buff Cobb and her husband Steve. Talk afterward about Selfridge, London department store man, the Book of Ecclesiastes, cat holes in doors, Boze Bulger and city editor Chapin.

* * *

Coolish walking home and saw Morris Gest dreaming along a dark side street and halooed if he remembered the institution they used to call the theater. He nodded sadly. We inspected the kitchen refrigeration Rex Cole installed while away and I fell to telling M. that some day air conditioned houses would have no windows. But she yawned: "All right, but pull down ours and go to bed." "Hic jacet."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Does it pay to be good?

Is honesty always "the best policy?" Does "virtue always triumph?" Will bread "cast upon the waters" always come back to you—nicely covered with butter and jam?

As a child you were assured that all these nice things would happen, and you've tried to live up to that teaching. But as the years have passed and one noble deed after another has failed to produce dividends—you've wondered. Does goodness really pay? Or is this such an evil world that only the ruthless and cruel have a chance to survive?

Does goodness pay? That depends on what you mean by "pay." If you mean that you'll get promotion and a bonus, medals and sweet kisses, then you might as well face the sad fact right now that GOODNESS DOESN'T PAY.

Neither in popularity nor cash rewards is goodness usually profitable. To the contrary, one of the best ways to make yourself extremely unpopular and have yourself ridiculed or gyped is to be entirely honest, brave, clean and generous. Nor is the reason hard to find.

This is still an uncivilized world. Most of us are still wrestling with husky hang-overs of savage greediness, cowardice, dishonesty and vanity. We don't admit this. Most of us don't even realize it. But we act on it. We have built for ourselves a comfortable social scheme which protects our cowardice, condones our greediness, alibis our dishonesty and cruelty.

Then along comes someone who, by his superior honesty, courage and kindness, disrupts our nice, snug hideout! And do we not love and reward that person?

Yes, we do NOT!

Why do the wicked so frequently flourish while the righteous get it in the neck? That's why. Because the wicked have the Machine behind them—and the righteous have only the Ten Commandments.

So, if you're aiming to sit pretty with the Machine, goodness won't get you very far—and cutting corners will pay far better than a crucifixion.

BUT IF YOU REALLY WANT TO LIVE ABUNDANTLY AND BEAUTIFULLY—

IF YOU WANT, IN YOUR SHORT SPAN OF YEARS, TO TAKE PART IN THE GREAT CRUSADES AND GLIMPSE THE TALL GLORIES—

THEN IT DOES PAY TO BE GOOD!

You may lose your friends thereby; your job; your bank roll; your reputation. You may be ridiculed, abused, slandered. And you will certainly have to endure endless loneliness and discouragement. Yet, in spite of all that, if you really want to get the most out of life, and are willing to ante up the price—

IT DOES PAY TO BE GOOD!

By that do I mean that, after this earthly travail, you will go to heaven and be rewarded with harps and haloes?

I do not. For all I know, our existence may end with our last breath. But even if it does—even if there is nothing more than this little life—

IT STILL PAYS TO BE GOOD!

If there is no more, all the more reason to make the most of this. And the honest, brave, kind, clean man does make the most of this. He has a peace and he has a power no other man can know. In the bitterest hour of persecution, he has the consolation of his own self-respect. In the blackest hour of grief, he can remember—stars!

It pays to be good. Don't ever doubt it.

Text for Today

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.—Matthew, vi:19, 21.

The Human Side of the News

The Story of Henry Ford, Who in 30 Years Has Accumulated One of the World's Largest Fortunes

By EDWIN C. HILL

WHO is the richest man in America today? Is it John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who holds the reins over the great Rockefeller fortune? Is it Andrew W. Mellon, with his far-flung interests? Or is it that remarkable personality who is responsible for so many tremendous developments in this country outside of mere automobile building? I mean, of course, none other than Henry Ford.

Henry Ford — whose magic touch drew half a million people to Pontiac's old city of Detroit, that city by the lake which has such a picturesque and colorful history.

Henry Ford—who was the first to raise the price of labor and nail it to the higher levels.

Henry Ford—who is such a curious and arresting mixture of simplicity and shrewdness, of extraordinary business acumen and sentimentalism.

Henry Ford—the inspired mechanic of the old days, a wizard with machines, yet something of a poet at heart.

As outstanding an example of clean, straightforward (though often naive) Americanism as we have seen in big business over the sweep of the years, Henry Ford is, if figures don't lie, the only American billionaire—the only rich man who can set down his fortune in more than nine figures. He is the only toweringly rich man who has kept clear of Wall street and of the often devious manipulations of high finance.

The Ford fortune, which may aggregate a billion and a quarter, taking the worth of his company and the personal fortunes of himself and his son, Edsel, is undoubtedly one of the most respectable fortunes that was ever built up by genius, perseverance and foresight. It was built up as the natural reward of giving the people what they wanted without taking from the people more than a fair and measured profit. And the story of its origin and its growth is to me one of the most fascinating stories in all the annals of this land of opportunity.

* * *

Fortune Founded Thirty Years Ago

THERE were 12 men in it at the beginning, and the beginning was 30 years ago; June 16, 1903, to be exact. Eleven of them had money, the twelfth had only an idea. But Malcolmson, the coal merchant, had faith in the twelfth man's idea, and he started the subscription list. His clerk, Jim Couzens, came forward with his savings of $900 and another $100 borrowed from his sister.

James Gray, a friend of Malcolmson, chipped in with $10,000, for which they elected him president of the company. Charles Woodhall, Malcolmson's bookkeeper, risked his thousand dollars; so did Vernon C. Fry, a shopkeeper, and Charles H. Bennett, a worker for a toy gun company. Albert Strelow, a carpenter, put his life's earnings of $5,000 into the venture, and rented his shed as the first factory.

The Dodge brothers, John F. and Horace E., agreed to build 650 motors in their machine shop and to take payment in stock. Two young lawyers, Horace H. Rackshad and John W. Anderson, drew up the contract for the Dodges, and were talked into taking a flier of $10,000.

These were the 11. The twelfth was Henry Ford, and his contribution was his four-cylinder racing automobile, his engineering services and his idea that an automobile could be built cheaply enough to appeal to folks with thin pocketbooks.

Thus the Ford Motor Company was born, capitalized at $100,000, with but $28,000 paid in; and thus began the amazing career of Henry Ford. He was 40 years old, lacking just six weeks.

As I write this down I have before me the annual report of the Ford Motor Car Company to the Secretary of State for New Hampshire, which shows that the net worth of the company is placed at $628,344,180.05. This sum, of course, does not include the personal fortunes of the Fords.

Many of the sayings and the policies which have created talk and controversy in late years are really the fruits of his own experience and his own methods in his early years of struggle. For example, when this man says that money is the most useless thing in the world, and that wealth should be measured only by production, it is difficult to question his sincerity.

* * *

Henry Ford's Business Principles

HENRY FORD has stated the principles upon which he operates his business:

First—An absence of fear of the future or veneration of the past. What is past is useful only as it suggests ways and means of progress.

Second—A disregard of competition. Whoever does a thing best ought to be the one to do it.

Third—The putting of service before profit. Well-conducted business enterprise cannot fail to return a profit, but profit must and inevitably will come as a reward for good service.

Fourth—Manufacturing is the process of buying materials fairly, and, with the smallest addition of cost, transforming those materials into a consumable product and passing it along to the consumer.

Henry Ford's peace ship venture in 1915, with his slogan of getting the boys "out of the trenches by Christmas;" his campaign against the Jews in his Dearborn Independent; his statement that history is bunk, and his constant theorizing on politics and economics are fresh in the public mind. But judging him solely in his own sphere, who will dispute that as a manufacturer and merchandiser he is the supreme example in history?

And still, the only thing in Henry Ford's career which impresses me more than all his hundreds of millions, his mines, his forests, his waterpower developments and his factories is this: Here was a man, who, by all the yardsticks we use, was a failure at forty, a visionary. They called him a crank. What one among us would not have thrown up the sponge and gone back to the potato patch, the barn dancing and the cracker barrel in the general store at Greenfield?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

And still the pessimists are croaking.

The "blues slingers" are active in their predictions that business revival will be short-lived.

They accept every opportunity to broadcast their arguments, trying to prove in advance that industrial activity of the present is a spurt that soon will lose speed and momentum.

But our country has always recovered from its slumps.

Why anyone should think that any depression will continue indefinitely is a question that cannot be answered convincingly.

Such an unprecedented industrial illness as this country has had takes time to recover, but will in time be overcome, if the people so will.

The low mark of financial depression is passed and, like a physical illness, leaves much to be built up and needs patience and courage to be restored.

Isn't It So?
